Under the plan, the posts would be placed in sleeves encased in concrete each spring and then the posts would be removed each fall to prevent damage from winter weather and snow removal operations. The sleeves would be capped to keep debris out during the off-season.

Keep Charlevoix Beautiful leaders began considering the basket plan earlier this year when it became clear that the Charlevoix County Jail would no longer be able to provide inmates to handle the weeding tasks. Keeping the flower beds weed free is the organization's most daunting task each year.

Wilkin said the move to the baskets would eliminate the weed problem and several other problems the display encounters each year such as flooding in areas where the curb is low, and damage from migrating fertilizer and herbicides applied to nearby lawns.

The Michigan Department of Transportation and the city council both recently gave the organization the go-ahead to try the pilot program.

While installing the baskets Wednesday, Boss and Wilkin noted that there might be some areas of the city where some tree pruning might be necessary to make the baskets more visible.

Keep Charlevoix Beautiful plans to keep the baskets up for the remainder of the summer and then over the winter, based on its own observations and input from city officials and the community, decide how to proceed next spring.

However the group has one more big function that will be taking place much sooner. And it has to do with those pesky weeds that started the basket discussion in the first place.

Keep Charlevoix Beautiful will host the second of two planned community weeding events from 4-7 p.m. on Wednesday, Aug. 7. During this time — just like for the annual petunia planting day that takes place near the end of May — the outside lanes of U.S. 31 will be closed down to allow what organizers are hoping will be many volunteers to come out and pull weeds from the flower beds.

Although the annual planting day typically draws hundreds of people to help, organization officials were disappointed with the few dozen people who turned out for the first weeding event that took place in late June.

Just like the planting day and the first weeding event, a "thank-you" treat will be offered for volunteers who help weed on Aug. 7. This time around Keep Charlevoix Beautiful officials will be handing out tickets to volunteers for a free ice cream cone at the Dairy Grille.

Based on the turnout last time, Wilkin asked those who are planning to come out and pull weeds to look at the petunias a day or two in advance for areas that need weeding the most and then focus on those areas come Wednesday.

This photo, that has been seen by thousands since it wss posted on Facebook Saturday, shows Lance Cpl. Myles Kerr running with Boden Fuchs near the end of the Jeff Drenth Memorial Footrace on Saturday, July 27.

MYLES

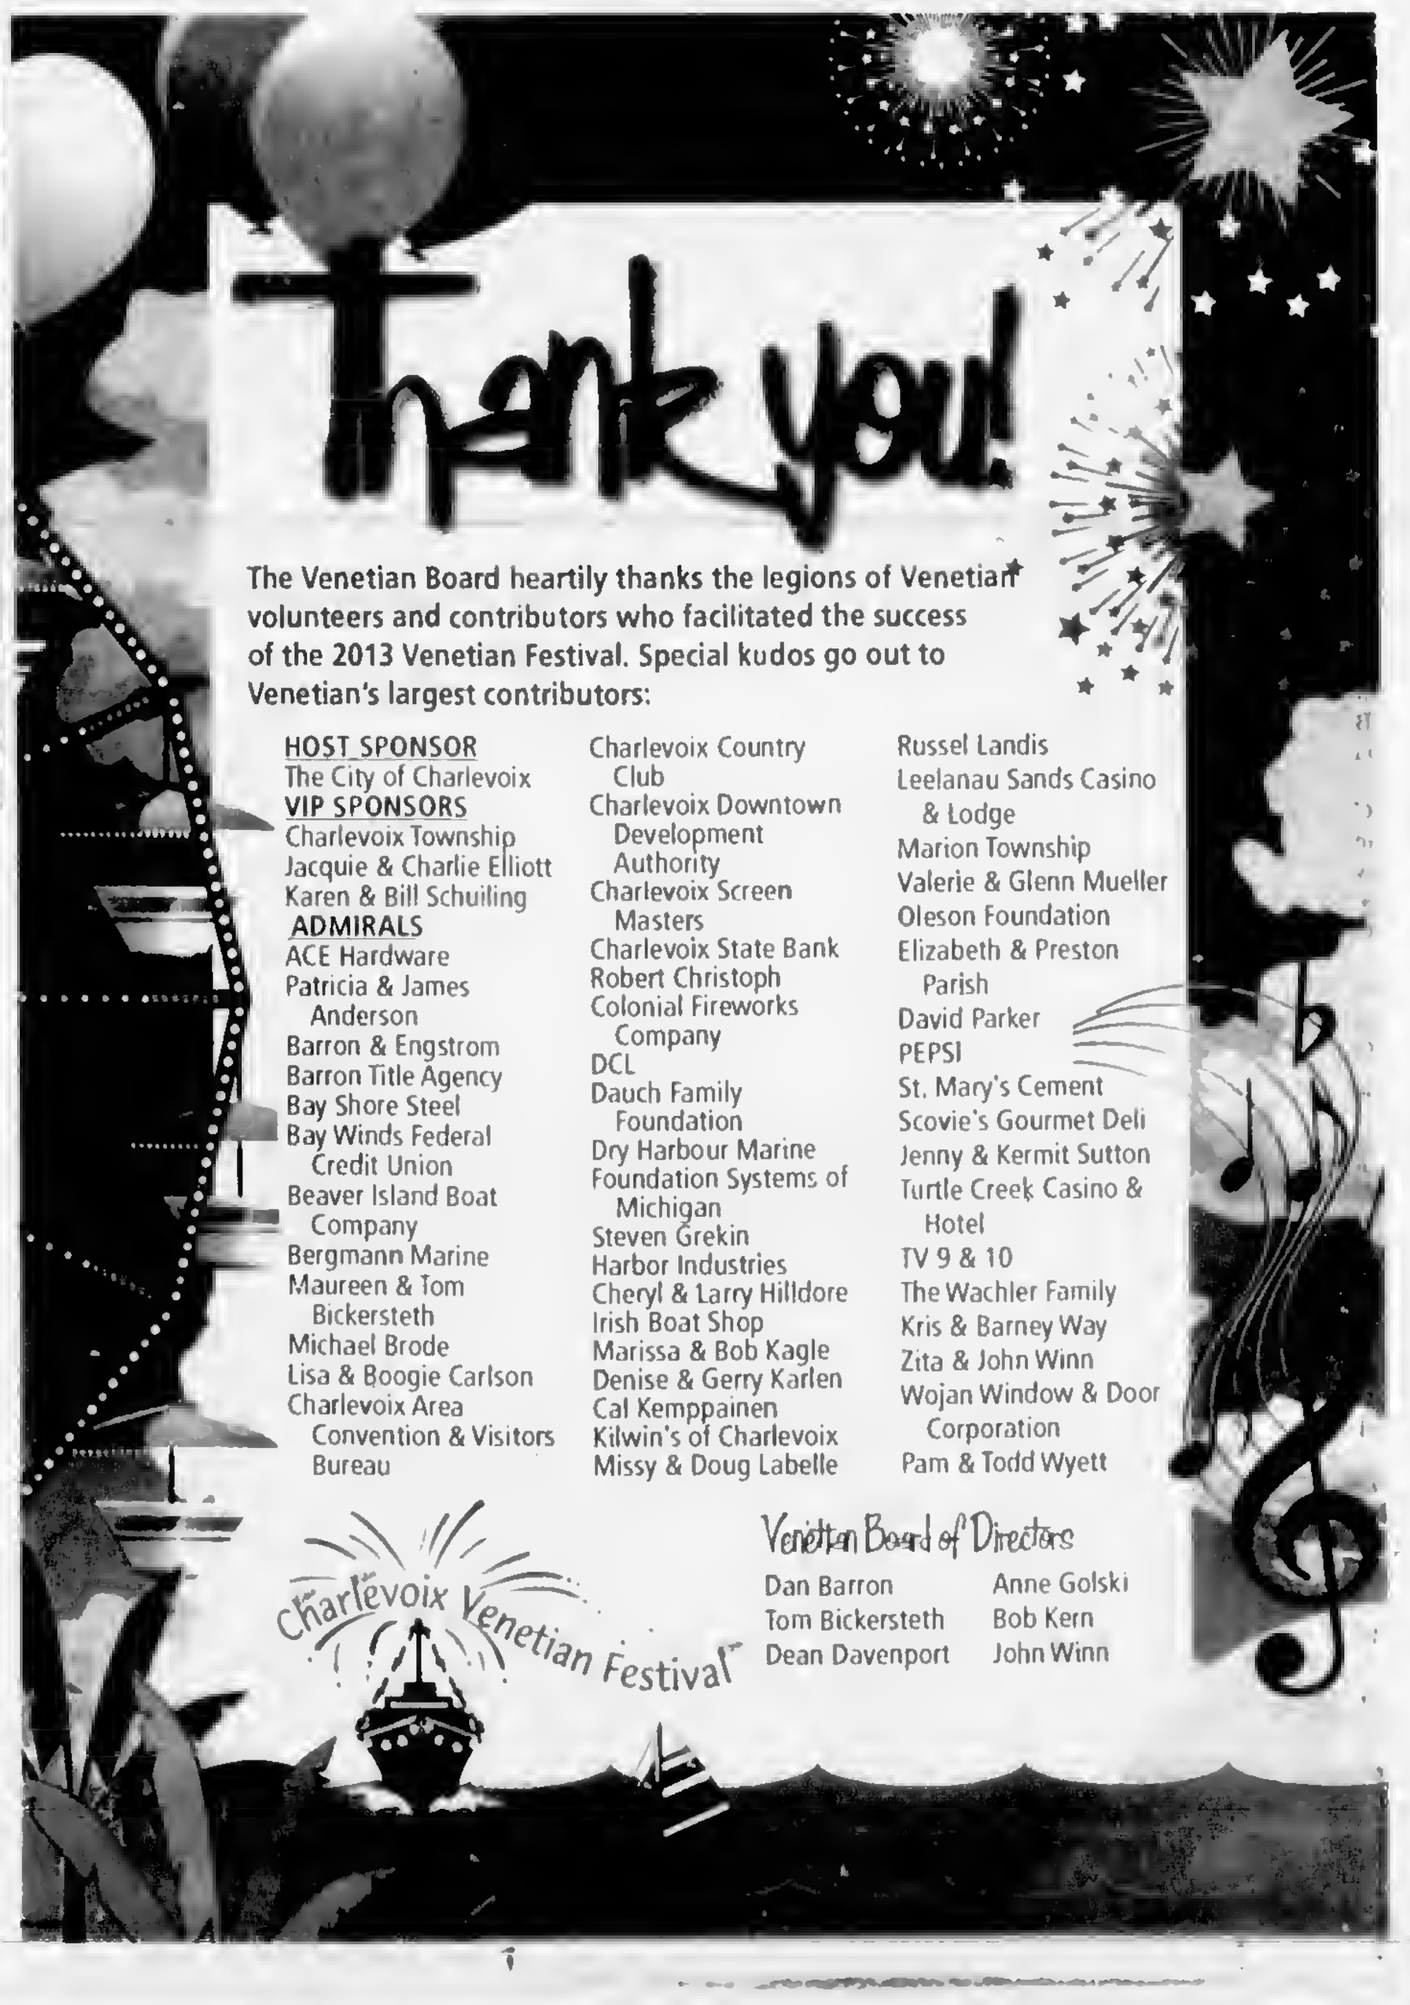
He asked me if I would run with him the rest of the way. I think we clocked 38 minutes by the time we crossed the line. I usually can run the 3 miles in 17 or 18 minutes. He reminded me of myself at that age, but I couldn't have done what he did then."

Boden's mom Holly Fuchs, who heads a St. Mary School running program during the year, and her daughter, Maxi Fuchs, thought Boden had run ahead and were trying to catch up with him, not realizing he had fallen behind.

"I was touched when I saw Myles crossing the finish line with his gear but I didn't realize that Boden was running with him until he told me," she said.

Here is how vanBeekom recounted the events of that race on Facebook (with minor edits for newspaper style).

"For the 5K at the Venetian Festival in Charlevoix, Lance Cpl. Kerr opted to run the event wearing boots and utes (utility uniform) and carrying a ruck sack. Several minutes after I finished, Lance Cpl. Kerr still had not crossed the line. I feared his extreme level of motivation may have caused him injury and/or fatigue resulting in him dropping out of the race. Moments before I ran back through the course to recover my fellow Marine, Lance Cpl. Kerr came around the last turn along with this small boy. The boy had become separated from those who he had started the race with. He asked Lance Cpl. Kerr, 'Sir? Will you please run with me?' Throughout the course, Lance Cpl. Kerr urged him on when the boy wanted to give up and ensured that the boy saw the course to completion where he was reunited with his party. By his unwavering commitment to help those in need through his ability to inspire others by his unequivocal level of motivation, Lance Cpl. Kerr reflected great credit upon himself and was keeping in the highest traditions of the United States Marine Corps."



Thank you!

The Venetian Board heartily thanks the legions of Venetian volunteers and contributors who facilitated the success of the 2013 Venetian Festival. Special kudos go out to Venetian's largest contributors:

Clark, Kampf repeat winners in Shay Mile

DREW KOCHANNY
Northern Michigan Review

For the past year, the title of reigning Ryan Shay Mile champion has belonged to Daniel Clark and Heather Kampf.

After Saturday's unique mile run down Bridge Street during the conclusion of the 83rd annual Charlevoix Venetian Festival, nothing has changed.

For the second year in a row, Clark took the men's mile crown with a time of 3:56.85, and Kampf the women's title with a time of 4:30.96, setting a women's record for the second straight year.

Clark was just a second off from the overall men's time record.

"I love this race. I was trying to remind myself that there's no pressure to come back and defend myself," said Kampf of Indianapolis, Ind. "I feel like just getting out here I've already won. So it's great."

Clark, of Jackson, is a Notre Dame alum, the same school where Ryan Shay ran track in college after his high school days at Central Lake.

"It's really special to win because of Ryan," Clark said. "He's was an inspiration to me in high school and then we went to the same college. It's great to run in his honor. This race is always starred on the calendar from the beginning of the year."

The Shay Mile is run through downtown Charlevoix's Bridge Street, which features a unique feature most road runners won't encounter in a steep hill before the finish line.

Daniel Clark of Jsckson celebrates as he crosses the finish line to win his second straight Ryan Shay Mile men's title Saturday in Charlevoix. Clark finished in 3 minutes, 56.85 seconds.

OREW KOCHANNY/NEWS-REVIEW

Heather Kampf of Inver Grove, Minn., crosses the finish line to win the women's race at the sixth annual Ryan Shay Mile in Charlevoix. Kampf finished in a Shay Mile women's record time of 4 minutes, 30.96 seconds.

"It's fun, you've got to be careful with it going downhill. It can take a lot out of you," Clark said. "It's a different feel the last quarter mile of a race. It's just a different thing to tackle and makes it more fun than the general four laps around the circle that's always the same."

Apart from the hill, Clark had to make up ground in the latter half of the race to catch second place finisher Macklin Chaffee.

"I should have gone down a second or two faster at the half," said Clark. "I let him get away and had to do some work at the end, but thankfully I had enough ground to make it up."

Success is nothing new for Kampf, who runs professionally for Team USA Minnesota, as she's found plenty of it abroad this season in Europe.

"I just came back from a two and a half week trip in Europe," Kampf said. "I did two 1500s and three 800s when I was there. I won all of my races and I ran (personal records) for both my events so I was really excited where this season is going."

"I feel like I'm coming on a little too late for the U.S. Championships at the end of the year, but you have to celebrate the success whenever it comes to you."

Following Clark and Chaffee (3:57.83) in the men's race was Tony Jordanek, 3:59.08; Josh McAlary, 4:00.08; Dey Dey, 4:00.09; Daniel Stockberger, 4:15.25; and Tony Filapek, 4:15.59.

"The competitive field is probably the best of my season," Clark said. "I think I've won three races. I've gotten second a couple of times. So I'm definitely really happy with it."

On the women's side, Geena Gall followed Kampf at 4:31.49; followed by Shannon Osika, 4:34.24; Lauren Johnson, 4:38.64; Chemtai Rionotukei, 4:44.49; and Sara Barron, 5:05.75.

"Genna Gall and I were back and forth a lot throughout the years in college and professionally," Kampf said. "So I didn't know how close she was going to be so I really had to give it all at the end. It was a good race."

Asked if she'd be back for her third win in as many tries next year, Kampf didn't hesitate.

"I hope so, yeah. God willing that I'm healthy and ready to go, I'll definitely come back."

As for Clark, who was just a second off from the course record, he said he'd love to be back as well, but aiming for the course record won't necessarily be on his mind.

"I'm never one to go chase time trials. I don't really enjoy that. I wasn't really shooting for a time at all. I was just trying to win it. But when you're competitive and win races, usually the times follow that."

Collegiate runners win Drenth 5K races

DREW KOCHANNY
Northern Michigan Review

George O'Connor and Kelsey Duerksen each turned in the overall winning 5K times in the annual Jeff Drenth Memorial footrace in Charlevoix on Saturday.

O'Conner, 19, a sophomore runner for Oakland University and originally from Croswell, turned in a time of 15:52 at a 5:07 mile pace. Duerksen, 23, a senior on the Indiana track and field team from Ann Arbor, brought in a time of 17:19, at a 5:35 pace.

Jim Harrington, 47, of Pickford won the masters division with a time of 17:40, while Andrea Osika, 47, of Waterford took the female masters at 19:45.

In the 10K race, Colin Riley, 21, of Northville took the overall finish with a time of 34:22, while Kirsten Olling, 18, of Breckenridge took the female crown at 37:06.

Murphy Reese, 45, of Charlevoix, took the male masters win with a time of 37:05, while Loretta Tobloske-Horn, 41, finished first with a time of 42:00.

Hardy notches second hole-in-one

ANNE KELLY
Courier Staff Writer

"I couldn't see it go in," said golf enthusiast Don Hardy when he made a 144-yard hole-in-one on the third hole of the city's Charlevoix Golf Club course recently. "I thought the guys were fooling me because I thought I had overshot the hole."

Hardy achieved the feat with a 4 iron and, of course, was both surprised and excited. This was the second hole-in-one on the course's hole number three for 80-year-old Hardy who is the "youngster" in regular his foursome.

Hardy, a Charlevoix native who winters in Colorado Springs, Colo., plays golf nearly every day at the Charlevoix Golf Club. Along with his buddies, George Haggard, 81, Des Milligan, 82, and Jim Harvey,83, Hardy meets and plays at a 9 a.m. tee time, " except on Thursday Stag Nights when we play in the afternoon," Hardy said.

Hardy resides each summer on the corner of Lincoln and Grant streets in Charlevoix in the remodeled home in which he grew up.

"My dad was a champion area ski-jumper," Hardy said.

Hardy became an athlete in his own right. A Charlevoix High School graduate, Hardy played a variety of sports including football, basketball and track as well as golf under legendary Charlevoix coach Ray Kipke.

"Coach Kipke was caddy master at the Belvedere course and I caddied under him for four years, seven days a week, 36 holes many days. Most of the players were wealthy but not big tippers. The biggest tip I got was from former Mayor John Knight who tipped me $5, which was a lot in those days."

Hardy has been in the business of buying and remodeling homes for the past 55 years after spending 30 years as a mail carrier in Charlevoix.

"I have three sons who work with me and currently have nine houses going, seven in Colorado Springs, one in Sun City and one in Charlevoix. We buy them and remodel them to either sell or rent. The boys do most of the work now, especially when it comes to roofing."

"I didn't play golf myself until I was in my 60s," Hardy said.

Defending champs prevail in croquet tournament

The 2013 Venetian Games Cottage Croquet Tournament championship came down to a grudge match between two former tournament champion teams.

Both teams battled through the tournament's large field in Bridge Park on July 23, and when the dust settled, there were only two teams remaining.

The Fowlers, father Dave and son Jim, champions two years ago, would face last year's champions, Kirk Ikens and Andy Leupnitz, who came through the other bracket untested.

The championship match, which turned out the be the longest of the day in a tournament that featured 18 teams, ended in a repeat championship for the Iken-Leupnitz duo.

Event co-managers Nancy Fowler and Joyce Davenport noted that the field was the largest for the tournament since it was started 15 years ago. They also noted that the competition drew a surprising number of spectators, especially given the day's cool and breezy conditions.

Out with a bang

East Park visitors watch the Venetian Festival fireworks light up Round Lake Saturday after the annual boat parade. These are seen launched from Depot Beach, as the scheduled Friday fireworks were postponed because of rain. The stadium fireworks slated to ignite Saturday after the boat parade were moved to Sunday evening.

Water main break prompts boil advisory

Advisory expected to remain in effect until at least Saturday

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

City of Charlevoix water department crews worked through the night Wednesday and the early morning hours Thursday, to flush the city's water system in hopes of having a citywide water boil advisory lifted as soon as possible.

The boil advisory has been in place since around 6 a.m. Wednesday when city crews discovered that low water pressure caused by a break in a water line had possibly allowed bacteria to enter the water system.

City public works superintendent Pat Elliott said Wednesday afternoon crews added a higher-than-normal dose of chlorine to the water at the city's water plant to kill any bacteria that might be in the system. Crews opened fire hydrants at both the south and north ends of the system and then

Zoning prohibits outdoor merchandise displays

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

The Charlevoix City Council on Monday approved the first major update to its zoning ordinance since 1978 and the new rules now prohibit businesses located on Bridge Street in the downtown from displaying merchandise in front of their stores except during Sidewalk Sales or other similar events.

After many months of meetings, public hearings and tweaking the ordinance, the merchandise display ban was a last minute provision added to the ordinance in response to a number of complaints city officials received in recent weeks about the effect some outdoor displays are having on the appearance of the city's downtown.

The ban was one of two items that drew audience comment as the council conducted a second public hearing on the ordinance in as many meetings.

Several downtown retail merchants spoke in opposition to the restriction

Charlevoix Venetian Festival Board President Dan Barron talks to the Charlevoix City Council Monday.

Council mutes Venetian concert noise concerns

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier editor

In front of an audience numbering as many as during the height of last year's East Park fireplace debate, the Charlevoix City Council on Monday collectively shrugged at a handful of complaints about the volume of a recent Venetian Festival concert.

Most of the standing-room-only crowd that numbered near 100 was there to hear — and possibly comment on — how the council would respond to the complaints. Several audience members wore Venetian Festival T-shirts.

The matter was placed on the agenda at the request of council member Jeff Porter on behalf of a few people who have homes on the north side of Round Lake who complained to him about the sound coming from East Park during evening concerts on July 24.

Motor City Women and Detroit Express and Mitch Ryder and The Detroit Wheels were the two acts that performed that night.

Porter said around 9:30 p.m. on the night in question not only did he get calls complaining about the noise, but he, too, "could hear every note" from the concert in East Park, despite the fact that all of his home's triple-paned windows were closed.

Porter said the following day he contacted city manager Rob Straebel, who said he would talk to festival board president Dan Barron about the concert volume. Porter said he presumed that Barron had done something because the next nights' concerts were not as loud.

Speaking to the council Monday, Barron said the next night's concert was just as loud — if not louder than the night before, but that the style of music being played (country) probably impacted the perception of how loud it was.

He said Venetian officials over the years have done what they can to mitigate how much sound comes from the concerts, including using smaller speaker setups, tweaking some sound board settings and asking groups to keep in mind the more intimate nature of the East Park venue compared to larger auditoriums and arenas.

"Unfortunately, that's as far as we can go in terms of controlling the volume of these concerts for the national performance groups without losing our ability to book them," Barron said.

"Sometimes ... it's the genre of music. Wednesday night — especially near the end of the concert — there was a harder-rock edge to what Mitch Ryder was doing — sometimes it just depends on what's being played in terms of the way its perceived as to the volume levels," Barron said.

"There are certain inconveniences with this festival. Our philosophy is

Antrim County prosecutor dies

Koop

Charles Koop, the prosecutor of Antrim County, died Tuesday.

The Antrim County administration and planning office confirmed the passing in a two-sentence press release Tuesday afternoon, stating he died in his home in Williamsburg.

"Charlie Koop was a wonderful man, he was well-liked and respected," said Sheryl Guy, the Antrim County clerk. "His presence and laughter will be deeply missed in the offices of Antrim County. With 23 years of service, Charlie was Antrim County's 'go to' guy ... This is a huge loss for all the people of Antrim County. Our thoughts and prayers go out to his family."

The death was also felt statewide, especially through Koop's 17-year tenure on the board of directors in the Prosecuting Attorneys Association of Michigan.

"He was a tremendous prosecutor and lawyer," said David Leyton, the current president of Prosecuting Attorneys Association of Michigan and prosecutor of Genesee County. "He was absolutely committed to punishing those who broke the law. In all my time working with him, he was always a joy to be around."

Koop was a president of the Prosecuting Attorneys Association of Michigan in 2007-08, along with other executive positions with the group during his tenure.

Michigan Attorney General Bill Schuette also responded to the sudden death.

"Charlie Koop was a dear and valued friend, and a dedicated prosecutor who will be missed greatly," he said in a release. "My wife Cynthia and I extend our deepest sympathies to Charlie's family, friends and colleagues. The people of Michigan will forever be privileged to have benefitted from Charlie's public service and profound dedication to justice."

No cause was listed in Koop's death. Funeral arrangements are pending.

"I'm sad. I'm shocked and I can tell you 82 other prosecutors across the state are feeling the same way," Leyton said.

Door closing for good on Garage Sale

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

It's been a little less than a year since an early morning fire caused extensive damage to the stock of a long-time seasonal antiques business, and now the owner, Jim Haggard, says he's calling it quits — for now at least.

Firefighters were called to The Garage Sale Antiques and Collectables at 755 Petoskey Ave. at about 1:20 a.m. Monday, Aug. 13, 2012.

When firefighters arrived, they found heavy smoke coming from inside the century-old building. The cause of the fire was likely electrical.

While the damage from the fire is not very noticeable from the outside, fire, smoke and water damaged most of Haggard's stock and the fire left questions as to whether the building could be saved.

Haggard, who lives most of the year in Hawaii, has operated the business for about 20 years — typically during the busiest tourist season, June through mid-September.

When he left for Hawaii at the end of last summer, he was unsure if he would try to reopen the business.

Haggard said he's decided to simply liquidate his stock and get what he can for the items that remain.

To do that, appropriate to his business's name, Haggard has been having a garage sale (perhaps yard sale is more accurate) on the weekends in recent weeks. He sits outside the business and takes what he can get on the damaged merchandise.

"A lot of the glass and ceramic pieces will clean up just fine if you soak them over night," Haggard said. "So I tell people, 'I can do it (the cleaning) and sell it to you for $80 or you can take it like this for $10.'"

Haggard said he plans to keep selling his remaining stock on the weekends (with a Thursday or Friday thrown in here and there) until Sept. 1. He said whatever's left at that point, he'll simply donate to area charities before he heads back to Hawaii.

Haggard, 75, said he still plans to keep his seasonal home here in Charlevoix, and may consider another business venture in the future.

He added that the building's owner, Scott Supernaw, has indicated he expects to demolish the 95-year-old building, which once served as a small gas station and grocery store, sometime in September.

County hires new recycling attendants

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

Charlevoix County recently welcomed two new employees who will help keep the recycling drop-off centers neat and clean.

Eric Calo of Boyne City will attend the Boyne City bins, located at the Charlevoix County Road Commission building, 1251 Boyne Avenue, Boyne City, and Bobby Lewis of Charlevoix will man the Charlevoix bins, located at the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office, 1030 Grant Street in Charlevoix.

Calo says part of his job is educating people about Charlevoix County's new single-stream recycling program.

"I help explain single stream recycling," said Calo.

Calo said it's been busy since people have learned more about what they can recycle at the drop-off bins. These materials include such unexpected materials as Styrofoam, metal and plastic coat hangers, empty paint cans and plastic furniture. Scrap metal such as old keys or bottle tops is also accepted.

"A lot more people come here since we take Styrofoam," he said.

Calo's other duties include helping people unload their cars and keeping the bins clean. He also works a part-time job in the custodial system for Boyne City schools.

Residents can dispose of their recyclables 24 hours a day, seven days a week at the Boyne City location. Calo attends the station from 2-4 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday through Sunday.

At the Charlevoix location, the county asks residents to recycle between 8 a.m.-8 p.m. out of respect for the residential area in which the bins are located.

"It's just to help out the neighbors," said Frank Shaler, maintenance supervisor and department head of recycling for Charlevoix County.

Lewis works at the Charlevoix station from 2-4 p.m. Mondays and Wednesday through Saturday. He says he likes the job — though sometimes it can get slow, he said.

"I'm the type of person who likes to work," said Lewis.

Lewis works two other jobs, one at Oleson's Food Store in Charlevoix and the other cleaning at the Charlevoix Public Library. He said he found out about the job through his neighbor, who used to attend the station but was promoted to a full-time job.

"It's really different compared to what I'm used to," he said.

Shaler said the county has seen a marked increase in recycling since beginning the single-stream program in June. It empties the bins on Monday, Wednesday and Friday, or any time a bin is full — and during the month of July, the county emptied 102 bins, totaling 151.37 tons of material. That's a little more than 10 percent increase from July 2012's 89 emptied bins.

A list of accepted materials is posted on each bin at the Boyne City and Charlevoix locations.

"The more we recycle, the more stays out of the ground," said Shaler.

Too, Charlevoix County recently received a $5,000 grant from the state Department of Environmental Quality to ship tires off of Beaver Island. One semi-trailer load of 1,168 has already been removed, and Shaler expects another 1,100 to be shipped to the mainland.

Charlevoix County will also host two recycling events. A tire drop-off event will take place from 9 a.m.-1 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 17, at the Ironton maintenance garage, 11705 Shaw Road in Charlevoix. The second, a household and hazardous waste drop-off at which residents can dispose of items such as florescent light bulbs, oil-based paints, chemicals and lawn fertilizers, will take place from 5-8 p.m. on Friday, Sept. 6, and 9 a.m.-1 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 7, at the Boyne City Charlevoix County Road Commission.

Austin Hatch to finish school in California

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP) — An Indiana high school basketball standout who's survived two deadly plane crashes — the most recent in Charlevoix — will spend his final year of high school in California.

WPTA-TV reports the Hatch family released a statement Monday saying Austin Hatch is moving to Pasadena, Calif., to stay with relatives and will be attending Los Angeles Loyola High School. Hatch plans to play college basketball next year.

He suffered serious injuries in a 2011 Michigan plane crash that killed his father and stepmother. He also survived a 2003 crash that killed his mother, sister and brother.

Hatch's father was piloting both planes.

The Hatch family's statement says Austin continues to make steady improvement from his injuries as he prepares for his final year of high school. Hatch had attended Fort Wayne's Canterbury High School.

Army to conduct August aircraft training in region

Aircraft from the U.S. Army Special Operations Aviation Command will be conducting training exercises in Northern Michigan through mid-August, an Army spokeswoman said.

The training — which is being staged from an Air National Guard installation in Alpena, and is expected to bring aircraft to areas such as Petoskey — likely will run until Wednesday, Aug. 14, Army public affairs officer Maj. Emily Potter said.

"We would just like to stress that this is routine training," she said. "(Personnel) train in different locations to get different sets of skills."

Blackhawk helicopters will be among the aircraft used in the exercises, Potter said. Since schedules can be shifted because of factors such as weather, she noted that the Army doesn't divulge specific times when aircraft are to operate in a given area.

This type of air training takes place mostly at night, Potter said, since that's when combat operations tend to occur.

While the aircraft operations generate noticeable levels of noise in nearby areas, Potter noted that personnel make efforts to minimize disturbances.

"They try not to stay in an area for a long period of time," she said.

The Army is appraising local authorities — as well as private landowners in areas where landings would occur — of its training plans, Potter said.

Man injured when boat runs aground

A Florida man suffered four broken ribs and a partially collapsed lung after the watercraft he was piloting ran aground near South Arm Township on Friday, Aug 2.

Edward John Demmer, 54, of West Palm Beach, Fla., was navigating his 41-foot vessel from the East Jordan area back to his residence in Ironton when he ran aground near the crossing of M-66 and Flagg Road. He was treated at the Charlevoix Area Hospital for his injuries after the 10:50 p.m. accident.

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office was assisted at the scene by East Jordan EMS.

The accident remains under investigation.

The buzz on being busy

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

There is something I've heard a lot of this summer: "Beyond busy."

It's the generic answer to my query, "How is your summer going?"

Maybe it's the fact that we are cooped up much too long during the cold, snowy months of well you know, pretty much all of them. When the sun comes out fun is soon to follow. Which also means lots of company that arrive about the same time your bumper crop of veggies appear. Mother Nature is so ambitious sometimes.

Between jobs, kids, grandkids and catching up with old friends, I can't complain. I just wish we could have more time and more warm weather to enjoy both. It's been a whirlwind at our home and we have just enough spare moments to wash sheets and towels and refill staples of coffee and toilet paper.

We just finished up the weekend with a niece who asked if she could bunk in for a few days while she coordinated a wedding she asked me to do. Word spread and then a nephew and his friends came and by the day after the wedding we had a full house for breakfast. I smiled weakly at my husband not certain how the memo got out. He politely started asking each "guest" when they planned on leaving. Not out of interest for laundry sake, but he needed to sit and relax for a moment without the hubbub.

If you live in Charlevoix you are bound to get company. It's just too darn nice here not to visit. I have a feeling if we lived in Monroe, this wouldn't be happening. Sorry to anyone living there but I spent time in this fair city doing the county fair and I know very well that pristine beaches attract more visitors than bees making honey.

Speaking of bees we've been busy as bees all summer. A honey bee will work three to 12 hours a day depending on its role in the beehive. Now allow me to compare bees to my family this busy summer. The worker bee forages nectar all day and ends the day when it gets dark. This describes my husband who's been busy taking care of our garden and yard. The worker bee whose job it is to tend to the nest is busy fanning the hive to keep it cool. They also take frequents breaks. This describes me very well. I take on many tasks often retracing my own steps and it's not complete without a few coffee breaks in between. Then there are the drones. They leave the hive but wait until early afternoon to do so and when they do leave, they carouse in packs. Then they return home to the nest where they rely on a worker bee to feed them. Yep, that's called company. Bees do take the day off when the day is rainy much like my family who, on a rainy day, can be found reading a book or watching a movie rather than being busy.

Busy people have been compared to busy bees since the 15th century. In the Canterbury Tales women are described as "busy as bees." Bees and beehives have been used as a symbol suggesting their strong desire to work. In Manchester, England the bee is the symbol of industry. Look closely at the state flag of Utah and you will see a beehive thanks to the Mormon population who adopted the beehive to symbolize "industrious." There are other hard working species like hummingbirds and beavers but I'd rather compare us to bees buzzing about taking little breaks now and then to check out the flowers and settle in on a rainy day. Yes, that about sums up our summer. It's been beyond busy.

After a business trip to Petoskey, pioneer businessman Amos Fox returned to Charlevoix with a glowing account of the success of the summertime Methodist camp meetings conducted near Petoskey in what would become Bay View in 1875. This spurred local businessmen to seek a similar summer activity for this area. In 1876, pioneer landowner Morris J. Stockman offered to sell a 25-acre section of his property overlooking Lake Charlevoix if an organization could be found to put it to proper use and improve the site. At the convention of Michigan and Indiana Baptists downstate in October of 1877, the acreage was offered for $625 for use as a summer resort. The following spring, Baptist representatives traveled north to inspect several locations. Charlevoix won their enthusiastic approval over all others. Within weeks an association was formed, calling itself the Charlevoix Summer Resort. Its first meeting took place in Kalamazoo on June 21, 1878, with 10 charter members. On July 2, three of them arrived in town and started to build. By the end of the year a tool shed/bunkhouse and six cottages were completed. The resort, to be called Belvedere in line with its future hotel and railroad station in 1923, was on its way, a major and welcome influence in Charlevoix ever since. The Club celebrated its 135th anniversary on Saturday, Aug. 3 with a dinner, vintage pictorial exhibit, and program at the club's casino on Ferry Avenue.

Kiwanis Club honors Bruce MacArthur

Every year the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club honors an individual with a Community Appreciation Award.

The criteria for the award is that it honors someone who "has proven that helping their fellow man, woman and child and the community at large, is part of who they are and always will be. An individual who gives freely of their time, not expecting anything in return; an individual who stands above the rest because they are involved purely out of the goodness of their heart and not necessarily to see their name in print. They are focused on making the lives of those in the community they love a little kinder, healthier and beautiful so that their children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren's lives will be enriched while living or vacationing in Charlevoix."

The club recently presented its 2013 Community Appreciation Award to Bruce MacArthur.

He received his award in the presence of his sister, Mildred Darton, his daughter, Marjorie Veiga, her daughters, Christine and Andrea, and Bruce's daughter, Nancy Smith. The family made arrangements for Bruce to travel from his home in Virginia to attend the award ceremony in Charlevoix.

In 1982, MacArthur's love for the flora and fauna of Charlevoix moved him to keep the area replenished with more of it. Out of this desire he became one of the founding members of Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, the organization that oversees the annual Operation Petunia project. In 1983 MacArthur turned his attention to the environment. He was a board member and long-time supporter for a new committee who called themselves WATCH (Water and Air Team Charlevoix.) He spent many years educating area youth and adults about the environment. MacArthur was one of Charlevoix's first climate change activists and proponent of alternative energy sources. He was also instrumental in the creation of CARE which is WATCH's Conservation and Renewable Energy committee.

With MacArthur's leadership CARE has raised awareness regarding energy issues in Charlevoix County via the Energy Fair which takes place at the Charlevoix Public Library, also assisted with the Lake to Lake Trail and championed the "Idle Free Charlevoix" campaign.

After tackling issues of beautification and environment, MacArthur turned his eyes to the building of a swimming pool, one large enough for the community to use and a safe place for kids to learn how to swim and patients to continue with their therapy.

The Charlevoix Kiwanis Club has a long history with the pool starting with a former Kiwanis member, the late Ralph Hamilton. Ralph Hamilton envisioned an indoor pool and encouraged the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club to donate $10,000 toward the cause. Hamilton's vision came true under MacArthur's leadership. Many pool auctions led to the opening of one of the only pools built in Michigan for public use with private donations.

Sidewalk sales set for Aug. 15-17

Charlevoix area merchants will once again offer a wide variety of deals at their annual end of summer sidewalk sales set to take place Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Aug. 15-17.

According to Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce officials, shoppers will be able to take advantage of substantial reductions on a variety of seasonal inventory.

"Merchants will be out in force with great sales to reduce inventories before the fall season. Shoppers will find great discounts on gift items, home décor, clothing, books, jewelry, accessories and more," a chamber news release reads.

Hours may vary, but most merchants will be on the sidewalk from 9 a.m.-5 p.m. and inside after 5 p.m.

For more information, contact the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce at (231) 547-2101, or visit www.charlevoix.org.

Historical society presents 'Ladies of the Lights'

Weaver

The Charlevoix Historical Society will present a program titled "The Ladies of the Lights" at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, Aug. 13 at the Depot, Depot Beach. The program will be narrated by Harsha House Museum co-director Sally Weaver and will feature stories about women who served as lighthouse keepers on the Great Lakes during the time when lighthouses were the primary guardians of the crucial maritime lanes.

Weaver, an expert on Great Lakes lighthouse history, will start her presentation with a brief lighthouse history, take a tour around the state, then tell about the many "Ladies of the Lights."

During a time when these women kept a lighthouse household going in such close proximity to their husbands, they quickly learned the professional duties of a lighthouse keeper. Because of the knowledge they had gained, upon the death of their husbands they were allowed to become keepers themselves in what could be, many times, a harrowing job.

Weaver will also touch on Michigan's first and different types of lights, the famous Fresnel lens, the National Lighthouse Preservation Act, Coast Guard de-commissioning of many lights, including Charlevoix's, and the groups taking on responsibility for lighthouse preservation.

Light refreshments will be served. There will be no admission charge, but donations in support of the society will be accepted. Call (231) 547-0373 for more information.

Pearson hired as economic development director

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Bethany Pearson, the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce's director of membership won't have far to go when she moves her personal items from her current desk to her new desk come the middle of this month.

Pearson was recently hired as the city's new community economic development director. She will start in the new position on Monday Aug. 19.

The position takes the place of the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority executive director position that Keith Carey left earlier this year to accept a position at an area credit union. Following Carey's departure, the authority's board re-evaluated its staffing needs and decided it no longer needed a full-time person in the position. Thinking that better candidates might be attracted to a full-time position, the board proposed to the council that it split the a economic development position with the council, wherein the person would spend 30 hours per week working on development efforts specifically for the downtown and 10 hours per week doing similar work, but for the entire city. The cost of the position will be split by the same proportions between the authority's budget and the city's general fund.

Pearson

Rob Straebel said the city received 17 applications for the position and city officials completed six interviews.

"The interview committee was very impressed with Bethany's skills and experience and was unanimous that she was the right candidate for the job," Straebel said. "Bethany not only has the talent and job experience we were looking for, she has a proven track record through her work with the Charlevoix Area Chamber if Commerce. Her enthusiasm, skill set and local community knowledge will greatly assist our efforts to further build upon our continuing economic development efforts. We could not be happier with the selection of Ms. Pearson for the job."

In an email announcing her position change to chamber members Pearson wrote, "I have thoroughly enjoyed working with all of you over the past couple of years and look forward to serving you in my new position."

Pearson said she expects her time to be spent working on some of the same popular programing that the authority has put in place over recent years such as the concert and movie series in East Park, but she also will be spending time working to attract and develop businesses in the downtown and throughout the city.

"We're always looking to expand shoulder seasons to help expand the opportunities available to our business community," she said. "We'll be open to suggestions, too," she added, noting that the board will likely be hosting some focus groups to get ideas from community.

From a business recruitment standpoint, Pearson said she plans to make visits to other communities and work with downtown property owners to help them identify businesses that would be a good fit. She said she'll also be working to attract businesses to the city's industrial park as well.

Bay Winds designated business lender

Bay Winds Federal Credit Union has recently been designated an authorized lender by the U.S. Small Business Administration.

Credit union officials said the designation is very rare for credit unions and will allow Bay Winds to continue its expansion of commercial lending services it began offering this past April.

"Bay Winds has long been known for its personalized member services, low fees and loan rates, and high dividends," Bay Winds president/CEO David Leusink said. "By adding (Small Business Administration) loans to our available services, we enhance our already extensive business offerings."

The Small Business Administration loan proceeds may be used to establish a new business or to assist in the acquisition, operation, or expansion of an existing business. Specifically, the loans present lending opportunities to business owners who might not otherwise qualify for conventional lending.

"Starting and operating a successful business isn't easy, especially in Northern Michigan," said Bay Winds business development director Tim Timmer. "We do our best to help by tailoring our commercial services to the individual needs of each of our business members."

AUG

OBITUARIES

Charlotte Steffes, 71

Charlotte Steffes, a long-time Charlevoix summer resident, born Sept. 25, 1941, died peacefully on Aug. 2, 2013, at the age of 71 with her family by her side as she succumbed to complications of sudden cardiac death syndrome.

Charlotte traveled the world, but Charlevoix the Beautiful was the place her heart always called home.

A celebration of Charlotte's life will be scheduled for a later date downstate.

MEMORIAL SERVICE

William 'Bill' Allison, 80

A celebration of life for William "Bill" Allison of Bullhead City, Ariz., and formerly of Petoskey, will take place at 1 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 17, at the Hayes Township hall on Old U.S. 31. A luncheon will be served.

Mr. Allison passed away on May 19, 2013, at the age of 80.

Ardeth Jane Slough, 81

Ardeth Jane Slough, 81, of Bloomington, Ill., passed away at 3:15 p.m. Wednesday, July 31, 2013, at the Bloomington Rehabilitation and Health Care Center.

Ardeth was born on May 22, 1932, in Charlevoix County, the daughter of Jacob and Ida Amelia (Cork) Brock.

She is survived by her children, Wesley (Christine) Slough, Jennifer Slough, all of Bloomington, Ill., and William (Julie) Slough of Hancock, Mich., all raised with their father, Kenneth Gordon Slough, who preceded her in passing.

Ardeth is also survived by two sisters, Rita (Steven) Skinner of Michigan, Frances (Burl) Ratzsch of Texas; one brother: Charles F. Brock of Michigan; grandchildren, Foster E. Hageman, Nathan E. Hageman, Jonas E. Hageman, Kaeley Slough, Victoria Slough, Megan Plis.

Ardeth attended and graduated from East Jordan public schools. She obtained a nursing degree (L.P.N) from Mott Community College in Flint and worked as a nurse early in life. Ardeth retired as a school cook in Michigan from the Petoskey Public Schools system. But, her true life's work and joy was always in taking care of her family, and in her later years she treasured spending as much time as possible with her grandchildren.

Cremation rites have been accorded. Burial with a memorial service will take place later in Charlevoix.

Quiram Peasley Funeral Home of Lincoln, Ill., is assisting the family with arrangements.

Lasater researching new war book, proceeds to benefit area memorials

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

MORGAN SHERBURNE/NEWS-REVIEW

Retired Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater is starting another book about war history, this one about Charlevoix County's contributions to the Korean War.

HORTON BAY — Retired Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater had skeletons in his closet, and he's writing about it in his nearly finished memoir.

"Skeletons in My Closet" is the title of one of the memoir's chapters, which Lasater hopes will draw in readers.

Back on the job, before Lasater was retired, human remains were found in two places: one set of remains in Norwood township and one in Charlevoix township.

"So I actually had skeletons in my closet," he said. "One solved a murder that happened around the turn of the 19th century."

Other chapters explore people the former sheriff met and wants to meet again — and those he never wants to meet again. He has a chapter dedicated to humorous events and another chapter dedicated to Castle Farm concerts.

"It was the only show in town to speak of," said Lasater.

One of those shows gave Lasater a brush with fame — he had to cite John Cougar Mellencamp for disorderly conduct.

But Lasater's memoir isn't the only book he's writing this year. Another is a third in a set of war series. The first two detail World War history, and are titled "Charlevoix County's Contributions to World War I." and "Charlevoix County's Contributions to World War II." The third, which Lasater has just begin researching, will examine "Charlevoix County's contributions to the Korean War.

Lasater wrote the Charlevoix County history of World War II first. The book is thick with first-hand accounts.

There's the young man from East Jordan who was so seasick on his way over to France, he was certain he wouldn't make it.

"He said to his friend, 'Give a message to my mother. Tell her I died a horrible death,'" said Lasater.

The man, then 18, survived the war and returned home to East Jordan.

There is also the account of another flight crew that was shot at during a mission in Germany, and while the crew members were picking up the spent brass in the plane, one found an unexploded shell. The pilot landed carefully at a British base, said Lasater, and British soldiers examined the shell. It was filled with sand.

"Sometimes, Polish slave labor working in factories sabotaged shells by filling them with sand," said Lasater. "Some poor Polish person saved 10 men."

Lasater interviewed more than 200 people for that book, and he hopes to do the same in his research for the book about the Korean War. The proceeds from both World War books are donated to veteran memorials in the area, including a memorial in Boyne City. Proceeds have also gone to memorials in Charlevoix, Beaver Island, Boyne Falls and Hayes and Norwood townships.

Those who would like to talk about their experiences in the Korean War can contact Lasater at (231) 582-7001.

ZONING

Monday, noting that with a limited busy season, the outdoor displays are very important to their businesses.

Round Lake Bookstore owner Bill DuPont said, "Our season is about 10 weeks. During that time we have to generate about 75 percent of the income to keep us going for the rest of the year."

He said the rack of books he places outside his store prompts people to pause and sometimes come into the store.

"Don't use draconian measures to penalize us and then complain in the winter when you have seven or 10 vacant buildings," he added.

Cindy Flora, owner of the clothing store Halfway to the Top agreed saying that the two small racks of clothes that she places near her entrance are "imperative for me" and lets would-be-shoppers know that there is another clothing store on her block of the downtown.

However, city planner Mike Spencer also noted that the city has received many complaints about the way the downtown looks with merchandise — especially T-shirts hanging outside shops on Bridge Street, although no audience members voiced complaints Monday.

He also pointed out that the ordinance won't go into effect for 30 days, which will get downtown merchants through most of the rest of their busy season. He said the ordinance could be revised again at any point and said the planning commission will revisit the matter over the winter to see if there is compromise that might be found.

The council ultimately approved the new ordinance by a 5-1 vote with council member Gabe Campbell casting the lone dissenting vote. Campbell's dissent was not related to the outdoor merchandise matter, but instead he said he still wasn't comfortable with all of the ordinance's elements, particularly protections in the scenic reserve zone.

The other issue that drew public comment during the hearing was concerns from some residents on Dixon Avenue about a controversial house and boathouse project that is currently under construction on the north shore of Round Lake. The project has been the source of numerous lawsuits in recent years involving the city, the owner and neighboring property owners. The dispute has centered around the size and scale of the project and how it was approved by the city. Some of the lawsuits surrounding the project are still pending with the Michigan Court of Appeals.

Spencer said although the city's actions in approving the project have been upheld in several court cases to date, some of the issues that came to light as a result of dispute over the project have been addressed in the new ordinance.

Family services program looks to 'bag' support

RYAN BENTLEY
Northern Michigan Review

Child and Family Services of Northwestern Michigan has functional as well as symbolic goals for the small paper bags it's distributing this summer in newspapers.

The bags are part of the organization's 24th annual Brown Bag Campaign in support of foster care, and are being distributed through the Charlevoix Courier, the Petoskey News-Review and other publications around the region. The campaign has raised more than $224,000 for such needs.

Monetary donations in support of foster care can be placed inside the bags and mailed to Child and Family Services.

Also, "there is some symbolism there," Child and Family Services marketing and public relations director Gina Aranki said. "Kids often come into foster care on short notice and very suddenly, with their belongings stuffed into paper or plastic bags."

Along with funding support, Child and Family Services is interested in reaching out to people who'd consider becoming foster parents.

"It's also a reminder that we need people that have the room in their hearts and homes to become foster and adoptive parents to them," Child and Family Services chief executive officer Jim Scherrer said. "We are grateful to everyone who has helped make this effort so successful. We're hoping for a stellar 24th year."

Child and Family Services averages about 110 children a day in out-of-home placement, and has served more than 16,000 children in foster care since 1937. Children are placed in foster care because of abuse, neglect, or delinquency, and range in age from newly born to 18 years. While foster care is its largest program, Child and Family Services also has offerings in adoption, intensive family preservation, supervised visitation and exchange, counseling, parenting education, and advocacy.

Aranki noted that Child and Family Services tries to line up foster-care resources in a way that minimizes disruptions for children receiving them.

"It's real important for us to keep kids in their home communities with foster care," she said.

Horse Liniment Erases Pain

HIALEAH, FL — An ingredient often used to treat inflammation in racehorse's legs, is now back on the market in its original doctor recommended clinical strength formula.

According to a national drug store survey, the formula at one time became so popular that it rose to the top of pharmacy sales for topical pain relievers. But the company marketing the product at the time changed the formula and sales plummeted. One of the inventors of the original formula has brought it back to the market under the trade name ARTH ARREST and says it can relieve pain for millions.

ARTH ARREST works by a dual mechanism where one ingredient relieves pain immediately, while a second ingredient seeks out and destroys the pain messenger signal before it can be sent to the brain. Considered a medical miracle by some, the ARTH ARREST formula is useful in the treatment of painful disorders ranging from minor aches and pains to more serious conditions such as arthritis, bursitis, tendonitis, & more.

ARTH ARREST is available in a convenient roll-on applicator at pharmacies without a prescription or call 1-800-339-3301. Now at Charlevoix residents (from left) Jenna Good, 12, mom Chris Good, and Caroline Jarema, 12, pull weeds from the petunia beds, Wednesday, as Molly, the Good family dog greets passersby. The three and many others pitched in Wednesday evening for a community weeding of the petunias that line U.S. 31 in Charlevoix.

Second petunia weeding draws better turnout

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

After a busier-than-normal summer, all that's left for volunteers with the Keep Charlevoix Beautiful organization is some watering and then some decisions about the future of the community's well-known annual petunia display.

Organization board president Aaron Wilkin said he and the rest of the board were pleased with the turnout for the second of two petunia weeding events that they hosted this year.

Wilkin estimated about 80-90 people turned Wednesday out to pull weeds from the five miles of petunia beds that stretch from one end of the city to the other. That's easily double the number who turned out for the first weeding event in late June.

After three decades of overseeing the petunia display this year was the first that the organization called on community volunteers to weed the flower beds using two events modeled after the annual planting day in late May.

The community support for the weeding events will play an important role in the organization's decision on how it will handle the display in the future.

The group had to move to community volunteers for the work this year after a program using inmates from the Charlevoix County Jail that had worked well for several previous years became unavailable this year.

Last week board members put up six baskets on the top of Bridge Street's south hill as a test for how the annual petunia display would look if it were taken from the traditional curbside flower beds and moved into 300 baskets along the same route. The organization will use community feedback on the basket idea as another factor in planning for future displays.

Wilkin said since the test baskets have gone up, the board continues to get a wide array of reactions.

"Many people say they like the look of the baskets, but many of the people weeding (Wednesday) said they preferred the flower beds. It (the response) varies quite a bit," he said.

Wilkin offered thanks on behalf of the board to those who turned out to help weed, estimating that 80-90 percent of the beds were weeded. He also offered his thanks to Dairy Grille, which offered free ice cream cones to volunteers when the weeding was done Wednesday.

Wilkin added that in the coming months the organization will do more, such as online surveys and other methods, to try to gauge community sentiment on the petunia display.

Youth sell their crafts Saturday in Charlevoix

The Charlevoix Public Library will host a youth craft show 10:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 10, at the library.

The show is an opportunity for kids to show off the diversity of their imaginations and talents and to step into a business venture.

"It's a wonderful way for our kids to learn some valuable business lessons and earn a little extra money," said Audrey Shapiro, children's services coordinator.

The kids have to make their own wares, plan and set-up their own booth, and then sell their gifts during the show. For more information, call (231) 237-7350.

Free health fair Aug. 15

More than a dozen health professionals will be on hand from 9 a.m.-1 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 15, at the Charlevoix Farmers market to provide free services and information. The farmers market takes place in East Park, along US 31 in downtown Charlevoix.

"The Charlevoix Farmers Market has evolved to be more than just a place to come and get fresh, local food," said market manager Bethany Pearson. It is now a community resource, one that is working towards the health and general welfare of our community. That is why we have decided to offer these services."

As of press time, participating health professionals include Ace High Crossfit, Beacon Dental Center, Charlevoix Area Hospital, Consumers Mutual Insurance, It Works Global, Lakeview Dentistry, Randall Chiropractic Clinic and Ricks McClure Chiropractic.

If your health-related business would like a booth spot, or for general market information contact the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce by e-mailing pearson@charlevoix.org or call (231) 547-2101.

WATER

began the tedious job of flushing nearly every one of the city's 250 fire hydrants.

Elliott said when that work is complete Wednesday or early today, Thursday, crews will take initial samples of the water from various parts of the system. Then, likely sometime late Thursday, crews will take another set of samples. If those tests come back "clean," state regulations require the city to wait another 24 hours to take another round of samples before it can lift the boil advisory.

"Best case scenario, late Friday or early Saturday," Elliott said.

In an update emailed to the Charlevoix Courier at 6 a.m. today, Elliott said crews were just finishing up after working through the night flushing hydrants and collecting the first round of water samples and sending them to the lab. He also confirmed, "If everything goes as planned, we should be able to lift the boil water advisory on Saturday morning."

The problem arose, quite literally, from a perfect storm of circumstances, Elliot explained.

The city's north and south side water systems are tied together by three water mains that run under the Pine River Channel. Two are by U.S. Coast Guard Station Charlevoix and one is near the west end of the channel. Two of the mains are newer 12-inch mains. The third, which is one of the two by the Coast Guard Station, is a much older six-inch main that had not been in use for some time. However a recent "valve exercise" operation (a system maintenance function in which valves are opened and closed to make sure they function properly) allowed water to get into — and out of — the old underwater six-inch main which had a break in it. Normally the positive pressure of the water leaking out would have prevented untreated water from entering the system. However, early Wednesday morning, a storm rolled through the area and that's when officials suspect a lightning strike caused an electrical problem at the water plant. The electrical problem prevented the alarms that would normally have notified crews of the dwindling pressure from going off and pressure in the system ebbed away around 5 a.m.

In the meantime, the boil advisory remains in place. The advisory reads: "Bring all water to a boil, let it boil for one minute, and let it cool before using, or use bottled water. Boiled or bottled water should be used for drinking, making ice, brushing teeth, washing dishes, and preparing food. Boiling kills bacteria and other organisms in the water. Continue using boiled or bottled water until further notice."

An additional update issued by city officials at 8:45 a.m. Thursday, reads, "Because of the increased chlorine content (in the water system) you may notice an increased smell of chlorine. This could last for a few days until things are back to normal. The flushing that is being done may also stir up some rust in the water for a short time. If you notice rust or discoloration in the water then you may have to run it through your faucet for up to a half hour to clear it out."

The water problem has caused problems for restaurants, convenience stores, and Charlevoix Area Hospital, which passed out bottled water and hand sanitizer and canceled scheduled surgeries for the day Wednesday. Hospital officials said they planned to resume all scheduled procedures Thursday using special soap that will kill any bacteria that might be in the water.

STEVE ZUCKER/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

City of Charlevoix water department crew members flush a fire hydrant on Park Avenue around 6 p.m. Wednesday as part of the city's efforts to rid the water system of possible bacterial contamination.

NOISE

that we as a community are willing to endure these for the good of Charlevoix," Barron said pointing to parking, traffic and a street closure because of the carnival rides as examples.

"I guess what our request would be to those residents in Charlevoix and especially those on the north shore, there is a certain inconvenience you are going to experience for four nights out of the year, for three hours per night, please endure that for the good of the community."

The audience responded with loud applause, after which Porter said he agrees that "Venetian is the single-most important part of festival season in Charlevoix" and thanked Barron for efforts and his information.

Following the discussion, the consensus of the board was that it was satisfied with the status quo of the festival's concert operations.

Hearing this, no one in the audience offered any comments on the matter.

The council also chose to take no action on another agenda item Porter had asked to be placed on the agenda: The practice of parking the car that will be raffled off by the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce for its largest annual fundraiser in Bridge Park.

Porter said he doesn't feel that the park is an appropriate location to display the car.

"My feeling this: It's a public park, not a place for an automobile to be parked for six weeks," Porter said. He also said that he doesn't think a car on display as part of a raffle makes a good impression on people entering the downtown from the north as they cross the bridge.

Explaining the history of the fundraiser, chamber president Erin Beons said the raffle goes back about 20 years and noted that before she became president of the chamber, it used to be displayed in East Park's Plaza B. She noted when she came on board, she and city manager Rob Straebel decided Bridge Park was a more appropriate location. She added that the chamber staff regularly has the car washed and moves it whenever needed for functions in the park.

None of the other council members voiced agreement with Porter's concern and the council took no action to change the practice.

Junior Golf program wraps up season

The Charlevoix County Junior Golf wrapped up its 2013 season recently with its annual awards day.

Program director Dean Davenport announced the various skills test winners and tournament champions and added, "It was another successful season. We had 78 enrolled and for the first time, we had more boys than girls."

Davenport noted that this year's group was particularly attentive and displayed "great potential."

He offered thanks to the local golf courses that offer their support for the program including Antrim Dells, Belvedere, Charlevoix Country Club and the city's Charlevoix Golf Club. All of these courses allow the program to use their facilities at no charge.

The program also benefitted from the assistance of 25 mentors who helped in the instruction of the participants. This year marked the 19th year of the Charlevoix County Junior Golf Program.

You're WELCOME in Bellaire!

With Water as the backdrop of life in Bellaire, our lovely village has much to offer its visitors & residents. Swimming, Boating, Golfing & beach-combing are summer activities that give way to fall driving tours along some of Michigan's most scenic back roads. It is home to Shorts Brewery, Shanty Creek Resort, seven golf courses & 3 award winning nationally acclaimed Bed & Breakfast Inn's!

Our unique gift, clothing & art shops plus great places to eat and drink as well as a traditional movie theater make Bellaire a day-into-evening destination. Annual Events include: Rubber Ducky Festival, Harvest Festival & Scarecrow Extravaganza, Holiday Gift Fair & more. Numerous accommodations include Motels, Inns, Resorts, cabins & campgrounds.

So come and get to know Bellaire so named for the cleanness and purity of the air. Play for a day or for an extended stay!

CITY OF CHARLEVOIX
NOTICE OF ZONING ORDINANCE ADOPTION
ORDINANCE NO. 762 of 2013
ZONING ORDINANCE

A zoning ordinance regulating the development and use of land has been adopted by the legislative body (the City Council) of the City of Charlevoix. The new zoning ordinance was adopted on August 5, 2013 in accordance with the Michigan Zoning Enabling Act, Public Act 110 of 2006 (the "Zoning Act") and becomes effective on September 4, 2013. This new zoning ordinance completely repeals and replaces the prior zoning ordinance, which was adopted in 1978. In addition, the official Zoning Map for the City of Charlevoix was also amended to reflect new zoning district names. Numerous properties were rezoned based on current or future land use, market changes, or other factors.

The new zoning ordinance, which consists of 19 articles, is summarized below.

Article 1, Purpose and Title provides the official title of the ordinance, sets forth its overall purpose and intent, and provides requirements for interpretation, conflicts with other laws, and vested rights.

Article 2, Definitions, defines the particular terms used in the ordinance.

Article 3, Mapped Districts, lists the zoning districts within the City and provides rules for interpreting the City Zoning Map.

Article 4, Residential Districts, establishes the R1 Single Family Residential District, the R2 Single Family Residential District, the R2A Two Family Residential District, the R4 Planned Residential District, and the PC Residential Private Clubs District. The permitted uses by right and special land uses allowed in each district are listed, as are the development requirements in each district (minimum lot area and lot width, maximum building height, front/rear/side yard setbacks, maximum lot coverage, minimum residential floor area). In addition, specific requirements related to multiple family housing are specified.

Article 5, Nonresidential Districts, establishes the C-M Commercial Mixed Use District, the C1 General Commercial District, the CBD Central Business District, the CH Commercial Hospitality District, the MC Marine Commercial District, the SR Scenic Reserve District, the PF Public Facilities District, the PO Professional Office District, and the I Industrial District. The permitted uses by right and special land uses allowed in each district are listed, as are the development requirements in each district (minimum lot area and lot width, maximum building height, front/rear/side yard setbacks, maximum lot coverage, and minimum residential floor area). In addition, specific district requirements are listed.

Article 6, Overlay Districts, establishes four overlay districts based on unique land use requirements or conditions. This chapter includes allowed uses and requirements for development within each of these Districts that differ from those of the underlying zoning district.

Article 7, Use Requirements, contains requirements pertaining to specific uses in addition to the development requirements listed for each zoning district. This includes specific requirements for (partial list): accessory buildings and uses, bed and breakfasts, home occupations, uses accessory to hotel/motel, single and two family dwellings, site condominiums, sexually oriented businesses, drive-through restaurants, solar panels, medical use of marijuana, vehicle repair (minor and major), vehicle wash establishments, and wireless telecommunications facilities.

Article 8, General Provisions, outlines provisions that apply generally to all zoning districts. These include (partial list): determining the number of principal uses per lot, determination of uses similar to those listed as permitted or special land uses, fences and walls, allowed projections into required setbacks, maximum lot width to depth ratio, exceptions to height requirements, building grades and lot drainage, corner clearance and visibility, private roads and shared driveways, excavations, essential services, outdoor swimming pool requirements, and temporary uses.

Article 9, Site Development Requirements, provides the requirements for landscaping and buffers, general building appearance and exterior lighting of uses.

Article 10, Off-street Parking, Loading, Access and Circulation, establishes minimum requirements for off-street parking for all uses, including size of spaces, parking setbacks, and provisions for deferring, sharing and modifying the required parking. Minimum design standards are also established.

Article 11, Signs, specifies the type of signs permitted by district and the maximum size and height allowed. Other provisions relate to sign permits, lighting of signs and location.

Article 12, Site Plan Review lists the requirements for site plan applications and outlines the process and standards for consideration of a site plan.

Article 13, Special Land Uses outlines the process and standards for consideration of special land uses within each zoning district.

Article 14, PUD Planned Unit Development District, establishes the PUD Planned Unit Development District. This article specifies qualifying conditions, permitted uses and development requirements (density, open space, etc.) for PUDs. The article also lists the general design standards that all PUDs must meet. Finally, the chapter includes the application requirements and process for review and approval of a PUD and the review standards that must be met for approval.

Article 15, Nonconformities, identifies the rights to which all nonconforming uses, structures and lots are entitled and specifies the limitations applicable to expansion and replacement of certain nonconformities.

Article 16, Administration and Enforcement states the duties of the Zoning Administrator, gives the City Council the power to set fees for zoning related requests, allows the City to require performance guarantees, and a declaration that a violation of the Zoning Ordinance is a misdemeanor and that the City has the ability commence appropriate action in a court of jurisdiction.

Article 17, Zoning Board of Appeals, states the membership requirements for the Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA), the jurisdiction of the ZBA, and the process and standards for consideration of an interpretation, administrative appeal, or dimensional variance.

Article 18, Amendments, defines the process for amending the text of the ordinance and for rezoning of land, and provides a process for conditional rezoning (by which an owner voluntarily places conditions upon the use or development of the land in exchange for rezoning approval).

Article 19, Enactment, establishes the legal adoption of the Zoning Ordinance.

Copies of the newly enacted zoning ordinance and the zoning map are available for public review or purchased at the Charlevoix City Clerk's office, 210 State Street, Charlevoix, Michigan, on weekdays during regular office hours from 8 a.m. – 5 p.m. The ordinance is also available online at www.[illegible]

This Notice of Adoption is being published pursuant to the Zoning Act. The Zoning Act supersedes the provisions of the City Charter regarding notice relating to the adoption of a new zoning ordinance.

Ordinance # 762 was enacted on the 5th day of August, A.D. 2013, by the Charlevoix City Council as follows:

It's a sure sign that the start of another school year isn't far away when the Charlevoix Rayder football program's pre-season football practices get under way as they did this week. Crews take steps to prevent repeat of recent water woes

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

"One good turn deserves a big headache."

This twist on an ageless axiom might well have served as the motto for the Charlevoix Water Department crew last week when the fates ganged up on them and the rest of the city, setting up a set of circumstances that created a crisis with the city's water supply for more than two and a half days.

As of Wednesday, city department of public works superintendent Pat Elliott was still adding up the numbers on the incident and working to make sure it doesn't happen again.

Elliott explained that genesis of the problem goes back many years when an old 6-inch water main under the Pine River Channel was abandoned. Elliott said crews have since learned that on one side of the channel the old main was completely capped off from the rest of the system; on the other side it was only isolated by closing a valve. Elliott said the changes made to the system at that time were apparently not properly recorded in the city's drawings of the water distribution system.

Fast forward to Tuesday, Aug. 6, 2013, when water department crews were out "exercising" valves in the system. "Exercising" (opening and closing) valves in a water system is a recommended routine maintenance procedure that helps ensure that valves in the system work properly when needed, Elliott said.

One of the valves they exercised was the one that leads to the old 6-inch main under the channel. This wouldn't have mattered much if crews had known about the old broken 6-inch main and returned the valve in the closed position. But, Elliott explained, good practice in a water system is to leave all (or as many as possible) of the valves open to avoid creating dead-ends in the system. So, crews left the valve open thinking they were restoring better water flow to a perfectly good portion of the system, when in reality they were unknowingly creating a major leak in the system.

The leak went undetected for more than 12 hours until nearly all of the water was drained from the city's system around 5 a.m. on Wednesday, Aug. 7.

How much water?

A lot.

Elliott said really accurate numbers may be difficult to nail down, but here's a start. The city's 300,000 gallon water tower was emptied, a backup tank at the water treatment plant was also emptied plus a good portion of the water that was out in the distribution system. Elliott said it's possible that more than a million gallons of water drained into the channel during the incident.

Elliot

Normally, such a large leak of water would have been noticed by someone when water bubbled up from underground, but with this leak being in the channel, no one noticed. To make matters worse, alarms at the water treatment plant that should notify water department staff of low pressure in the system didn't work because of an electrical problem.

Fall Pure Michigan campaign

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

The heart of the Charlevoix tourism season may be soon headed for its annual autumn cool-off, but area business leaders are hoping that a second dose of Pure Michigan magic will stoke some shoulder-season tourism as it seems to have done for the past two summers.

Last year the Charlevoix Convention and Visitor's Bureau teamed up with the state's highly successful and well known Pure Michigan promotional program to create a radio advertisement using actor Tim Allen's voice, that played on downstate stations (outside of Detroit) for weeks trying to entice people to come visit Charlevoix the Beautiful. The program also includes an online element that features links to Charlevoix information on the Pure Michigan website.

When last September rolled around, all accounts among the Charlevoix hospitality and retail community were that the campaign had a marked impact on tourism in the area.

In a letter written earlier this summer, bureau officials said the Charlevoix Web page was in the top 20 most visited pages on Michigan.org last year (previously it was not even in the top 300), which has been the leading state tourism page in the U.S. for the last six years.

"The Charlevoix Pure Michigan radio commercial was listened to by over a million people. Last year many businesses in Charlevoix reported substantial growth, if not their best year ever, and credit the Pure Michigan campaign with some of this success," the bureau wrote.

Based on those results, the Charlevoix Convention and Visitor's Bureau signed up for another year and

City hosting two economic presentations

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

It's an issue that's been loitering around town like a teenager who needs a job. What to do to stimulate year-round business development, especially in the downtown.

The topic regularly comes up at city meetings, during city election campaigns and especially in the winter months when business activity in the downtown slows to a crawl.

It's an issue city officials have been wrestling with for some time and are now gearing up to take another run at it, starting with two upcoming public forums. Both events will take place in the Charlevoix Public Library Community Rooms A and B.

The first presentation, which will take place at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, Aug. 20, features Robert Gibbs, a leading urban retail planning consultant who specializes in adapting existing downtowns to the new economy. The lecture will focus on new trends in retail and how they may be applied to Charlevoix.

Gibbs

According to a biography provided by the city, for more than 20 years, Gibbs has been a leading urban retail planning consultant in North America. He has completed more than 500 public and private retail consulting projects across the United States, Pacific Rim and Europe, including projects in Chicago, Denver, Portland and Seattle. A frequent speaker for the Congress for New Urbanism, International Council of Shopping Centers and Urban Land Institute, Gibbs has just completed a book on the theory and practice of urban retail, "Principles of Urban Retail Planning and Development."

Gibbs has been a pioneer and leader in this movement to implement the environmentally sustainable principles of traditional town planning and smart growth. He is especially noted for his direct approach to increasing market share

2012 Emmet-Charlevoix County Fair

Country star Justin Moore will be headlining at the Emmet-Charlevoix County Fair this year which will be in full swing from Tuesday, Aug. 20, to Sunday, Aug. 25. Moore, who will perform Thursday, Aug. 22 in the 2,700-seat grandstand, will be the first national headliner to perform in the fair grandstand in 35 years.

The fair officially begins on Saturday, Aug. 17, with 4-H competitions, with the carnival opening on Tuesday.

"We planned for two years, working with local radio stations and production companies, trying to pick the right artist for a family-oriented show. If the ticket pre-sales are any indication, Justin Moore was a good pick. I expect this show will sell out," Agnes Shaw, Emmet-Charlevoix County Fair manager said.

Another musical highlight of the fair is Boyne River Remedy at 7 p.m. on Wednesday, Aug. 21. The high-energy, positive show will benefit Brother Dan's Food Pantry.

"It is part of our mission to give back to the local community. We use local booster groups to take tickets at the gate, for example, so that they can raise funds," Shaw said.

The fair has been located on the Emmet County Fairgrounds property at 1129 Charlevoix Ave. in Petoskey for more than 100 years. It started before 1905 as the Emmet County Agricultural Society, according to Shaw.

"The fair is an agricultural showcase for the public," Shaw said. "Originally farmers brought the best of what they had for the public to see."

True to its origins, this year's fair will feature more than 500 animals from gerbils and mice to hogs, horses and llamas.

There will be monster truck demonstrations, horse pulls, daily kids' shows, a dog agility show, a carnival, as well as displays of and prizes for local talents in photography, antiques, knitting, sewing, crocheting, baking, flower-arranging and gardening.

Here is a rundown of the fair's activities.

On Monday, Aug. 19, a 4-H horse show at 11 a.m., an open class swine show at 4 p.m., a 4-H market livestock swine show at 6 p.m., and 4-H horse jumping at 7 p.m. are featured.

Carnival rides open 2 p.m. on Tuesday, Aug. 20, and at noon every other day. Nick's Kids' Show runs three to four times daily, Tuesday-Saturday, Aug. 21-24. The Community Center, featuring music and displays, is open 10 a.m.-9 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday.

On Tuesday, senior citizens and handi-capable citizens receive free gate admission. At 11 a.m., 4-H horse fitting and showing and western classes are featured. The open pony pull starts at noon, followed by the open mule pull at 2:30 p.m. Country band Second Time Around performs in the Community Building from 3-6 p.m. At 4 p.m. 4-H members show their open class lambs, followed at 7 p.m. by the 4-H horse speed show. Also at 7 p.m. is the karaoke preliminary round.

On Wednesday, the 4-H small critter show begins at 9 a.m., followed at 11 a.m. by the 4-H reining horse show.

At noon, on Wednesday, the fair goes to the dogs with an agility show. At 1 p.m. is the goat show, immediately followed by the exotic animal show. At 3 p.m. the open beef and dairy show begins. At 4 p.m. the 4-H market livestock dairy feeder begins, followed at 6 p.m. by the 4-H livestock beef show.

The Highland Dancers perform in the Community Center on the Nick's Kids' stage at 6 p.m. on Wednesday. Positive musical group, Boyne River Remedy gives a benefit concert for Brother Dan's Food Pantry at 7 p.m. in the grandstand. Once in a Blue Moon, a narrated tour of sunset and moonrise by Dark Sky Park program director Mary Stewart Adams, will celebrate the wonder of rhythm found in the natural world at 8 p.m.

The 4-H poultry show begins at 9 a.m. on Thursday, followed by the waterfowl show at 11 a.m. and the market livestock show at 3 p.m. Headliner and country artist Justin Moore performs in the grandstand at 7 p.m.

On Friday, Aug. 23, all carnival rides are a dollar all day. The 4-H dressage class and 4-H trail classes start at 11 a.m. on Friday. Autocross racing is featured at 7 p.m.

The Monster Truck Shootout is featured in the grandstand at 7 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 24.

On Sunday, Aug. 25, the fair wraps up with carnival rides from noon-6 p.m.

Daily fair gate admission is $5 for those 13 years and older. Grandstand events prices vary.

Stutzman hired for encore as band director

ANNE KELLY
Courier Staff Writer

Stutzman

Gary Stutzman will bring his musical career as a band director full circle when he returns to Charlevoix High School as its next band director this fall. Stutzman, who was born and raised in Charlevoix, graduated in the mid-60s from Charlevoix High School where he played in the school band under well-known director Clarence Odmark, for whom the Odmark Performance Pavilion in East Park is named.

Stutzman graduated from Northern Michigan University, taught for a year at Flint Northern High School then returned to his home town in the fall of 1970, becoming assistant to Odmark. Upon Odmark's retirement, Stutzman took over his predecessor's position and continued to direct a flourishing band program in the Charlevoix schools for a decade. Stutzman left teaching temporarily to spend six years working with a professional fundraising company in Colorado and subsequently Grand Haven. He relocated to Harbor Springs in 1990. In 1996, Stutzman built from scratch and directed a small but successful band program for the newly established charter school, Northwest Academy, where he remained until he retired in 2012.

Returning to the town and the school that nurtured his musical talents is a satisfying encore in teaching and directing for Stutzman.

"It's exciting to come home," Stutzman said. "I want to be a gatherer (of student musicians)."

He said he is grateful for the opportunity to come back to work with a program that has so much tradition, great student musicians, and beautiful, state-of-the-art facilities.

"In Charlevoix, we have one of the finest community bands in the country and the members of this group have all started their musical careers in a school program in some school," Stutzman said. "Band programs are important to the full development of an individual and I feel blessed to have the chance to work here ... in the town that I graduated from with great young people that want to be the best that they can be."

East Jordan senior center eyes move, build

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

MORGAN SHERBURNE/NEWS-REVIEW

Butch Frye, with the East Jordan senior center advisory board, and Shirley Gillespie, director of the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging, speak to the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners about buying property for a senior center in East Jordan.

The East Jordan Senior Center advisory board is exploring options to build a new senior center.

Butch Frye, with the East Jordan senior center advisory board, approached the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners to explore options for help with purchasing a $29,900 piece of property that's nearly six acres. The property is located within East Jordan city limits.

Frye is getting out in front of a time when the center will have to move. Its lease expires September of 2017, at which point the city has asked the senior center to move out of the building.

"I'm just trying to get my ducks in a row," he said.

The senior center recently received its nonprofit status, which means it can begin raising funds to help purchase the property.

But before it will be able to raise enough money, Frye hoped to secure some funds from the county to lock down the property.

Bryan Graham, civil counsel for Charlevoix County, said contributing to the senior center with county funds is legal.

"But we must be very careful," said commission chair Joel Evans. "If indeed we give to East Jordan, we have to give to Boyne City."

Graham said Boyne City and Bellaire paid for their senior centers through a millage on the township in which the centers are located.

The commissioners agreed that it was a good project, but advised Frye to seek funding elsewhere first.

Larry Sullivan suggested turning to such founding sources as the Charlevoix County Community Foundation for the property. Evans also suggested that Frye go to the South Arm Township meeting to see what kind of money the township might be able to provide.

"It sounds like a great idea, but it's always about the funding," said Evans.

The commission on aging leases the building from East Jordan for a nominal fee and in turn has paid for $140,000 in repairs of the building. That money comes from Charlevoix County, said Evans.

Shirley Gillespie, director of Charlevoix County's commission on aging, supports the move to a new piece of property.

"It's a great idea, a great location. It could resolve so many issues we're facing right now," said Gillespie.

The commissioners also renewed an inter-local agreement between the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office and the Grand Traverse Band of Ottawa and Chippewa Indians. The agreement is renewed every four years, and allows for mutual law enforcement assistance between the tribe and the county.

But that doesn't mean tribal police will be able to pull Charlevoix County residents over, said Browe and Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider.

"We special-deputize the tribal officers so they can act on our behalf and they swear us in as tribal officers so we can go on tribal lands and enforce laws for them until they get there," said Schneider.

That only happens when each agency requests help. For example, said Schneider, there is a piece of Grand Traverse Band tribal property off Ranney Road in East Jordan. If an urgent situation happened there, those involved would have to wait until tribal officers drove over from Suttons Bay.

"We would enforce the laws for the tribe at their request and vice versa," said Schneider. "And they can hold down a situation until we get there."

Finally, the board appointed a new member to the planning commission. Tom Wieland had served on the Charlevoix County Planning Commission for 46 years, and died after a battle with cancer in June. The board appointed Ron Van Zee of Charlevoix to fill the vacancy.

Fire damages Norwood Township home

A fire sparked by a faulty bathroom fan caused damage to a home in Norwood Township early Friday, Aug 9.

City of Charlevoix Fire Chief Paul Ivan said firefighters were called to the home of John and Kristy Belfy at 3006 Spade Road to a report of fire and smoke coming from the roof of the house.

Ivan said when fire crews arrived they found smoke coming from the vents in eaves, but the fire and the damage was isolated to the bathroom ceiling, where a ceiling fan failed. Damage to the home was limited to the bathroom and ceiling.

There were no injuries reported in the incident and firefighters were on the scene for about an hour helping to remove burned insulation.

Construction crews began work this week on a one-block section of Garfield Street between Bridge and State streets. The work will include widening the street by four feet, new water, sewer and storm sewer, new curbs and new pavement. City officials hope to have the bulk of the work completed on the street before school starts. After that, crews will move to Lewis Street for a similar project.

Candidate Schauer coming Aug. 19

Mark Schauer, 2014 Democratic candidate for Michigan Governor Schauer will meet the public in the Charlevoix Public Library community room B from 5-6 p.m. Monday, August 19.

Schauer, a former United States Congressman and five-term Michigan State Legislator, was born and raised in Howell, and now lives with his wife Christine live in Battle Creek. He is a graduate of Albion College.

Schauer's stop in Charlevoix is part of a multi-community tour of Northern Michigan and will be hosted by the Charlevoix County Democratic Party.

Gardening on the wild side

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

Years ago I read a botanist's account of his visit to a kitchen garden in rural Central America. What he described hardly seemed like a garden, even to that observer. He recounted the swarming vines, a complete lack of rows of plants, but a lot of vigorous growth and a very high productivity of those things favored by the garden's caretakers. I thought then, "I want a garden like that." This year I have come as close as may be possible in northern Michigan.

By this time in the summer season, my seed plants for next spring's lamb's quarter plants are taller than I am. There are not a lot of them, but they are scattered throughout the garden space. If they produce too much seed, it can be harvested and it makes a nutritious gruel. The red-leaved winter mustard has already gone to seed, and will produce a late fall crop of greens when the garden is cleared.

My garden space is only about 60 feet by 15 feet, but it offers an abundance of fine summer food and flavor. Right now there are a dozen to 20 large volunteer dill plants, ready to flavor the in-season salmon that are beginning to turn up in Lake Michigan. The cilantro leaves are mostly gone, but the plants are growing the small seed balls that will be next winter's coriander.

There are a few things confined to rows. Multi-colored chard is abundant, the yellow Italian beans are productive enough to provide some for the freezer, and the kohlrabi provides a fine addition to the small-headed cabbage when slaw is on the menu. We can dig potatoes of at least three kinds, including some volunteers sprouted from those small tubers missed in last fall's harvest.

The last of this year's golden cheddar cauliflower is holding up well in the heat. And all four types of summer squash are producing as only they can. Having four quite different types is my solution to the plague of Zucchini so troublesome at this time of year.

The cucumbers are vining over some of the tomatoes and into the edge of the arugula patch that is also seeding next year's crop of that spicy green. There are no early tomatoes, although one volunteer from last year's plants showed some promise of early fruit. Peppers are thriving, but we usually wait for them to color before harvest.

The sweet potatoes will have to wait until frost for any harvest. They need a very long season, longer than we have here most years.

The only other volunteer that appears each year is a variety of artemisia or wormwood that I use each summer to make enough vermouth for next year's martinis.

All in all, I have not yet achieved the wildness of that Central American kitchen garden, but progress is being made.

Roger Knutson is a professor emeritus of biology from Luther College in Decorah, Iowa, where he taught for 30 years. He holds master's degree and a doctorate from the botany department at Michigan State University.

Letters to the editor

Thanks for parade efforts

Editor:

Thank you to Don Brown for your untiring efforts in restoring veterans to the Venetian Parade. Assembling personnel, vehicles, flags, bunting, etc. is no easy task. You, a former Army first sergeant, know how much we old-timers appreciate what you have accomplished. May it continue for years to come.

Gene Bridge,
Belton, Texas.

Thanks to city, lifeguards

The community of Charlevoix is so lucky to have lifeguards at the outstanding Lake Michigan Beach. Our church, Greensky Hill Indian Mission UMC, held a successful youth heritage camp on our historic grounds in July and we transported all the campers to Michigan Beach for swimming. They had a great time and all the adults felt very secure in seeing the lifeguards monitoring the beach so well. We thank the Charlevoix community for the support of the beaches and lifeguards. The evaluations from students at the end of camp said they wanted more swim time.

Sincerely,
Judy Johnson

Gun laws make it easier for the bad guys

Editor:

Laws only apply to law abiding citizens and not to criminals: Gun laws that restrict my ability to protect myself, family, community and country only make it easier for the bad guys to take my possessions, freedom or my life. Since the right to carry concealed law passed in Florida, all crime has been reduced dramatically. Guns don't kill people any more than pencils misspell words, so the only way to stop a bad guy with a gun is with a good guy with a gun. Any prohibition on guns will only help the sellers of black market guns, to the criminals, and place all law abiding citizens at an extreme disadvantage. Law enforcement even says that we are responsible for our own safety until they arrive. Those who don't study and learn from history are destined to repeat it. The first thing to do to enslave a people is to disarm them and make them dependent upon the government as is happening in our United States.

Lenin said, "Destroy the family and you destroy the society" which is being done, little by little, through the same moral degradation that led to the downfall of the Roman Empire.

Wake-up America before it's too late and we lose all our freedoms. We need to call our representatives at the federal and state levels and tell them to read the United States Constitution until they understand what the Founding Fathers intended and to follow it to the letter. Duty and Honor For God and Country.

LOOKING BACK...

The Bridge Street House hotel was built in 1881 and went through four more incarnations as the Noble Hotel (1896), the Hotel Bartlett (1898), Baker's Inn (1908), and finally the Hotel Charlevoix (year unknown). This very large, long building which stretched from the Bridge Street sidewalk almost to Round Lake burned on June 7, 1935. The city fathers saw the resulting view through to the lake and visualized a magnificent park that ideally might stretch from the channel bridge to Antrim Street. The few lots to the hotel's north had already been cleared of their buildings. The hotel followed. On its porch railing appears a sign that reads "PAGEANT HDQR'S." This was the year of the first Venetian Festival, and the festivities were being organized in the hotel. A few weeks after the fire, the first Venetian Queen, Marge Carey, was crowned in a temproary fort/stockade that went up on the cleared land for the celebration of Michigan's centennial and the Charlevoix County homecoming. Two years later, East Park began to take shape. Now gone were the two buildings to the south, Ed Goldstick's Shoe Hospital, and "Old Reliable Bill the Hatter since 1902, The Best Equiped [sic] Shoe Shine Parlor in the City." At far left, where the ginger ale ad appears, Earl Young would paint a gigantic replica of his wife Irene's sectional map of the Little Traverse Region on the wall of the Main [illegible] Cafe on the Clinton Street corner. This map is currently hanging in the Bridge Street window of the Murdick's Fudge building.

This image is one of 850 in the Charlevoix Historical Society's most recent DVD titled "Charlevoix, Michigan — A Pictorial Journey through 16 Decades." McLaren Northern Michigan announces new president

DeVet to stay on until end of 2013

RACHEL BROUGHAM
Northern Michigan Review

After a four-month search, McLaren Northern Michigan announced today, Wednesday, it has found a new president to replace outgoing president and CEO, Reezie DeVet.

David M. Zechman will take over the reins at the hospital in November. Zechman brings more than 31 years of health care and leadership experience to the hospital, including nearly seven years as a CEO.

"After completing a thorough nationwide search, we are excited to have secured an individual such as David Zechman," said Bob Foster, chairman of the board of trustees. "He has a proven track record in hospital and health system executive management with a passion for clinical quality and service excellence. David's ability to engage physicians and colleagues in providing exceptional patient care will be an asset to McLaren Northern Michigan and the entire community."

Zechman

Zechman has been serving as president and CEO of Ozarks Medical Center in West Plains, Mo. Prior to joining Ozarks Medical Center in 2008, he served as the president and CEO of the recently renamed Lakeside Medical Center, the sole county hospital in Palm Beach County, Fla.

In addition, he has also held senior management positions at Jewish Hospital and St. Mary's HealthCare in Louisville, Ky., and at St. Luke's Health System in Kansas City, Mo.

Zechman is a Fellow in the American College of Healthcare Executives and served as the Missouri Hospital Association president of the Southwest District and as a member of the finance committee and secretary of the Management Services Corporation Board.

"David is such a strong choice," DeVet said. "He has been successful leading a health system offering a full continuum of care, and perhaps more importantly, has a thorough understanding of the challenges facing health care delivery in the rural environment."

DeVet announced in April that she will retire at the end of this year.

By the end of her tenure, she will have spent about four years as president and CEO of McLaren Northern Michigan, which was formerly Northern Michigan Regional Hospital and previously Northern Michigan Hospital.

She joined the health system in 2003 when it was known as Northern Michigan Hospital, as vice president and chief nurse executive. In 2006, she was named chief operating officer. In 2009, DeVet rose to fill the seat of president Tom Mroczkowski, after his sudden death in November of that year.

DeVet will remain in her current position until the end of the year and help with the transition.

Club honors longtime members' efforts

Last week the Charlevoix Area Garden Club recently honored two longtime members for their efforts for the club.

The club honored Marge Dinwiddie for 50 years of Active Service to the Club.

Club officials said Dinwiddie has been an active and enriching part of garden club since 1963. She served twice as president, attained honorary member status in 1988, and was awarded a life membership by the club in 1997.

Club leaders especially recognized the dedication Dinwiddie has exhibited to the Memorial Garden at the corner of East Dixon and Mercer Avenue since 1977. She has also housed and hosted the Garage/Plant Sale for the club since 1981.

Dinwiddie has been "highly valued for: her longevity; direct, thoughtful and considerate approach to life, friends, and events; and her ability to be a life-long learner and giver to this community in myriad ways. Her loyalty and fidelity to this club and, particularly to her friends, is a model for all members. She is the embodiment of the club's mission," club leaders said.

Dinwiddie also received a Golden Rose Award from the club.

Club president Peggy Brennan also recognized Vera McKown for her expertise in planning and executing the District V (Michigan Garden Clubs, Inc.) Spring Meeting at Castle Farms. The event drew 250-plus attendees for a day-long conference including speakers, entertainment, showcasing several local businesses, lunch catered by the Weathervane and a tour of the gardens at the Castle.

McKown spearheaded the event with the help of club members. It was Vera's second time in last 10 years to chair this event.

Hospital to host Affordable Care Act presentations

Lyn Jenks, CEO of Charlevoix Area Hospital, will be presenting several upcoming informational sessions about the Affordable Care Act entitled, "The Affordable Care Act ... Not as Scary as it Sounds."

According to a hospital news release about the sessions, "Changes are coming to health insurance in October. Individual health insurance is now required by the federal government. With these upcoming changes, many people have begun to wonder if the Affordable Care Act will change their current health insurance policies and how they can access the new health insurances exchanges."

Jenks will be presenting on the expected changes resulting from the launch of the act. She will be addressing key questions regarding the individual and business mandates, health insurance exchanges and the expected penalties for not having health insurance coverage.

"We are hopeful that these presentations will help folks understand what the (act) means to them and how they can access the insurance exchange to evaluate and select insurance products that fit their personal and family needs," Jenks said in the release.

The presentations will take place at the following times, dates and locations:

— 5:30 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 22, at Boyne District Library

— 5:30 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 29, at Charlevoix Public Library

— 5:30 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 10 at the East Jordan EMS station

— 5:30 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 17 at Charlevoix Public Library

The sessions are free and open to the public. The length of these presentations will be an hour. Jenks will conclude each meeting with a question and answer session.

For more information about the hospital, visit the hospital's website at cah.org.

Briefs:

Memorial dedication set for Sunday

Hayes Township officials will host a veterans memorial dedication ceremony at 3 p.m. on Sunday, Aug. 18, at the Hayes Township Hall, 09195 Old U.S. 31 North.

Light refreshments will be served after the dedication.

The township has created a Veterans Memorial that was kick started by retired Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater's donation of the first plaque for the veterans of World War I, World War II and the Korean War.

Hayes Township is planning to acquire additional plaques for veterans of other wars in the future.

Help build a bike trail

Join the Little Traverse Conservancy in building mountain bike trails from 9 a.m.-2 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 17, at the Darnton Family Nature Preserve in Wilson Township.

The conservancy is working with local mountain bike groups to create bike-friendly trails on the preserve while keeping the trails appealing to hikers and other users.

Volunteers will help clear trails and are recommended to bring lunch and work gloves.

Veteran of the month: Vincent Olach

The "Veteran of the Month" for August 2013 is Vincent Richard Olach.

He was born April 5, 1928, in Charlevoix and graduated from Charlevoix High School in the class of 1946.

On June 7, 1946, Olach enlisted in the Army, entering into active service in Detroit, beginning a career of 27 years, 2 months and 24 days, of which 5 years, 10 months and 25 days were overseas assignments. Following basic training he was assigned to Headquarters Company, V Corps, Fort Bragg, North Carolina serving as a General Clerk and on Feb. 6, 1948, Olach qualified as a Sharpshooter with the 30 caliber carbine. On July 29, 1948, he was promoted to Sergeant and on June 6, 1949, Olach received an Honorable Discharge for re-enlistment. On Oct. 15, 1950, while stationed at the Munich Military Post, 7851st Quartermasters Depot Group, Munich, Germany, serving as a vocational advisor, he received an Honorable Discharge for re-enlistment. On June 21st, 1951, Olach was promoted to Sergeant First Class and on April 21, 1961, he received an Honorable Discharge to accept an appointment as Warrant Officer Grade One, while assigned to Headquarters Company, U.S. Army Personnel Center, Oakland, Calif., receiving his commission in Washington, D.C. In 1967 Olach enrolled in Hampton Institute, Hampton, Va., graduating in 1971 and received a bachelor of science degree in business management. Olach did a tour of duty in Indochina and on July 28, 1967, he departed the U.S., for his first tour of duty in Vietnam, returning to the U.S. on July 22, 1968. On July 15, 1971, he was promoted to Chief Warrant Officer Grade Four and did a second tour of duty in Vietnam from July 20, 1971, to June 3, 1972. On Aug. 31, 1973, at the U.S. Army Personnel Center, Homestead Air Force Base, Fla., Olach retired from military service receiving an Honorable Discharge and was awarded the following decorations, medals, badges, commendations, citations and campaign ribbons: The National Defense Service Medal with One Oak Leaf Cluster, The World War II Victory Medal, The Army Occupation Medal (Germany), The Vietnam Service Medal, The Vietnam Campaign Medal with 60 Device, The Good Conduct Medal with Clasp and Three Bronze Loops, The Army Commendation Medal with Five Oak Leaf Clusters, The Meritorious Unit Commendation Medal with One Oak Leaf Cluster, The Bronze Star Medal with Two Oak Leaf Clusters, The Air Medal, The Vietnam Cross of Gallantry with Palm, The Vietnam Armed Forces Honor Medal, The Vietnam Armed Forces Reserve Medal, The Vietnam Civil Action Honor Medal, The Meritorious Service Medal and Four Overseas Service Bars (each representing six months foreign service.

Olach

Returning to Charlevoix, Olach went to work on Jan. 1, 1974, as executive director of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce until July 15, 1975, and on Aug. 1, 1975, he became business manger for the Charlevoix Public School System. On July 15, 1989, on Beaver Island, Olach married Janice Louise (Burns) Raecke and on Aug. 1, 1989, he retired to enjoy traveling in the U.S. and Europe, spending time on his boat The Bad Czech and spending time on Beaver Island. On March 28, 2010, Vincent Richard Olach answered the final call and is being honored by his wife Janice, son David and their families.

To honor a veteran, call the program chairman at (231) 588-6067 or on Tuesdays call (231) 582-7811 between 3:30-8:30 p.m. The ceremony may be witnessed at 6:15 p.m. on the first Thursday of each month in front of the American Legion Post located on the corner of South Lake and Main streets in Boyne City.

Horse Liniment Erases Pain

HIALEAH, FL — An ingredient often used to treat inflammation in racehorse's legs, is now back on the market in its original doctor recommended clinical strength formula.

According to a national drug store survey, the formula at one time became so popular that it rose to the top of pharmacy sales for topical pain relievers. But the company marketing the product at the time changed the formula and sales plummeted. One of the inventors of the original formula has brought it back to the market under the trade name ARTHARREST and says it can relieve pain for millions.

ARTHARREST works by a dual mechanism where one ingredient relieves pain immediately, while a second ingredient seeks out and destroys the pain messenger signal before it can be sent to the brain. Considered a medical miracle by some, the ARTHARREST formula is useful in the treatment of painful disorders ranging from minor aches and pains to more serious conditions such as arthritis, bursitis, tendonitis, & more.

ARTHARREST is available in a convenient roll-on applicator at pharmacies without a prescription or call 1-877-581-1502. Now at Walgreens that was likely caused by lightning from a storm that rolled through the area early on the morning of Aug. 7.

When the pressure in the system dwindled to nothing, water department crews had to presume that untreated water from the lake made its way into the system and therefore there was a risk that bacteria could have contaminated the water supply. That's when city officials put out the word that water from the city's system should be boiled before consumption because of the possible bacterial contamination.

The boil advisory created headaches for many in the community, including Charlevoix Area Hospital, which canceled its scheduled surgeries for the day and restaurants which rely on the water for cooking, coffee, fountain pop dispensers and more.

When crews discovered the problem, they set to work notifying customers, isolating the leak and restoring water to the system. The Charlevoix Township water system helped in restoring water to the system through interconnections between the two systems on the city's north and south sides. When water was restored to the system, crews had to set about letting some more out. Workers at the water treatment plant added an extra amount of chlorine to the system and then crews worked through the night flushing most of the city's 250 hydrants and taking samples for the first round of testing. In all, Elliott estimated water department crews logged about 50 hours of overtime because of the water system problem.

The boil advisory was ultimately lifted shortly before 8 p.m. Friday, Aug. 9.

Elliott said as of Wednesday, crews had taken a total of 43 samples from the system and not one has tested positive for bacterial contamination.

Elliott said since the problem, crews have taken steps to make sure the valve leading to the broken main is never re-opened. He said eventually that end of the main will also be capped and permanently isolated from the system. Also, he said the problem with the back up system for the low-pressure alarms at the treatment plant has also been addressed.

Elliott said he was pleased with how city staff and the community worked together to deal with the problem. He also noted that the day after the water problem cropped up, city staff met with Michigan Department of Environmental Quality officials who not only didn't issue the city any citation for the incident, but commended the city staff for how it handled the matter, Elliott said.

Another water main break occurred in the city Thursday, but city officials say it's nothing to worry about.

"It's a [illegible] main break," city treasurer Rick Brandi said Thursday morning. "It is not unusual and is not related to anything that happened last week."

Thursday's break occurred at the corner of Sherman and Upright streets in Charlevoix, and crews were on the scene as of 8:30 a.m. The break will not require the city to issue a new drinking water advisory.

for urban shopping districts," the biography reads.

Gibbs is also a visiting professor at Harvard, where he teaches a popular executive course on urban retail development.

The lecture will focus on new trends in retail and how they may be applied to Charlevoix.

Charlevoix Planning Director Mike Spencer said he and former Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority Executive Director Keith Carey attended a similar presentation Gibbs gave in Boyne City last year and both thought it would be useful information for folks in Charlevoix as well. Spencer said his department is sponsoring Gibbs' visit which will include a work session with city officials.

The second presentation, which will take place at 7 p.m. on Thursday, Aug. 22, will feature a representative from the Michigan Main Street Program. Laura Krizov, who will be providing information and answering questions related to the program.

"The Michigan Main Street Program seeks to revitalize downtowns using an approach that is a community-driven, comprehensive strategy to encourage economic development through historic preservation in ways that are appropriate for today's marketplace," a release on the program reads.

Technical assistance and other services are provided by the program to train staff members and volunteers in the aspects of design, economic restructuring, promotion and organization. Participation in the program has benefited communities by: creating new jobs, attracting new businesses, enhancing a positive community image, increasing investment in the downtown, preserving historic resources, protecting and strengthening the existing tax base and improving visual appeal and economic viability. So far, the program has seen success in many cities throughout the state. Perhaps the best known Northern Michigan example is Boyne City, which just celebrated its 10 year anniversary of the program's beginning in that community. Other Michigan cities in which the program has seen success include Grand Haven, Manistee, Calumet and Lansing.

MAIN MICHIGAN
MAIN STREET

Krizov, the Michigan Main Street Program manager, will be presenting and answering questions. City officials are encouraging residents, business owners and registered voters to attend.

Spencer stressed that the meeting will be strictly informational and no decisions regarding the program and Charlevoix will be made.

Spencer said the impetus behind the two programs is not only the lingering concerns among residents about stimulating business in the downtown, but he also noted that looking into the feasibility of establishing the Main Street Program in Charlevoix was something that was included in the city's 2010 master plan. He said with the first, and biggest item, on the master plan to-do list — updating the city's zoning ordinance — now out of the way, looking at the Main Street Program is next on the list.

Spencer said what happens next will hinge largely on reaction from the community and city officials. Spencer said if there is a lot of interest in pursuing the Main Street Program, city staff would get to work quickly setting up meetings with the downtown development authority, planning commission and city council toward submitting an application to the program by the 2013 deadline at the end of November.

"It's going to really depend on what comes out of these public meetings," Spencer said. "If people are lukewarm on it, we're not going to be as rushed ... The main question will be to see if this is something that could be positive for Charlevoix. This is something that takes a lot of volunteer work."

CAMPAIGN

decided to double-down on its investment and pursue a fall campaign in addition to the summer campaign. That meant that the bureau's investment went from $20,000 last year to $50,000 this year. (The cost of each campaign increased by $5,000 this year.)

Although it's a little early to completely assess, Wilkin said this year's summer season seems to have been at least as good as last year.

She said the script for the fall campaign will be different from the summer campaign. She expects the fall campaign script to be finalized in the next week or so after which Allen will record the spot and it is scheduled to begin airing in the same markets as the summer campaign — Fort Wayne, Ind., South Bend, Ind., Toledo, Ohio and Green Bay, Wis. — for five weeks starting the first week of September.

The problem the bureau is still facing is raising additional money to pay for the fall campaign. The bureau gets all of its funding through assessments that are charged on hotel and motel room rentals in the area. Earlier this year the bureau put out a call for businesses and others in the community to help out by donating to the cause. Wilkin said several businesses and individuals have stepped forward to support the cause, but another $5,000-$8,000 is still needed to cover this year's costs.

She said the campaign will go forward regardless of fundraising efforts, however, she noted that a shortfall this year will impact the availability of money for another campaign next year.

For more information on the Charlevoix Pure Michigan campaign, contact Wilkin at (231) 547-2101.

Bindi getting Rayders ready for action

DREW KOCHANNY
Northern Michigan Review

Football has taken Ron Bindi throughout the state of Michigan and throughout the country over his years as a coach.

Now, football has led him home to Charlevoix.

Bindi takes over as head coach for the same high school for which he once laced up his cleats and donned a pair of shoulder pads more than 40 years ago as a 1971 Charlevoix graduate.

Bindi became the head coach of the Rayder football team this spring after former coach Joe Pruchnicki resigned following a 1-8 season in 2012. Pruchnicki spent just one year as the team's head coach.

Bringing Charlevoix back to its winning ways of the past is Bindi's main goal as a coach, beginning with this season.

"We're trying to bring back the tradition and what it meant to play Charlevoix football," Bindi said. "I'm loving it. When I went to school here, you were a football player and it meant something to be a football player. It wasn't thought of to have a losing record. You had to put in the time and put in the price."

Bindi has coached at the Division II level in Texas, Division III level in Indiana and three years as a coach for the Grand Rapids Rampage in the Arena Football League.

Since moving back to Charlevoix in 2004, Bindi had run the Bellaire football program, taking the Eagles to a 9-4 record and appearance in the eight player state final game last season where they lost to Deckerville, 14-12.

Because of its enrollment, Bellaire High School is one of 27 high schools in the state to play eight-player football.

In three years in eight-player Bellaire compiled a 25-9 record.

Going from coaching at Bellaire and now back to 11-man football this season won't be a problem for Bindi, who joked he's loving having the extra players to work with for an offense that will run the triple option and variations of the veer.

"I don't know what to do with three of them," he said with a laugh. "I'll tell you, what we did with eight men offensively in Bellaire, is basically the same thing we're doing here. It's all about blocking, tackling and the fundamentals. We want to be fundamentally sound. We're going to hold onto the ball, we're going to tackle the right way. We're going to be aggressive."

Charlevoix ranks second in the Lake Michigan Conference for all-time wins with 303, trailing only Traverse City St. Francis.

Getting Charlevoix back to the winning days of its past is something Bindi knows the players will have to buy into themselves.

"In the summer we had almost 30 kids in the weight room almost every day," Bindi said. "They've taken to it, they want to be successful. That's what I try to preach to them. They've seem to have bought into it."

The Rayders season begins on Thursday, Aug. 29, when they'll travel to St. Ignace High School. The first home game for the Rayders will be on Friday, Sept. 6, against Glen Lake.

"You've got to forget about what happened last year," Bindi said. "I told them, it's here, you just have to understand and believe and have a work ethic that's a football work ethic."

Joy set to take on another Hickory Hundred

Belvedere Golf Club head professional Marty Joy is again gearing up for his annual marathon day of 100 holes of golf to benefit the Charlevoix County Junior Golf Program.

This year will mark the seventh year that Joy will dust off his "niblick," "mashie" and blade putter — all hickory-shafted clubs from decades gone by.

The event, dubbed the "Hickory Hundred" is the sole annual fundraiser for the Junior Golf program. Through the Hickory Hundred, donors pledge to support the program through per-hole pledges. The money brought in from the event goes not only to Junior Golf operating funds, but also helps the program send selected participants to a week-long golf camp at Ferris State University. Junior Golfers have benefited from scholarships to the camp. The money is also used to purchase season passes at the City of Charlevoix's Charlevoix Golf Club for selected program participants, program director Dean Davenport said.

Joy will start his marathon at 6:30 a.m. on Monday, Aug. 19 and expects to finish around 4 p.m.

"I'm hoping to shoot somewhere in the 70s for each 18 holes," Joy said.

Joy has shot as low as 74 with hickory clubs during competition, and has finished once as a champion and several times as runner-up in national events.

"I will be wearing 1920s-era garb and I only hope it's not too hot," Joy said. "If it is, that might be the biggest challenge. I'll be motivated by the thought that the game I love will continue to be made available to young people in the Charlevoix Area."

Spectators are welcome to watch Joy take on the 100-hole challenge. Those wishing to make a tax-deductable pledge for the Charlevoix County Junior Golf Program, may contact Joy at (231) 547-2611 or Davenport at (231) 547-6433.

The Cheboygan Golf & Country Club is just one of our Golf Club Card partners:

Since opening in 1922, the Cheboygan Golf & Country Club has built a reputation for offering quality playing conditions to golfers in northern Michigan. The 18 holes of "Championship Golf" is open to the public, and offers the golfer a variety of holes to play. The front nine has a "Scottish" style with rolling mounds and a few trees to contend with, while the back nine features a picturesque northern woodlands design.

The entire golf course is enjoyable to play because it is not overly long and easy to walk. However, the smaller, smooth greens will put an emphasis on your short game making it challenging enough for the most experienced of golfers.

BE A WISE SHOPPER

It's always wise to remember that if an offer sounds too good to be true, it probably is. If you are offered merchandise at an unbelievably low price, check it out thoroughly. A call to the Better Business Bureau (serving Eastern Michigan and the Upper Peninsula) will tell you whether other consumers have had problems with the firm that has offered the merchandises. (248)223-9400. But call the Bureau BEFORE you make a purchase. You'll be glad you did.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale

THIS FIRM IS A DEBT COLLECTOR ATTEMPTING TO COLLECT A DEBT. ANY INFORMATION WE OBTAIN WILL BE USED FOR THAT PURPOSE. PLEASE CONTACT OUR OFFICE AT THE NUMBER BELOW IF YOU ARE IN ACTIVE MILITARY DUTY.

ATTN PURCHASERS: This sale may be rescinded by the foreclosing mortgagee. In that event, your damages, if any, shall be limited solely to the return of the bid amount tendered at sale, plus interest.

MORTGAGE SALE

Default has been made in the conditions of a mortgage made by Fred J. Duffy and Marcia A. Duffy, Husband and Wife, original mortgagor(s), to Fifth Third Mortgage - MI, LLC, Mortgagee, dated September 21, 2005, and recorded on September 26, 2005 in Liber 706 on Page 685, and assigned by said Mortgagee to Fifth Third Mortgage Company as assignee as documented by an assignment, in Charlevoix county records, Michigan, on which mortgage there is claimed to be due at the date hereof the sum of Eighty-Five Thousand Eight Hundred Sixty-Six and 37/100 Dollars ($85,866.37).

Under the power of sale contained in said mortgage and the statute in such case made and provided, notice is hereby given that said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises, or some part of them, at public vendue, at the place of holding the circuit court within Charlevoix County, at 11:00 AM, on September 13, 2013.

Said premises are situated in Township of Boyne Valley, Charlevoix County, Michigan, and are described as: An undivided 25% interest in and to Unit 18, being fractional ID "O", The Cabins Condominium, according to the Master Deed thereof as recorded in Liber 411, Pages 939 through 993, Charlevoix County Records, and amended in First Amendment to Master Deed recorded in Liber 419, Page 752, Charlevoix County Records, as amended and designated as Charlevoix County Subdivision Plan No. 126 together with rights in general common elements and limited common elements as set forth in the above Master Deed, as amended and as described in Act 59 of the public acts of 1978, as amended.

The redemption period shall be 6 months from the date of such sale, unless determined abandoned in accordance with MCLA 600.3241a, in which case the redemption period shall be 30 days from the date of such sale.

If the property is sold at foreclosure sale under Chapter 32 of the Revised Judicature Act of 1961, pursuant to MCL 600.3278 the borrower will be held responsible to the person who buys the property at the mortgage foreclosure sale or to the mortgage holder for damaging the property during the redemption period.

A boat waits as Michgian Department of Transporation crews attempt to open Memorial Bridge in downtown Charlevoix shortly after 6 p.m. Tuesday after the drawbridge became stuck in the down position because of a stuck brake on the north side of the bridge. Crews were able to open the bridge only a foot or two on this attempt.

Bridge won't budge

An electrical problem caused Memorial Bridge — the well-known U.S. 31 bascule bridge over the Pine River Channel in Charlevoix — to be stuck in the down position for more than seven hours Tuesday, causing a log jam of boat traffic and postponing a Beaver Island ferry run for 12 hours.

According to two press releases on the problem from the Michigan Department of Transportation, which is responsible for the bridge's operation, the problem cropped up at about 1:40 p.m. Tuesday and the department's electricians were on the scene trying to correct the problem by about 3:15 p.m.

Libert

Technology let Steve Libert down a bit earlier this year in his quest to find the oldest European shipwreck on the Great Lakes, the Griffin.

But he's hoping a different kind of technology will come through for him on Saturday, Aug. 24, in Gaylord.

That's the day that Libert, a part-time-recently-turned full-time Charlevoix resident and his Great Lakes Exploration Group have made arrangements with officials at Otsego Memorial Hospital to have a CT scan (known commonly as a cat scan) performed on a nearly 20-foot long timber they retrieved from the bottom of Lake Michigan offshore from the western end of the Upper Peninsula in mid-June.

The beam may hold the key to whether Libert has discovered the remains of the Griffin, the mysterious vessel commanded by French explorer Rene Robert Cavelier de la Salle. It disappeared in 1679 after casting off from an island near the entrance of Green Bay with a crew of six and a cargo of furs. It was the first ship of European design to traverse the upper Great Lakes.

Libert, who has sought the Griffin for three decades, bumped into the beam during a 2001 dive and battled the state of Michigan in court over custody of what he suspected was buried wreckage. After finally securing state and federal permits to excavate in the area, his organization dug a deep pit at the base of the timber but found nothing except bedrock. The beam, they learned, was simply wedged in hard packed, clay-like mud.

Even so, three French archaeologists who inspected the timber said it appeared to be a bowsprit — a spar or pole that extends from a vessel's stem — that was hundreds of years old. Libert said he believes the rest of the Griffin (also known by its French name, Le Griffon) is nearby and plans to resume his search.

In the meantime, the timber has been stored in a safe place, Libert said.

Libert recently told the Courier that the hope is the CT scan will help experts determine the beam's age and where the tree from which it was hewn originated. La Salle ordered the Griffin constructed near Niagara Falls before sailing it west and north across portions of lakes Erie, Huron and Michigan. That information could go toward proving or disproving the origin of the timber.

Libert has been using his now-year-

"Be yourself."

That was one of the top pieces of advice an urban retail planning consultant gave Charlevoix civic and business leaders during a presentation at the Charlevoix Public Library Tuesday.

The consultant was Robert Gibbs who has been a leading urban retail planning consultant in North America for 20 years. He has completed more than 500 public and private retail consulting projects across the United States, Pacific Rim and Europe, including projects in Chicago, Denver, Portland and Seattle. A frequent speaker for the Congress for New Urbanism, International Council of Shopping Centers and Urban Land Institute, Gibbs has just completed a book on the theory and practice of urban retail, "Principles of Urban Retail Planning and Development."

Gibbs has also worked on projects in Northern Michigan — including the recent re-development project in the heart of the village of Walloon Lake.

The lecture will focus on new trends in retail and how they may be applied to Charlevoix.

City officials asked Gibbs to make a presentation to Charlevoix business, civic leaders and community members as part of the city's efforts to find ways to revitalize the downtown business district.

Gibbs noted that being successful in any retail endeavor is a tricky matter.

"It's probably the riskiest land use model there is," Gibbs said. "Retail shopping centers have a failure rate of over 50 percent in first 10 years."

And he said doing it in a street side setting is even more difficult — espe-

Fire damages car in Hayes Township

A vehicle traveling in Charlevoix County's Hayes Township Friday, Aug. 16, sustained extensive damage after a mechanical problem caused it to catch fire.

Firefighters from the Charlevoix Township Fire Department were called to the area of 10477 Old U.S. 31 North shortly after 11 a.m. to a report of a vehicle parked on the side of the road that was on fire.

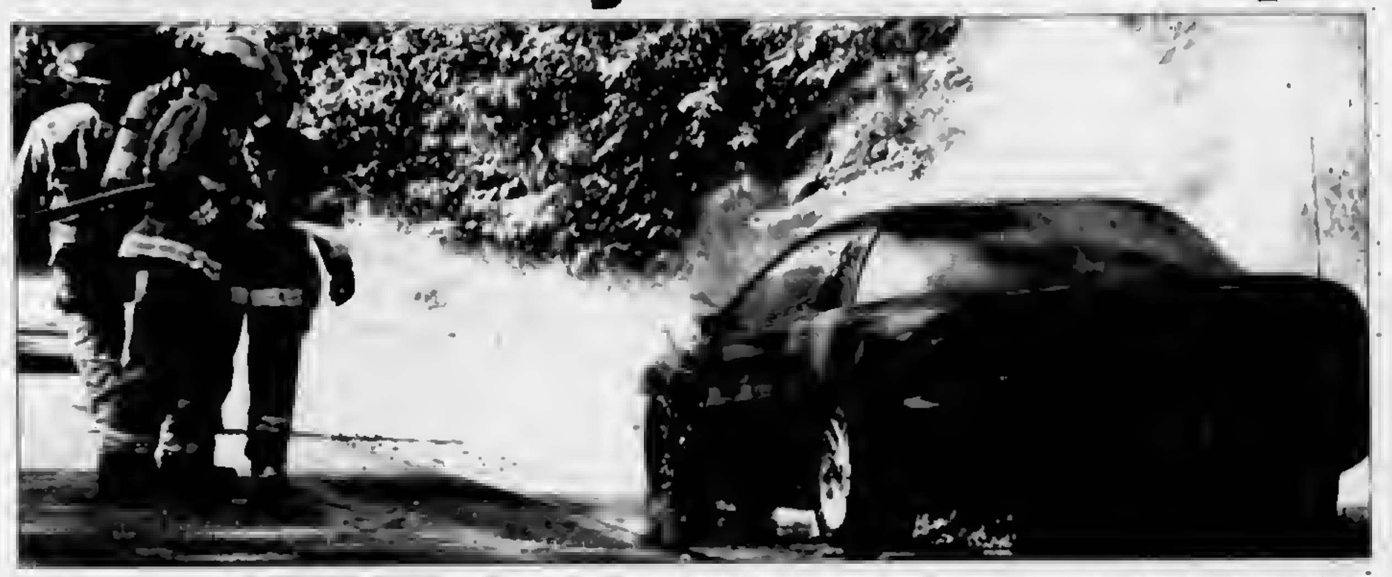
When fire crews arrived on the scene, they found a Chevrolet Camaro with the front half fully engulfed in flames.

Fire officials said the driver of the vehicle, whose name was not immediately available, reported he was driving along Old U.S. 31 North when something seemed to be amiss with the car. The driver pulled over to the side of the road, exited the vehicle and the vehicle caught fire a short time later.

There were no reports of injuries from the incident.

Fire officials said it appeared that some kind of gasoline leak in the engine compartment may have caused the fire. The gasoline also made the fire more difficult for fire crews to extinguish.

Fire crews were on the scene until about noon.



Charlevoix Township firefighters work to extinguish a fire that caused extensive damage to a car parked along Old U.S. 31 North in Hayes Township Friday, Aug. 16.

American Legion discontinues monthly pancake breakfasts

STEVE ZUCKER

In yet another symptom of declining participation in well-known veterans organizations, the Charlevoix American Legion Post has decided to discontinue its decades-old monthly pancake hreakfast fundraiser.

Post commander Joe Seidel announced this week that the breakfasts will be discontinued because, "it's just become too much of a burden for us." He added: "It was a combination of things hut goes to the general decline in active membership."

Seidel said from the best he can determine, the hreakfasts' date hack to at least the early 1960s. He said he recalls helping set up tables and chairs for the breakfasts with his father.

The breakfasts took place the first Sunday of the month, except in the summer months when there would also be one on the third Sunday.

In late 2010 Charlevoix American Legion officials decided to close and sell their hall on Garfield Street and have since heen sharing facilities with the Charlevoix Veterans of Foreign Wars organization at their hall at 12735 U.S. 31 North.

Seidel, who has been heading up the breakfasts for about the past 10 years, said the organization is dehating what it will do in the future for fundraising.

Seidel offered thanks on behalf of the Charlevoix American Legion post for the support the community has shown for the monthly breakfasts over the years.

MacMaster running for Senate, Cole for House

BRANDON HUBBARD
Northern Michigan Review

Triston Cole, a Mancelona farmer, who surprised many by finishing a close second in the race for the 105th House District seat three years ago hopes to take the seat in 2014.

The former Antrim County Republican Party chairman officially announced early Tuesday morning his intention to run for the seat.

Northern Michigan Republicans have been quickly shifting into campaign mode trying to fill out several openings, which started with state Sen. Howard Walker, R-Traverse City, deciding not to run again in 2014. The district includes Antrim, Charlevoix, Montmorency, Oscoda and Otsego counties.

Last week, in the latest twist, Rep. Greg MacMaster, R-Kewadin, said he would he running for Walker's seat in 2014 — leaving his House seat up for grabs.

MacMaster

"After overwhelming response from constituents across the district, encouragement from past and current community leaders, consultations with my family and friends, and prayers goiding my decision, I am officially announcing my candidacy for the state representative of the 105th District," Cole said in a statement.

Following the 2010 election, his first political campaign, Cole has remained active in regional politics.

Cole held the Antrim County Republican Party chairmanship for two years following the 2010 election, as well as two years on the Michigan Farm Boreao State Policy Development Committee and spent a year and a half as an Ellsworth Community School instructor in the agricolture program.

Both MacMaster and Cole maintained a working relationship during past three years, with Cole helping the representative get support for legislation (House Bill 5228) to repeal the U.S. Department of Transportation numbers and registrations on commercial vehicles weighing less than 26,000 pounds in Michigan.

MacMaster stopped short of a full endorsement Tuesday, hut said in a joint statement Cole has "shown persistence, strong conservative principals and the ahility to work together in a unifying capacity regarding agricultural issues."

"I respect and admire his assertiveness to always improve in areas that need attention," MacMaster said. "Triston is a proven leader."

The 105th House District will likely see other Republican candidates in a district where the GOP has enjoyed strong support and easy incumbent re-elections. MacMaster won re-election on a more than 2-1 majority over his Democratic opponent, William Wieske, in 2012.

Tony Culter, an East Jordan City Council member, who helped run a campaign in the district in 2010, said last week he was considering a hid.

Six candidates ran for the Repuhlican primary in 2010, where MacMaster earned the nomination with 30 percent of the overall vote.

MacMaster said he started exploring the race last week after returning from a five-day motorcycle tour through the Upper Peninsula, when he found out Walker decided to not run again.

"The level of support over the past week has been overwhelming.— I was very, very impressed and humbled hy the number of people who called up asking me to (run), saying I had to run for Senate," MacMaster said. "I plan to not only campaign, hut run and win the 37th Senate District with pride on conservative votes."

MacMaster, who is serving his second term in the Michigan House, said he is 100 percent running for the seat in 2014.

A former television weatherman in Northern Michigan for 13 years, MacMaster enjoyed strong name identification with the puhlic.

"People recognize me as heing a trusted voice in Northern Michigan, and I think that is just going to strengthen the respect I had with the viewers when they get to see me face to face," MacMaster said.

While the 37th Senate District leaned 59 percent Repuhlican in the last election, a hotly contested primary could open up the seat for competition across the aisle. However, no Democrats yet entered the race, though they are about a year hefore the Aug. 2014 primary nominations.

City to get $812,700 grant for wastewater plant design

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

An upcoming multi-million dollar overhaul slated for Charlevoix's wastewater treatment plant will go a little easier on the city's (and ultimately city water customers') pocketbook thanks to a major state grant the city will be receiving.

At Monday's regolar semi-monthly city council meeting, Charlevoix City Manager Roh Straehel announced that he has received word that the city's application for a $812,700 state grant is nearly a lock. The money will be used to help pay for the cost of the engineering needed for an upcoming major overhaul at the plant.

Earlier this year a consultant estimated that the needed upgrades to the plant could cost anywhere from $5.7 million to $11 million.

"Anticipating approval of the grant, this will be the second S-2 grant the city has received for improvements to our wastewater treatment plant. To date we have heen very fortonate to receive almost 90 percent grant funding in the development of initial planning and engineering documents. The $812,700 grant will greatly assist oor efforts to minimize deht service for the city. We are very thankful to MDEQ for their sopport on this worthy project," Straebel said.

The earlier grant was for $63,900 and it paid for a portion of an earlier stage of the planning and design process.

Given the project's price tag, the city will have to horrow money to pay for it. However, Straehel also announced at the meeting that it appears the city will use a State Revolving Fund Loan for wastewater improvements with interest rates in the 2.5-3.5 percent range.

"With these historically low interest rates it is a very opportune time for the city to he beginning this multi-million dollar wastewater treatment plant project," Straebel added.

The improvements are needed for two reasons.

The plant was constrocted in 1972 and some of its of its equipment must be modernized and upgraded to meet design and safety standards, hut the higgest issue driving the project is regulation changes from the Department of Environmental Quality on what the city can discharge from the plant.

Under the new regulations, the city will have to limit the amount of ammonia it releases beginning Oct. 1, 2014.

Even more restrictive limits will be in place hy December 2015.

Further complicating the matter is the Northern Michigan climate.

The plant uses water from Lake Michigan to treat wastewater. During the winter, the water is too cold for the biological mechanisms that break down ammonia to work.

Even with the grant and the low interest rates, the work will undoubtedly mean an increase in sewer rates for city residents and businesses.

In order for the city to comply with the new DEQ guidelines, the city must decide soon which option it will choose.

Straebel said the city officials hope to hreak ground on the project sometime in mid-2014.

City officials plan to hold public hearings prior to a decision heing made on the wastewater treatment plant.

In other husiness Monday, the council approved continuing with a health habits incentive plan for city employees. The program dubhed "Ride the Path to Health," offers incentives for employees who take part in healthy habits soch as getting exercise, getting a good night's rest, and eating well.

Straebel said the program has been popular with employees with about half of them participating.

"We can't point to reduction of sick days because of the program, but it's been great for morale," he said.

This year, the committee that heads up the program wanted to up the incentives a bit from T-shirts, water hottles, pedometers and small amounts of comp time offered, and offer the opportunity for employees who achieve a certain level of points in the program to he entered into a drawing for a full week's worth of vacation time.

The council unanimously approved the program and another program under which employees who chose the health care savings account option for insurance can have up to an additional $500 added to their accounts hy participating in the Ride the Path to Health program.

The council also decided that council members Lyle Gennett, Shirley Gibson and Jeff Porter along with mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson Jr will be part of an interview committee that will take part in the search for the city's next treasurer. Current city treasurer Rick Brandi is expecting to retire early in 2014.

School gets zoning approval for temporary site

RYAN BENTLEY
Northern Michigan Review

A new regional Catholic high school on Wednesday secured the zoning approval needed from city planning commissioners to set up temporary quarters in Petoskey.

The planning commission approved St. Michael the Archangel Regional Catholic Academy to operate as a special-condition use at 1170 Bay View Road. Organizers plan to offer classes on the lower level of a building that also houses PMP Personnel Services and a State Farm Insurance office.

Under Petoskey zoning rules, schools that offer general education classes — whether they're public, parochial or private nonprofit — require special-condition approval to operate in any area of the city, including the general business area along Bay View Road.

City planner Amy Tweeten said commissioners' approval included a condition that the school operate at the site for no more than two years, and with no more than two grade levels of students.

One of the city's standards for approving a school as a special-condition use is that it he located on an adequately sized site, one that's in a location where the school would be compatible with surrounding land uses.

Given the site's limited size (0.41 acre), its access and parking constraints, and the fact that it originally was approved for retail/office use, city planning staff noted it did not seem appropriate for a full-service permanent school. Since the school's organizers intend to use the site only on an interim hasis with a limited number of students, staff believed the school use could he workable, and suggested commissioners set conditions to limit its scope as part of any approval.

School organizers have noted plans to launch with a ninth-grade class for the 2013-14 school year, with 10-15 students expected to enroll. Classes are to involve a mix of in-person and online instruction.

The organizers aim to have a permanent school site estahlished elsewhere in Petoskey within two years or so.

Deborah Gagnon, who co-chairs the committee preparing for the school's launch, said orientation for new students is planned in late August, with classes beginning on Tuesday, Sept. 3.

College, university sign credit transfer agreement

North Central Michigan College and Grand Valley State University have entered into a partnership designed to increase the number of stodents who complete degrees at Michigan colleges and universities.

The "reverse transfer agreement" was signed on Monday, Aug. 19, hy Cameron Brunet-Koch, president of North Central Michigan College, and Thomas J. Haas, president of Grand Valley State University. The agreement will create a process whereby students from North Central Michigan College who have transferred to Grand Valley State University with at least 16 credits can he awarded a North Central Michigan College associate degree with the help of credits earned at Grand Valley State University.

Sometimes you can go back

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

When I was all grown up I would say to dad, "Let's go back to our old house where we grew up," or "Let's go back and see the place where we used to catch fish."

Dad's answer was the usual, "You can't go back." By that he meant it will never be the same. Places get old and run down; streets become highways and stores displaying familiar family names become vacant lots. But I have to say, you can go back to the memories you hold dear. The places may have changed in appearance or completely vanished like they never existed but you'll never forget how those places made you feel. That's how it was a week ago when we traveled to Detroit for the Pierogi Festival.

Being navigationally challenged, we parked the vehicle in a church parking lot welcoming our younger brother to guide us on a tour of our birthplace. We visited the old haunts of Belle Isle, Eight Mile and even cruised Woodward Avenue. So much had changed that my mouth continually opened in awe while my head swiveled in every direction trying to take in the view. The comment: "Do you remember when ..." was said more often than I can count.

A special treat was visiting the old Wayne State Mortuary Science Building which now sports six condos: one of which two of our nephews inhabit. This block and brick building which was home to caskets, cadavers and students was architecturally redone with metal décor I can only describe as old Europe meets Alexander Calder. Once inside the vision resembled a New York loft with its 20 foot ceilings open to cement slabs and pipes that housed heat and cooling while smaller pipes retained the electrical. The piece d'resistance was the surprise rooftop of the building which turned magically into outdoor seating complete with gardens, decorative railings and separated into six private housetops for each apartment. By day it looked like the cover of Better Homes and Garden and by sunset the decorative lights sparkling in the night gave it a magical feel of being in the heavens and not privy to what may be taking place in the streets below.

Yes, great changes indeed. Alas, only two blocks away we counted nearly 20 homeless men and women sleeping under trees. A few blocks farther the new Whole Foods Store was bustling with activity but another three blocks farther we saw buildings recently abandoned and home to those seeking refuge while other structures marred with age were still inhabited but in need of lots of love.

We were pleased to see there were brave steps made to improve this impoverished neighborhood struggling to show signs of promise. The gardens that were earlier campaign promises to feed the homeless and hungry were abundant with harvest. Belle Isle which at one time was pristine and then left abandoned like an unloved child was slowly returning to becoming a gathering place for families. Many individuals living in the inner city were seeking the fresh air and water as a welcome relief from the non-air-conditioned brick buildings of the inner city. It was Sunday and the island was packed with picnickers, some who creatively made double wide cookers from old oil drums. We gazed upon children at play who were watched over by their elders sitting under colorful umbrellas. On the cool waters near the shore, paddle boarders were intent on completing a lesson on how to manage the Detroit River. As we made our final turn, we couldn't help but notice the large number of boats moored at the still-standing, but aging Detroit Yacht Club.

A step back in time for a family reunited to a town many said to forget. But for all of us present, we were hopeful and still held onto our memories and the feelings never forgotten. We went back but embraced the new, the old and the changes yet to come.

Bridging our past with our future

LOOKING BACK…

E. H. Green

COURTESY PHOTO/CHARLEVOIX HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Edward Heistand Green was born Oct. 31, 1834 in Pennsylvania. In April of 1861 he responded to President Lincoln's first call for volunteers in the Union army. At the Battle of Bull Run on Aug. 30, 1862 Green was shot through the thigh and foot and lay on the battlefield for six days before removal to a four-month hospital stay in Washington. His thigh wound caused him problems all his life. On discharge, Green rejoined his regiment in January of 1863, became a lieutenant, then a captain in November. At the Battle of Spottsylvania in May of 1864 he was captured and held in miserable conditions in several Confederate prisons until the following February. In March he was made a brevet major, and mustered out in July of 1865, a physical disaster. Green taught school for a year, then attended the University of Michigan Law School from which he graduated in 1868. He then arrived in Charlevoix to become the first practicing lawyer between Traverse City and Mackinaw. There wasn't much law for him to practice, so he taught school again for a year in the community's second schoolhouse, on Antrim Street, located approximately where Oleson's produce department is now, being paid $4 per week, half of it in flour and potatoes. Then things began to pick up. E. H. Green went on to become a highly respected lawyer serving in many capacities, served in the state legislature for two terms, and was the first editor of the Charlevoix Sentinel, the region's first newspaper, for its first two years. In 1885 Green constructed the brick building downtown that now houses the Maison & Jardin gift store near Clinton Street.

to the editor

Thank you for a great fundraising luncheon

Editor:

The Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan staff, board of directors and Women Can/Women Do committee members thank the volunteers and donors that helped make this year's fundraising luncheon in Charlevoix a success.

We thank the talented designers that donated their time and talent to create spectacular table displays helping ensure the success of this event: A Touch of Spring & Other Things, Beaver Island Boat Company, Bells Iron Rock Design, Boyne City Ace Hardware, Boyne Mountain Solace Spa, Boyne's Beyond Borders, Castle Farms, Charlevoix Area Garden Club, Charlevoix Area Humane Society, Charlevoix Circle of Arts, Charlevoix Country Club, Connie Carr, Deer Creek Junk, Dunagain's Antiques & Collectibles, Elements, Jordan River Arts Council, Kilwin's of Charlevoix, L. Burnham and Associates, Magnum Hospitality/Red Mesa Grill/Cafe Sante/Pearl's, MerryMakers, Murray's Bar and Grill, Olive + Rose, Panache Hair Studio, Petals Custom Floral Designs, Raven Hill Discovery Center, Schoolhouse Gardens, Sommerset Pointe Yacht Club & Marina, Upsy-Daisy Floral and Van Dam Custom Boats.

We also thank our hard-working table captains for filling seats at the event! We appreciate your dedication, generosity, energy and time — we couldn't undertake this event without you. Thank you to Linda and Richard Mueller of Castle Farms, and their entire staff, for welcoming us and for sharing their unique and beautiful location with our guests. The Muellers' generosity to the community is well-recognized and much appreciated. We send our gratitude to the Gailliard String Trio members for their performance of the prelude music, which adds so much to the ambiance of the setting while guests are viewing the table designs.

The event was also enriched by the delicious culinary offerings provided by Grey Gables in Charlevoix.

Finally, we thank the more than 220 guests who supported the Women Can/Women Do fundraising luncheon. Dollars raised help support essential programs provided by the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan on which thousands of women, children and individuals rely.

Thank you for your commitment to our agency and the communities we serve.

City crew praised for water main break response

Editor:

We commend City of Charlevoix Public Works Superintendent Pat Elliott and his knowledgable foremen and all the workers for their rapid response to the broken water main problem which occurred at Sherman and Upright early last Thursday morning (Aug. 15). Their efforts minimized the damage to our property. We extend our thanks to each and every one of them.

LOCAL Highlights

The Charlevoix Photography Club, a part of the Charlevoix Circle of Arts, has received a record number of entries in the annual Charlevoix photography show, My Michigan, at Circle of Arts, 109 Clinton St., Charlevoix.

"Based on the entries received on Monday, we can already tell it will be a terrific show," said Brice Voran, coordinator of the steering committee. "Photographers came from far away to submit their entries," he said.

"The show has been getting bigger and better every year," said Gary Stutzman, president of the organization, "and has become an important part of the schedule of exhibitions at our gallery."

The photography show opens Thursday, Aug. 29, at the Charlevoix Circle of Arts. Entries are divided into five categories: realistic photographs; artistically manipulated images; images on media other than photo paper; video and multimedia; and photographers under 18. Cash prizes will be awarded in each category and for best of show.

The Charlevoix Photography Club's mission is to promote greater participation by Michigan photographers while constantly raising the artistic level of the work being produced. This means accepting as many entries as is physically possible for the show. Therefore, the juror, photographer Paul Retherford of Petoskey, has been asked to accept at least one entry from each photographer submitting entries.

Retherford began his photographic career as a nature photographer. His work has been published and he is internationally recognized. He now is a well-known wedding photographer in Northern Michigan. In recent years, he has begun to deliver some of his work in video form. Retherford will attend the opening reception from 5:30-7:30 p.m. on Thursday, Aug. 29, to talk about the show. Winners will be announced and refreshments will be provided.

To learn more about Retherford, visit his website, www.paulretherford.com.

For more information about the photography show, contact Charlevoix Circle of Arts at (231) 547-3554 or www.charlevoixcircle.org.

Walgreens to host school fundraiser

Walgreens in Charlevoix will be hosting a fundraiser and school supply collection event for Charlevoix Schools on Friday and Saturday Aug. 23-24.

During the event customers can donate cash or school supplies and in exchange for any donation valued at $5 or more, customers will earn a 10 percent discount on most items in the store.

The all items and money collected through the program will go to the store's Support Our Schools effort, which will help provide supplies to Charlevoix schools.

A car wash and complimentary hot dogs will also be available from 3-7 pm. on Friday with all proceeds going toward the campaign.

School immunizations are available at the Walgreens pharmacy.

Suggested items to purchase for the schools include: tissues, hand sanitizer, lined paper, pencils, pens, notebooks, binders, folders, graph paper, highlighters, Sticky Notes, whiteboard markers, stylus for iPad, headphones, Band Aids, poster board, erasers, cellophane tape, masking tape, scissors, markers, copy paper, althletic supplies and more.

Walgreens is located at the corner of M-66 and U.S. 31.

Front Porch Ministries to host trail ride fundraiser

The Front Porch Ministries in Ellsworth will host a Chuck Wagon Trail Ride fundraiser on Saturday, Sept. 21 at the Timber Ridge Ranch in Ellsworth.

Organizers said the event has room for only 50 riders, so early registration is recommended.

For those who register for the event by Aug. 31, the cost is $40. For those who register after Aug. 31, the cost is $55.

Registration includes Louise's cinnamon rolls in the morning, chuck wagon lunch by the lake provided by the Front Porch, a prize drawing, and a T-shirt. The trail ride will be about two hours in the morning, followed by lunch at the lake and a 1.5 hour ride back to the barn.

All money raised through the event will benefit the Front Porch Ministries, a donation only restaurant in Ellsworth.

Organization officials said currently, there are only 18 restaurants like Front Porch's in the United States.

For more information or a registration form, contact Nancy Ferguson at (231) 547-2285, or visit www.frontporchellsworth.org or visit the group's Facebook page at www.facebook.com/FrontPorchEllsworth.

People Fund grant application deadline Oct. 1

The Great Lakes Energy People Fund is accepting grant applications from nonprofit organizations throughout its local service area. The upcoming grant application deadline is Oct. 1.

The People Fund is supported solely by Great Lakes Energy members who allow their electric co-operative to round up their bill each month to the next dollar. Since 1999 more than $2.3 million in grants have been awarded to charitable and community organizations throughout Great Lakes Energy's 26-county service area, which stretches from Kalamazoo to the Mackinac Straits.

Nonprofit organizations can review program details and request a grant application online at www.gtlakes.com or by calling Great Lakes Energy at (888) 485-2537, ext. 1313. Non-profit organizations that serve communities located in the Great Lakes Energy service area are eligible to apply.

Organizations that are unable to apply by Oct. 1 will have another opportunity to apply in early 2014.

Tip of the Mitt receives invasive species grant

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

Petoskey's Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council will soon have a $35,000 boost to monitor invasive species in the Elk River Chain of Lakes.

Tip of the Mitt will use the grant, which came out of the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality's Clean Michigan Initiative funds, over the summers of 2014 and 2015.

The chain includes a horseshoe-shaped line of lakes, the smallest of which are Beals and Scotts lakes, which connect to Six Mile, St. Clair, Ellsworth, Wilson, Ben-way, Hanley and Intermediate lakes. Those lakes connect to Lake Bellaire, Clam Lake, Torch Lake, Lake Skegemog and Elk Lake.

Throughout the chain of lakes exists the very real possibility — and reality — of invasive species.

"There are a lot of invasives already. They are battling Eurasian water milfoil in the chain of lakes. I found some in 2007 or 2006 in Six Mile Lake, and there are indications it's spreading through the chain of lakes to Torch Lake," said Kevin Cronk, research and monitoring coordinator for Tip of the Mitt. "We're building on work that's being done and taking it to the next level."

Cronk said Tip of the Mitt will be monitoring for phragmites and purple loosestrife as well as aquatic invasives such as milfoil, curly leaf pondweed and quagga mussels. The organization has two years to complete its monitoring within the constraints of the grant.

Cronk said invasives have become a common concern between various lake associations along the water chain.

"It becomes a rallying point, as it often does to bring people and associations together to fight a common enemy," said Cronk.

Cronk said Tip of the Mitt has had support from groups including the Antrim County Conservation District and lake associations.

Tip of the Mitt previously received a similar grant which allowed the organization to inventory water quality in all of the tributaries of Lake Charlevoix. The current grant will allow Tip of the Mitt to monitor for invasive species in Charlevoix and Antrim counties as well as one section of Kalkaska County.

Two join News-Review staff

RYAN BENTLEY
Northern Michigan Review

The Petoskey News-Review recently welcomed two members to its newsroom staff.

Jordan Spence, 26, began work earlier this week as a full-time reporter. She will handle coverage of areas including Resort and Bear Creek townships, Boyne City and East Jordan, along with some feature stories and digital content.

Spence, who grew up in Mount Pleasant, is on track to receive her bachelor's degree in online journalism from Central Michigan University later this year.

Spence's new position isn't her first in Petoskey. About three years ago, she completed a reporting internship with The Graphic, the News-Review's sister arts and entertainment publication. Spence also worked as a journalism intern at the Jackson Citizen Patriot in 2012, and has written for Central Michigan's student newspaper, Central Michigan Life.

Spence

As a reporter, Spence looks forward to learning more about the communities she covers and finding answers for residents about local happenings. Now living in Petoskey, she's happy to be returning to an area that she's already somewhat familiar with, and looks forward to trying out some winter sports.

"I just feel really welcome here," she said. "I'm excited."

Spence can be contacted at (231) 439-9397 or jspence@petoskeynews.com.

Williams

Candace McPharlin Williams, 58, began work in a part-time newsroom position earlier this summer. She's handling entertainment reporting and compiling calendars of events for print and online publications.

"I think writing the entertainment stories is what I'm going to enjoy the most," she said.

Williams received a bachelor's degree in communications with a journalism focus from Olivet College. While studying for it, she completed an internship at the News-Review in 1976. As a young adult, she spent a couple of years operating the Leslie Local, a small weekly newspaper in downstate Leslie, and later took an extended break from journalism, mainly to raise a family.

Prior to beginning her current position, Williams had been writing for the News-Review on a freelance basis since last fall. She also works as a home health aide, having received nursing aide certification through North Central Michigan College.

Williams, who lives north of Harbor Springs in Readmond Township, is married to Dennis A. Williams and has six children and 11 grandchildren.

Williams can be contacted at (231) 439-9355 or cwilliams@petoskeynews.com.

Garden of the week

The winners of this week's Charlevoix Area Garden Club's Garden of the Week award are John and Phyllis Elzinga, whose garden at 202 May St. caught the eye of the club's leaders. Club officials noted, "The Elzingas utilize every square inch of their 'in-town' garden paradise. Their garden was featured in the club's 2009 Garden Walk event. The club has been recognizing gardeners around the community this summer with Garden of the Week honors.

A Michigan Department of Transportation crew member walks toward a mechanical room under the north side of Charlevoix's Memorial Bridge around 6 p.m. Tuesday.

STUCK

31 was able to flow over the bridge, interrupted only when crews tried to open the bridge.

On one such attempt, at about 6 p.m., the deck went up only a foot or two.

Several boats too big to pass under the bridge stranded on both sides of the bridge had to turn away. Around 6 p.m. several of those boats could be seen lingering in Lake Michigan in the area just west of the channel.

By 9 p.m., a number of sailboats and other larger vessels were anchored in the bay south of the Pine River Channel toward the St. Marys Cement plant apparently waiting for the bridge to be repaired.

A press release issued by the Michigan Department of Transportation at 9:37 p.m. Tuesday indicated that problem was fixed at about 9:15 p.m.

"MDOT electricians, after many hours of troubleshooting, found and fixed a faulty switch and broken wire," the release reads.

Because of the malfunction, the Beaver Island ferry, the Emerald Isle, did not make its scheduled 5:20 p.m. trip from the island to Charlevoix. The ferry's dock at the Beaver Island Boat Company is located in Round Lake just east of the bridge. Beaver Island Transportation Authority Executive Director Barb Schwartzfisher said officials with the Beaver Island Boat Company were alerted to the problem with the bridge before the ferry departed. The ferry's departure was delayed for about 40 minutes to see if the problem might be fixed. She said at 6 p.m. authority and boat company officials decided to call off the trip to the mainland for the night for fear that the ferry would arrive in Charlevoix and be unable to reach its dock.

Schwartsfisher said, the trip that was supposed to depart at 5:20 p.m. Tuesday, instead departed for Charlevoix at 5:20 a.m. Wednesday, thus allowing the ferry to make its next scheduled return trip to the island at 8:30 a.m. She said some people who were slated to take the 5:20 p.m. ferry on Tuesday, opted to fly back to the mainland while others simply stayed another night on the island.

Charlevoix Harbormaster Hal Evans said about six vessels that had reservations at the marina were affected by the bridge malfunction. He said three were stuck on the east side of the bridge unable to depart and three were stuck on the west side of the bridge, unable to reach the marina. He said the three that were stuck in Lake Michigan simply anchored-out for the night and were extended an additional night on their reservation. Evans said marina staff fielded a handful of telephone and marine radio calls about the situation.

"Most people had a pretty good sense of humor about it," Evans said. "For the people who were stuck (on the Round Lake side of the bridge), there are worse places to be stuck."

QUEST

round hometown Charlevoix as the home base of operation for many of his expeditions to the site in recent years and he's planning to host a press conference in Charlevoix some time after the scans are complete.

Libert said depending on how the scans go, he may have something to report in a matter of hours, but he also said he will use the press conference to reveal some other previously undisclosed information about his quest to find the Griffin.

Libert has said in the past if he ultimately is successful in finding the Griffin, he'd like to see some or all of it on display in some kind of a museum in Charlevoix. He noted that although Gaylord is about an hour's drive away, he's purposefully scheduling the press conference in Charlevoix in hopes of promoting the community and giving it some exposure potentially to national and international news organizations.

Libert said he wants to redo a sonar scan that previously indicated the presence of an object field buried near the timber. As it turned out, the readings apparently picked up a thick layer of mussel shells and sediment layers. But if re-calibrated to penetrate the mussels, the sub-bottom profile might detect a buried deck or hull, he said.

He has also said, recently he's planning to do another expedition to the area where the timber was found yet this year.

CONSULTANT

cially compared to malls and big-box shopping centers.

"Charlevoix has a classic American Main Street, but urban retail is very challenging to do. Shopping centers are much easier. On Main Street you have to deal with people that are easily distracted. You have to get people to the downtown, then get them into your store, and then you have to convince them to buy something they probably don't need," he said.

To compete with that, Gibbs said a community such as Charlevoix needs to exploit something it has that no shopping center can replicate: Authenticity.

"The one thing we (shopping centers) can't do is what you have. We can't bring in John Cross Fish Market. We can't bring in the real McCoy. This what we would love to do in our town centers. What we cannot give them is the authenticity of a real place. It takes about 200 years or a lot of gossip to build authenticity," Gibbs said.

To that end, Gibbs said there was one thing that concerned him a bit as he spent a short time touring the town with city staff members Tuesday.

"What I'm concerned about, based on 10 minutes of analysis today, you are beginning to look like every Midwestern city, with brick pavers, the benches, and street trees you've chosen," Gibbs said. "It's kind of a pain in the butt (for tourists) to get here. When they get here your job is to give them something different than what they left."

Other things Gibbs said are critical to downtown retail success is on-street parking (including the use of parking meters), and stores being willing to stay open past 5 p.m.

City officials made a video recording of Gibbs' presentation and were planning to make it available on the city's website.

The second of this week's two presentations was slated to take place at 7 p.m. on Thursday, Aug. 22, about eight hours past the Courier's weekly press time. The second presentation was to feature Laura Krizov, a representative from the Michigan Main Street Program.

The program provides technical assistance and other services to train staff members and volunteers in the aspects of design, economic restructuring, promotion and organization as they work to preserve and revitalize a downtown. So far, the program has seen success in many cities throughout the state. Perhaps the best known Northern Michigan example is Boyne City, which just celebrated its 10 year anniversary of the program's beginning in that community. Other Michigan cities in which the program has seen success include Grand Haven, Manistee, Calumet and Lansing.

Looking into the feasibility of establishing the Main Street Program in Charlevoix was something that was included in the city's 2010 master plan.

City officials plan to use information from both meetings and gauge community reaction to help determine what steps to take next.

Joy completes Hickory in record time

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Belvedere Golf Club Head Professional Marty Joy may have this Hickory Hundred thing down to a science.

On Monday, for the fifth time in as many years, played 100 holes of golf in a single day as a fundraiser for the Charlevoix County Junior Golf Program. And if playing that many holes of golf in one day wasn't enough, he does it using old 1920s era hickory-shafted clubs and wearing garb from the era as well.

Joy started his marathon golf round at about 6:40 a.m. and put in his final putt of the day at about 2:40 p.m., in a record time of about eight hours — that's about 4.8 minutes per hole. In the past the hundred holes have taken him anywhere from eight and a half to nine hours.

Of course, 18-hole rounds of golf don't divide evenly into 100 holes, so Joy played five complete rounds plus 10 more holes. His scores were 76,85,80,76,78 and he was two-under par on the final 10 holes. That translates into eight birdies, 66 pars, 23 bogeys and three double-bogeys.

Joy noted that the hickory clubs, which have names such as "mashie" or "niblick," are more challenging to use than modern clubs because they weigh about three times as much as modern clubs and have a much smaller "sweet spot."

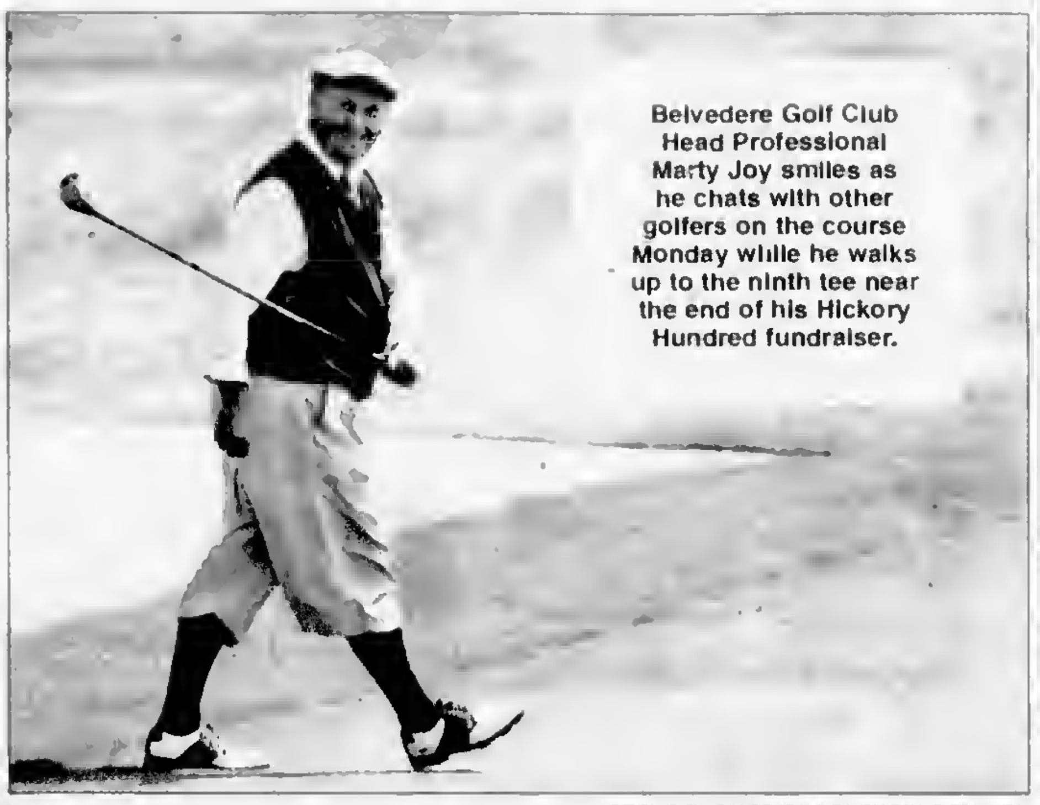
Joy, who has played in many national hickory club events and won this year's tournament at Belvedere, said changing course conditions presented the biggest challenge of the day.

"The second 18 was very difficult with the changing green conditions and especially the changing speeds. It kind of hurt the rhythm of the game for about 27 holes until the greens became consistent," Joy said.

Joy said he had some sore hands at the end of the 100 holes, but said he was back to work at 6:30 a.m the next day and attended three board meetings.

So far, Joy has raised $7,000 for the Junior Golf Program through per-hole pledges for his event and he expects to pick up another $3,000 before it's all said and done for this year.

Those wishing to make a tax-deductable pledge for the Charlevoix County Junior Golf Program, may contact Joy at (231) 547-2611 or Dean Davenport at (231) 547-6433.



Belvedere Golf Club Head Professional Marty Joy smiles as he chats with other golfers on the course Monday while he walks up to the ninth tee near the end of his Hickory Hundred fundraiser.

New entrance will welcome Rayder fans to Kipke Field

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Charlevoix Rayder football fans will notice something a little different when they come to their first football game of the season this fall at Kipke Field.

A new, nicer-looking and more convenient main entrance was created on the east side of the field immediately adjacent to the south parking lot of the former middle school building.

District superintendent Bob Gendron said the two sides of the entrance that will serve as ticket windows are identical to what was installed at the entry way for the soccer, baseball and softball athletic fields at the high school a couple years ago. Those portions of the entry way were constructed by the high school's building trades class during the past school year and taken to the site for installation this week.

Gendron said the new entrance, which will take the place of the entrance by the fieldhouse at the north end of the field, is completely barrier-free, will be more convenient and will reduce congestion by the locker rooms in the fieldhouse.

He said the entrance at the northeast corner of the field will continue to be used as well for varsity games.

In addition to work done on the project by members of the building trades class, work and materials for the project were donated by Carlson's Home Improvements, Manthei Development, Inc., Swanson K & D, Dudley Stevens Concrete, Travis Garrett and Pro Build Lumber.

Zipp to play college ball at Glen Oaks

Recent Charlevoix High School graduate Tommy Zipp recently committed to attend and play baseball at Glen Oaks Community College in Centreville.

Zipp was named second team all-state as a pitcher, but will play outfield at Glen Oaks.

Zipp hit .354 with 30 RBI at the plate and was 9-1 on the mound with a 1.93 earned run average to lead the Rayders to their most successful season in school history with a 27-3 overall record, a top 10 state ranking, first district title since 1988 and first Lake Michigan Conference championship ever.

Zipp received a number of postseason accolades including being named all-state, all-region, all-district, all-conference and academic all-district.

"Tommy was one of the best run producers that we've had here," Charlevoix coach Allen Telgenhof said. "He had the biggest hit of the season for us — a game winning bases loaded, bases clearing double with two outs against Harbor Springs — and he was almost unbeatable on the mound also. He deserves a lot of credit for working so hard to make himself into a very good player, and he had two great guys who worked with him a lot, his dad, Tom, and former pro baseball player, Mike Epping. We're all very proud to see Tommy continue his baseball and academic careers."

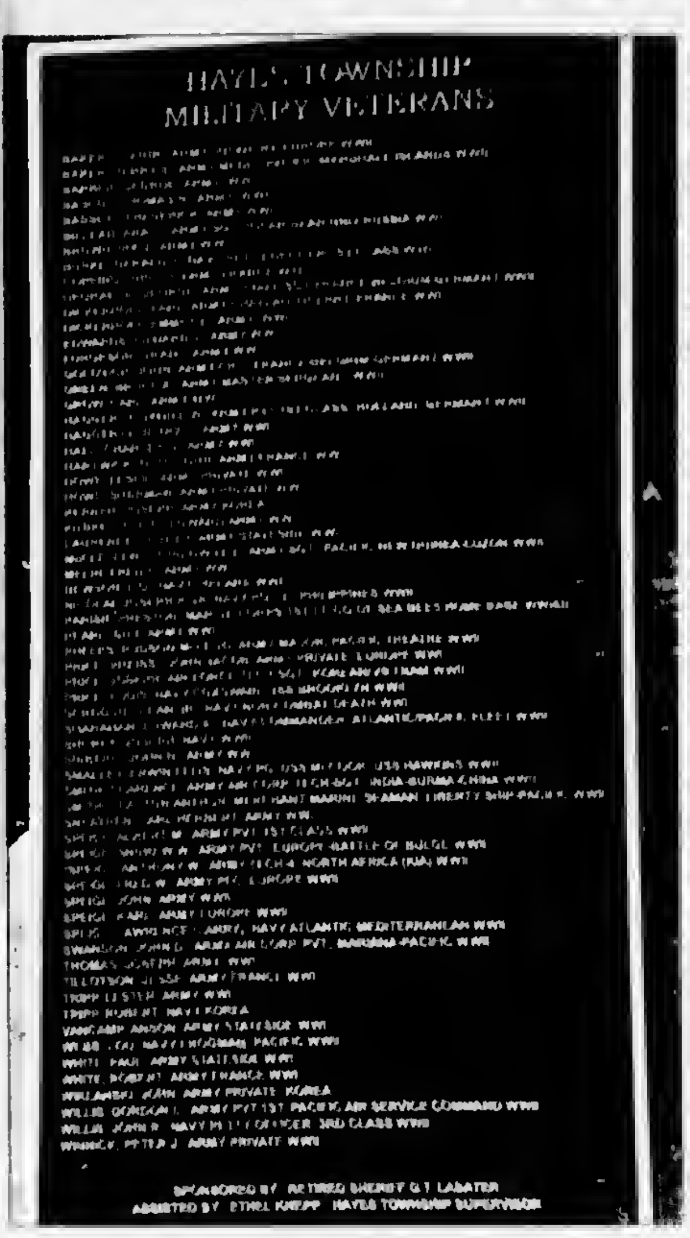
Military memorial

STEVE ZUCKER/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

A veterans firing squad stands at attention just prior to firing a three-volley salute during a dedication ceremony for a new memorial honoring fallen veterans from Hayes Township outside the Hayes Township hall Sunday, Aug. 18.



STEVE ZUCKER/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

The plaque at the new Hayes Township veterans memorial displays names of veterans from the township who served in World War I, World War II and Korea. A second plaque with another 26 names is not seen in the photo. The memorial is far from complete as the plaques have not yet been permanently mounted and in the future, additional plaques will be added that will include the names of veterans from later conflicts.

Out of service, again

Emerald Isle suffers more engine trouble

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

BEAVER ISLAND — For the second time this summer, Beaver Island's main ferry, the Emerald Isle is out of service because of a mechanical problem with one of its engines.

A problem with a routine engine oil test result prompted officials with the Beaver Island Boat Company and the Beaver Island Transportation Authority to take the Emerald Isle out of service Thursday, Aug. 22 and as of Thursday, Aug. 27 it was still out of service.

Authority executive director Barb Schwartzfisher said the bad test results came back Thursday afternoon when the Emerald Isle was in Charlevoix and officials took the ferry out of service as a precautionary measure. The ferry returned to the island under its own power without passengers, and crews began working to determine what caused the bad test result.

As of late Wednesday, crews had not yet found the cause of the problem, but Schwartzfisher said a team of mechanics from Michigan Cat are working night and day on it.

"They are going through a process of elimination," Schwartzfisher said. "It's kind of like going to the doctor and saying, 'I have a pain here' and then trying to figure out what is causing the pain."

Schwartzfisher said she's hopeful that once the cause of the problem is found it will only take a matter of a few days to fix it — much less time than earlier this summer when the ferry's port engine failed leaving the vessel out of commission for about a month. The bad oil test result was on the boat's port side engine — the same engine that failed in June.

Griffin scan: No answers yet

JOHN FLESHER
Associated press

GAYLORD — Technicians at a Otsego Memorial Hospital used a CT scan machine Saturday, Aug. 24 to take X-rays of a wooden beam that could be part of the Griffin, a ship commanded by the French explorer La Salle that has been missing for more than three centuries.

The procedure was the latest twist in a decades-old quest by diver and history buff (and recently full-time Charlevoix resident) Steve Libert to locate the vessel, which disappeared in 1679 after setting sail from an island near Lake Michigan's Green Bay with a crew of six and a cargo of furs. A dive team retrieved the timber in June after discovering to their disappointment that it wasn't attached to buried wreckage.

Libert and his team hope the CT scan, which produced images of tree rings inside the beam, will help determine whether it was cut down around the time the Griffin was built. A Cornell University expert in dendrochronology — a scientific technique that uses ring patterns to date trees — has agreed to analyze the images, which were recorded on compact discs.

"It's very important," Libert said. "Now this comes down to science."

He said the timber could be the Griffin's bowsprit — a spar or pole that extends from a vessel's stem. Michigan's state archaeologist Dean Anderson, has said he isn't convinced the beam is part of a ship and contends it could be a stake from a "pound net," a type of fishing gear used in past centuries.

Libert told the Charlevoix Courier his research shows that the beam is inconsistent with a pound net stake. Also, he said his research has shown that pound net fishing wasn't a technique used in Crews carefully carry what is believed to be the bowsprit of the Griffin into a room at Otsego Memorial Hospital that contains a GE Lightspeed 64-slice CT scanner. Data from the scan is being sent to experts from Cornell University, who will help determine if it is indeed part of the 300-plus-year-old French ship.

How to cultivate economic growth?

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Fireplaces notwithstanding, figuring out how to grow Charlevoix's economic base beyond the huge seasonal swings it usually brings, has been a top concern among city and community leaders in recent year.

Just what seeds to sow to stimulate that growth is something for which the community and its leaders will have a lot of food for thought in the coming weeks and months.

About 40 people turned out Thursday, Aug. 22, for the second of two economic development related presentations hosted by Charlevoix officials last week.

The first, on Tuesday, Aug. 20, was a presentation on urban retail development strategies by consultant Robert Gibbs. (The Courier reported on that presentation in last week's edition.) The second event, on Thursday, was a presentation by Laura Krizov, a representative from the Michigan Main Street Program.

Krizov was on hand to explain details of the program and to help the community decide if it might be a good choice for Charlevoix.

The Michigan Main Street program provides technical assistance and other services to train staff members and volunteers in the aspects of design, economic restructuring, promotion and organization as they work to preserve and revitalize a downtown. So far, the program has seen success in many cities throughout the state. Perhaps the best known Northern Michigan example is Boyne City, which just celebrated its 10 year anniversary of the program's beginning in that community. Other Michigan cities in which the program has seen success include Grand Haven, Manistee, Calumet and Lansing.

Krizov explained the program has three levels, associate, select, and master. The associate level is the entry level program, which is where Charlevoix would start if it chose to pursue the program. She said there is no cost to the city to participate, aside from travel costs for those who attend training events downstate. If the community eventually moved up to the "select" level, it would have to commit to hiring a full time Main Street Program director.

Krizov noted that of the current cities which participate in the Michigan Main Street Program, all but three simply converted their downtown development authority boards into Main Street boards and made their authority directors the Main Street Program director.

She explained that the program is very much volunteer driven and centers around historic preservation and economic development. She said training

Work under way

STEVE ZUCKER/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

Road construction crews work on placing new pavement on M-66 just south of Wickersham Road on Wednesday as part of a Michigan Department of Transportation project that began Monday. The project will involve repaving 3.4 miles of M-66 from south of Stover Road to north of Sequanota Road. The work, which will require lane closures under flag control, is expected to be completed by Friday, Sept. 13.

School board OKs staff contracts, no pay raise

JAMIE BAUMANN
Northern Michigan Review

JAMIE BAUMANN/NEWS-REVIEW

At the Charlevoix Public School's Board of Education meeting on Monday, Aug. 26, Charlevoix resident Jim Masa (left) presents Charlevoix Public Schools Superintendent Bob Gendron with a flag that flew over the Capitol building in Washington, D.C., during the Eisenhower presidency.

The Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education ratified contracts through the 2014-2015 school year for both the teachers support staff unions at its meeting on Monday.

"The main negotiation was over health benefits," district superintendent Robert Gendron said. "In the past, the district paid 80 percent and the teachers paid 20 percent of their health insurance costs. We are now moving to the state-mandated fixed caps for insurance benefits, which are hard dollar amounts that won't be exceeded, rather than percentages. Then employees are free to opt for the coverages they choose and pay for anything over the hard cap."

There are no salary increases included in the contract.

Both teachers' union chief negotiator Annemarie Conway and retiring support staff union president Jane Kanine praised the board and Gendron with how the negotiations were handled.

"Bob really listened and treated us with such respect," Kanine said. "The support personnel feel valued and ready to come back to work."

The district also received a clean report from their auditor, Angie Roelofs, with Baird, Cotter and Bishop. She reported that at the end of 2012-2013, $84,119 was added to the district fund balance, leaving a starting fund balance for 2013-2014 at about $536,946 or 5.3 percent of the total district budget.

"Keep moving in the direction you are headed and keep an eye on that fund balance," Roelofs said. "With 5.3 percent, that's only about two or three weeks operating expenses in reserve. Continue bringing up your fund balance."

Virtual school

Representatives from Job Skills Technology Inc., Connie Hunter, senior sales representative, and Gary Kughn, vice president, presented the curriculum for the Charlevoix Virtual Academy, slated to begin this school year and run on the Charlevoix Public Schools calendar. Charlevoix has received a seat time waiver from the state which will allow students who attend the virtual academy to be counted for state funding.

The targets for the virtual academy are students who are currently home-schooled or who need more flexibility in their high school scheduling than the comprehensive high school can provide. The curriculum is being provided through K-12.com and will offer a basic core curriculum, for those who may be struggling with classes, a comprehensive curriculum for the on-target students and an Advanced Placement curriculum for honors students. The virtual school will offer up to 140 different high school courses including core subjects, electives, foreign languages and Advanced Placement courses.

Phone help will be available to students from their assigned teachers, as they progress through the online curriculum.

"Our course layout is half online and half offline," Kughn explained. "Science courses come with hands-on science kits that are shipped directly to the students' homes and mentor guides for their parents to be able to supervise the experiments. They also come with some textbooks and novels. Some things are printed out from the computer to be completed offline."

There is flexibility in the virtual school, in terms of which hours in a 24-hour period a student wants to do the work. However, it must be done every day.

"If we don't monitor that strictly, students may let the work build up until it's impossible to finish a course," Kughn said.

The virtual school costs nothing to parents and students, as it is funded through Charlevoix Public Schools. It is now in the process of admitting students.

Community member Jim Maas presented a flag that had flown over the Capitol building during President Dwight D. Eisenhower's term to Gendron. It had been given to David Kendall, who served as General Counsel to President Eisenhower, and Kendall had given it to Maas. He decided to donate the flag to the Charlevoix Public Schools.

Fire damages Norwood home

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

A misplaced cigarette butt is believed to be the cause of a fire that damaged a porch on a home in Charlevoix County's Norwood Township Sunday.

City of Charlevoix Fire Department Fire Chief Paul Ivan said firefighters were called to the home of Timothy and Susan Boyko at 04001 Lakeshore Drive, off Clipperview Road at about 8:15 p.m. to a report of a fire at the house.

Ivan said because of the home's distant location at the end of a dead-end road, Charlevoix fire officials called for mutual aid from the Charlevoix Township Fire Department right away.

When they arrived on the scene, firefighters found the fire located under a platform/enclosed porch of the house. Ivan said firefighters were able to remove some siding and extinguish the fire, limiting damage to an external corner and the porch of the house.

Ivan said a misplaced cigarette butt started the fire, which was fanned by the wind off Lake Michigan, causing the fire to spread rapidly.

Ivan said the house is still in a "livable" condition.

There were no injuries in the incident, and firefighters were on the scene for a little more than an hour. The Charlevoix County Sheriff's office also assisted at the scene.

Downstate man injured in crash

An Okemos man was injured in a one-vehicle rollover traffic crash on Beaver Island Saturday, Aug. 24.

A news release from the Charlevoix County Sheriff's office identified the injured man as Robert Kuehne, 78, of Okemos.

Sheriff's officials said Kuehne sustain a head injury in the crash and he was flown off the island to be treated for his injuries at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Officials said the crash happened at about 11 a.m. on East Side Drive south of Hannigans Road in Peaine Township

Sheriff's officials said Kuehne was driving a black 1995 GMC Yukon south on East Side Drive when he reported he fell asleep. The vehicle then failed to negotiate the curve, struck an electric pole, and continued into the tree line where it struck a large tree causing the vehicle to roll over.

Authorities said alcohol does not appear to be a factor in the crash and noted that Kuehne was wearing his seat belt.

County commissioners set public hearing on budget

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners approved a public hearing notice on its 2013-2014 general fund budget at its regular board meeting Wednesday.

The general fund budget is available for public viewing in the county clerk's office, 203 Antrim St. in Charlevoix. It shows a total proposed revenue for 2014 of $13,794,545, with the same amount expected in expenditures. That's a 2.21 percent decrease in both revenues and expenditures for the county

The public hearing for the general budget is scheduled for 9:30 a.m. Wednesday, Sept. 11, in the commissioners room.

The board also accepted the retirement of two long-time city workers. Julie Whitley, animal patrol officer, will retire Friday, Aug. 30, after more than two decades with the county, and James Matts will retire after more than 26 years with the county parks department.

Finally, the board approved a low bid of $1,200 for lettering at the substation and county office building in Boyne Falls, through Boyne City's The Wood Shop as well as the renewal of grants. The grants included a victim rights grant of $30,300 with the Michigan Department of Community Health and a renewal of a $9,020 grant to help the sheriff's office with the enforcement of snowmobile violations.

Sheriff Don Schneider said over the past few years, the office has not been able to use the entire grant.

"We haven't even come close to touching the budget," he said. "There just hasn't been enough snow."

Bats: To be revered not feared

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

Bats do not generally get very positive media coverage. We will be working at changing that today. My present interest comes from a particular encounter, but more about that later.

Very few creatures are nearly as universally feared or despised as bats. Old movies about vampires and the occasional story about real vampire bats as close as South America are no help at all. It is a shame, really.

Bats are about the most unlikely creatures in the world. Flying mammals have some very real problems. They don't make nests for their young like many birds do. So how do they handle the circumstances of very young bats that certainly cannot fly yet and need to be fed almost constantly? How do they find their way in complete darkness? We hardly ever see them. Where do they spend their down time? All good questions. Finally, how does a creature as small an ounce keep itself warm?

Female bats carry their young offspring, and remarkably, some kinds carry and feed as many as four little bats until they are ready to fly on their own. Most bats spend their sleep time during the daylight hours in some dark corner or cave, where they cool down to almost the temperature of their surroundings.

Partly because of that energy-saving technique, small bats can live for as long as 20 years.

Bat navigation is the most interesting part of their life pattern. They can find their way through even the most complicated environment in complete darkness by depending on echo-location. They emit sounds we cannot hear, and depend on the echos from those sounds to tell them what surrounds them. If a bat is fluttering around your back yard some evening, toss a small pebble into the air near it. It will follow the trajectory of the pebble almost all the way to the ground, thinking that it is some sort of insect that might be food. Moths that are often pursued by bats have learned to drop to the ground when they sense a bat nearby. They can hear the sounds the bat is making. The bat's built-in radar system is by far the most accurate in the animal world, and it is the secret to their success as night-flying insect eaters. They can find and eat in complete darkness, anything from a mosquito to a moth.

The reason for the present interest in bats is an encounter at about dawn out a mile or so in Lake Michigan a few days ago. A very small bat (the common local kind, called little brown bats) fluttered into the underside of my boat canvas. It was clearly tired and could hardly fly. It hung onto the canvas for a few minutes and even dropped onto my hat briefly. After several minutes of slowly crawling around on the canvas, it found a quiet, dark corner and went to sleep. At least I am pretty sure it was asleep. It did not move for more than half an hour. I watched it a little warily, since its behavior was not exactly normal for bats, and bats do, rarely, carry rabies. Rabid bats do not sleep as far as I can find.

I suspect this bat had been eating insects it found in the air above the water over the lake, and had wandered too far from shore. A small bat needs almost its own weight in insects to support an hour of flight. With the coming of dawn, it needed to stop, but could find nowhere but my boat. After its half-hour nap, it crawled around looking for a dark place to spend the daylight hours. Not finding anything in the boat, it finally flew off headed toward land. I thanked it for the natural history lesson, waved goodbye and wished it well.

Bats are extremely valuable consumers of insects and should be given all the help we can provide. Even if they were not so valuable to us, they would still be among the most interesting of all the creatures that surround us here in Northern Michigan.

Roger Knutson is a professor emeritus of biology from Luther College in Decorah, Iowa, where he taught for 30 years. He holds master's degree and a doctorate from the botany department at Michigan State University.

'Stuff the Bus' a success

Editor:

Dozens of volunteers from many local businesses and organizations helped collect school supplies during Char-Em United Way's sixth annual Stuff the Bus which will benefit students in Charlevoix and Emmet County schools.

Each year during the back-to-school season, Char-Em United Way collects donated school supplies to distribute to children in need in the Char-Em Intermediate School District. On Saturday, Aug. 17, school buses parked at the Kmart plazas in Petoskey and Charlevoix were filled with items donated by the community that will help students succeed in school.

With assistance from volunteers we collected more than 10,500 items this year, one of the best years yet. All supplies collected will go to children in Charlevoix and Emmet counties allowing them to start the new school year with confidence. The number of students that qualify for free or reduced lunch show that almost half of the families in the district are still struggling financially and the community's support of Stuff the Bus can provide a huge relief.

Char-Em United Way would like to thank all the volunteers and sponsors that made Stuff the Bus possible including Petoskey and Charlevoix Kmart stores, WTCM and Z93 radio, Petoskey Department of Public Safety, Charlevoix Township Fire Department, Bergmann Center-Aktion Club, Retired and Senior Volunteer Program, Charlevoix Public Schools, Johnson's Buses and Fletch's of Petoskey, and Donald Neill Farm Bureau Insurance as well as many local businesses and individuals.

Supplies will be distributed to schools in the Char-Em Intermediate School District within the next two weeks. Students in need of school supplies should ask their teachers about Stuff the Bus supplies. We invite you to join us next August for Stuff the Bus 2014.

Hospital to host wellness event

Charlevoix Area Hospital's next "Wellness Wednesday" will be from 8-11 a.m. on Wednesday, Sept. 4, in the hospital's solarium.

The Wellness Wednesday Health Screens include: total cholesterol, HDL, ratio, and glucose levels, body mass index (BMI) score, fat percentage, and a blood pressure reading. No fasting is required. However, for those who do fast, an LDL and triglyceride reading can also be obtained.

The cost for the service is $12. Hemoglobin A1C Levels can also be done for all diabetics for an additional $5. Participants will receive a blood pressure log and all test results at the time of the screening.

A registered nurse will adapt health consultation and educational materials to individual results.

Appointments can be made in advance by calling the office of community health education at Charlevoix Area Hospital at (231) 547-8906 or by email: kjacobsen@cah.org. Walk-ins are also welcome.

LOOKING BACK…

Now that the last strains of the last summer concert in East Park are nothing but a memory, Looking Back looks back at what the park looked like when it was new. Begun in 1937, it occupied land purchased by the city in the mid 1930s. Only two hold-outs refused to sell, the Milton-Block grocery on the Mason Street corner, and the owners of the Min-Eva cafe building across from the Central Drug Store (far left). The first set of four shuffleboard courts, at right, went in in 1937; the second set followed in 1939. At far right appears the Troy Laundry on Clinton Street below the Murdick's Fudge building, later to become the Model Home Laundry in the 1950s. It provided summertime laundry service to many of the local hotels and rooming houses. Concrete pillars topped by large white globes lined the central walkway down to Round Lake. Metal chairs were also provided along with the benches that looked exactly like those in the park today. In the foreground is the large kidney-shaped fish pond that was the delight of kids for years, with its three islands always planted with flowers. A raised, uncovered wood bandstand platform was constructed in the 1950s near the tree at right, replaced later by an open concrete and stone platform where the camera is positioned. That in turn was replaced in July, 1991 by a covered shell (and new fishpond) called the Odmark Pavilion after esteemed school and city band director Clarence "Odie" Odmark, the name and honor then carried over to the sleek current bandshell that was put up in 2008. East Park, the jewel of Charlevoix's park system, has been the focal point of city life now for more than 75 years.

Racing parts company moving to Charlevoix

RYAN BENTLEY
Northern Michigan Review

A racing parts manufacturer is shifting operations to Charlevoix, bringing a handful of employees from its previous Grand Rapids site and opening up new jobs as well.

Oliver Racing Parts, which produces connecting rods for use in racing engines, was acquired earlier this year by Advanced Clean Air Technologies (ACAT Global). That company has its headquarters and a manufacturing site for catalytic converter components along M-66 in Charlevoix, at a site that housed a Hoskins Manufacturing plant in years past. ACAT is moving the Oliver subsidiary's operations into the same building, and company officials expect them to be in full swing sometime this fall.

ACAT Global president and chief executive officer Joseph A. Moch said Oliver's previous facility in Grand Rapids was dated and obsolete.

"We decided to relocate it up here to take advantage of the facility and be able to operate both companies out of the same area," he added.

Oliver employees were offered the opportunity to relocate with the company, Moch said, and five opted to make the move to Northern Michigan. The company will have six other positions opening locally in the immediate future.

If the ramp-up at the Charlevoix site goes smoothly — and if the company moves ahead with the possible addition of a second shift for Oliver — an additional six to 10 positions could open in the coming months.

"We're just excited to be getting things going," Moch said.

Job fair

Oliver Racing Parts soon will be hosting a job fair as it seeks candidates for employment. The fair will take place 4-8 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 5, and 8 a.m.-noon Saturday, Sept. 7, at Oliver's new Charlevoix site, 5339 N. M-66. Skilled candidates are sought for positions including accounting/administrative, CNC machinists, inside sales, machine operators, maintenance and quality.

Applicants should have a current resume, and come prepared to complete an application for employment. Oliver Racing Parts staff will be on hand to answer questions and conduct mini-interviews for specific positions. The company requires a background check and pre-employment physical, including drug screening.

Annual Little But Mighty bridge walk set for Monday

The 25th annual Little But Mighty Labor Day Bridge Walk will take place on Memorial Bridge in downtown Charlevoix on Monday, Sept. 2.

Organizers and participants will begin gathering at the Townhouse Bar at about noon, where t-shirts for the event will be sold. Prices for the t-shirts at $13 for sizes small through XL and $16 for 2XL and 3XL.

Each year organizers of the walk use proceeds from the sale of the t-shirts to benefit a local charity. This year the proceeds from the event will go to the Bergmann Center.

Shortly before 1 p.m. participants will make their way to the north side of the bridge. At 1 p.m. the bridge tender will lower the gates of the bascule bridge to close the road to traffic for the walk.

Walkers will gather in the roadway, sing "God Bless America," hear a brief monologue to mark the end of the summer tourist season, and then walk the short distance from the north to the south side of the bridge.

New year, new building format

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

It's been a busier than usual start to the school year for Charlevoix Public Schools administrators.

In fact, they haven't really stopped working.

"Upon the decision last spring that seventh and eighth grade would be moving to our building, we immediately made a transition team," said Suzanne Klinger, now middle school and high school principal for Charlevoix Public Schools. "Groups of teachers from both buildings were working on different teams to make sure the transition goes smoothly."

Klinger said it was important not only to allow the seventh and eighth graders to keep their middle school identities, but to afford the same to high schoolers. So the teams worked to establish a physical separation between the grades. The seventh and eighth grade core classes will take place on the downstairs level of the now middle school/high school building, while the ninth-12th-grade core classrooms will be housed on the building's upper level.

"It took some finagling," said Klinger.

The finagling included both moving students and teachers into different classrooms as well as rethinking some of the classroom use — namely, because Charlevoix's board of education approved the district's one-to-one iPad initiative at its June board meeting, the school was able to repurpose some of its former technology labs.

"We don't think we'll need them, with all the students having iPads," said Klinger.

In order to keep middle school and high school identity separate, Klinger and her teams have put together clubs and extra curricular activities aimed at each age group of students. They're considering reinstituting a middle school student council something middle schoolers haven't had before. High schoolers will have their typical homecoming week — which will include the middle schoolers in some, but not all, of the activities.

Klinger sees the move as beneficial to both middle and high school students.

"We can have a nice mentorship program with all of these kids in the same building," said Klinger. "Having some of our council members mentor those kids at what a student council would look like and how to operate a council — the older kids are looking forward to encouraging the younger ones."

The middle school and high school students will share at least one commonality: the whole building will revert to semesters. Previously, the high school students were on trimesters. This way, having both middle school and high school students on semesters will allow the district to share some teachers between the grades.

For elementary principal Doug Drenth, the consolidation just means he will keep one class of kids a year longer.

"It just means my fifth graders stay an extra year," said Drenth, adding that this was the same grade of students who were kept from the middle school two years ago. "They keep staying. They've been the kings and queens of our school for two years."

And that's fine by Drenth.

"I think this is one of the nicest group of children I've ever gotten to work with, and I look forward to their leadership one more year," he said.

The upper grade levels in the elementary, for example, read to kids in the lower elementary. And even with the leadership this reading program hopes to install, Drenth is happy to keep the sixth graders one more year.

"The sixth graders here allows them an extra year to mature. It lets them be kids for a longer period of time," he said.

The sixth graders will get one period per day in the middle/high school — a band class — which will help their transition to the building next year.

Not much brick-and-mortar changes came to the elementary, beyond the addition of 60 lockers for the sixth graders. Mainly, it was a little shuffling of classrooms, said Drenth.

During conversation throughout the year, parents and board members were concerned about class sizes in the elementary. The largest is projected to be the fourth grade, with classes numbering 31 and 32 children. But in the morning, the fourth graders will be divided between 3 teachers for their core classes, which would put class sizes between 20-21. In the afternoon, the class sizes will be back to 31 and 32, but each teacher will have an assistant.

"My teachers feel like they're going to do well with that," said Drenth. "I just feel like my staff and everyone involved with the move has been accommodating and gracious.... Like any kind of grieving process, you have to give it time to get to that point, and it was hard on a lot of people. But we're going to do what's best for the kids."

Atomic Training offered at library

The Charlevoix Public Library, in partnership with Recorded Books in Prince Frederick, Md., is offering Atomic Training, a comprehensive online database of how-to training covering popular software and applications including tutorials for Microsoft, Apple, Adobe, Google, as well as social networking applications.

Through the Charlevoix Public Library website, patrons of the Charlevoix Public Library will have unlimited access to video tutorials in the library or at home. These videos help patrons of all ages improve job skills and become more proficient in basic computer applications. Mobile device training is also available, allowing patrons to learn how to get the most out of their smart phones and tablets.

"Atomic Training will allow the library to provide instant training exactly when our patrons need it," said Valerie Meyerson, library director. "We are excited to see how this service will open doors for people trying to find affordable and easy solutions to keeping up with technology."

To start learning, a patron heads to the site, creates an account, and then chooses from the drop down menus one of the highlighted tutorials. Stop by the information desk at the library for information on how to access this service or visit www.charlevoixlibrary.org/resources.

Atomic Training was established in December 2010 as a division of its parent company, Atomic Learning. Atomic Learning has provided high impact e-learning solutions for more than 10 years to 16 million users in 45 countries. For more information, visit www.atomictraining.com.

Plant sale Saturday

The Charlevoix Evening Garden Club will host its annual plant sale from 9 a.m.-noon, on Saturday, Aug. 31 at Ferry Beach in Charlevoix, near the corner of Stover Road and Ferry Avenue. The event will take place rain or shine and will feature a large variety of perennials for sun and shade. Members and friends supply the plants from their own gardens that grow well in our climate. Master gardeners will be available to offer advice and answer questions. The Charlevoix Evening Garden Club maintains the "Welcome to Charlevoix" entrance gardens and other community gardens.

The club meets at 7 p.m. the second Tuesday of each month at America House, 615 Petoskey Ave., Charlevoix. Each month members listen to an informative lecture, tour area nurseries and gardens, and share gardening tips. For more information, call Margaret at (231) 547-4182 or Janine at (231) 547-7384.

OBITUARIES

Linda Poorman Behringer, 77

Linda Poorman Behringer, age 77, of Defiance, Ohio, died Sunday, Aug. 25, 2013.

Linda was born on March 8, 1936, to Joseph and Laverne (Frye) Poorman in Bellaire, Ohio.

Linda is survived by her three children and six grandchildren: Margaret "Meg" Behringer Maloney, of Charlotte, N.C., an attorney, and her husband, John, and their daughters, Miriam, 19, a freshman at Rhodes College in Memphis, and Hannah, 16, a student at the San Francisco School of Ballet in San Francisco who attends college online through Brigham Young University; Dr. David R. Behringer of Defiance, Ohio, an orthodontist, his wife, Amy, and their children, Connor, 19, a freshman at the Lima Branch of Ohio State, and Alexa, 17, a senior at Tinora High School; and Douglas [illegible] Behringer, of Columbus, Ohio, an attorney, and his wife, Faith, and their twin sons, Cody and Christian. Also surviving her are her sister, Peggy Poorman Jordan and her husband Bill Jordan, and her niece and nephews and their families, all in Atlanta and the surrounding areas, including the Jeff Jordan, Greg Jordan, Becky Jordan Bourne and Andy Jordan families. Linda also loved her sister-in-law, Marylou Behringer Osborne and her Behringer niece and nephews and their families, John Behringer, Brenda Behringer Brinkman, Steve Behringer and Tony Behringer. Preceding her in death were her parents.

Linda attended Ohio State University. She then worked as a teacher in Defiance, Ohio, until she stopped working to raise her family. She later moved to Charlevoix, where she was a decorative painter and managing partner of Brown Bag Originals, which sold original works of more than 150 artisians.

She obtained a bachelor's degree from Central Michigan University and became the director of the Retired Senior Volunteer Program for two Michigan counties before she worked as the district manager of the northern service office of Junior Achievement of the Michigan Great Lakes, Inc. She then moved to Charlotte, N.C., to work as a librarian in the Charlotte Mecklenburg Schools for several years before returning to Ohio.

Linda was known for her kindness and generosity, sense of humor, artistic talents and abilities as a seamstress. She was an avid reader and continued to play bridge, spider solitaire and complete daily crossword puzzles until shortly before her death.

Linda has asked her family to spread her ashes in her beloved Northern Michigan. She will be missed by those who loved her.

A memorial service will take place at 11 a.m. on Friday, Sept. 6, at St. John Lutheran Church, Defiance with the Rev. Joshua Schmidt officiating. Calling will take place at the church from 9 a.m. until the time of service. A luncheon will be served at the church following the memorial service.

The family asks contributions be made to the CHP Defiance Area In Patient Hospice center or to the Hiawatha Behavioral Health, in lieu of flowers.

Donald M. Phillips, 76

Donald M. Phillips, 76, of Charlevoix, formerly of Mission Viejo, Calif., and the Grand Rapids area, passed away Friday, Aug. 23, 2013, at McLaren Northern Michigan in Petoskey.

He was born March 23, 1937, in Grand Rapids, to Harold and Gladys (Libby) Phillips, and graduated from Wyoming Park High School in 1955.

On Nov. 2, 1956, he married Mary E. Dreyer.

Don worked in the food distribution business for companies such as 7-Up and New Era Potato Chips. He retired in 1998 from Sandoz-Novartis Nutrition.

Don is survived by his wife, Mary, of Charlevoix; their children, Chris Phillips and her husband, Tom Fleming, of Hudsonville, Corey and his wife, Annette Phillips, of Spring Lake, Kelly Phillips and her husband, Joe Leytze, of Cincinnati, Ohio; grandchildren, Lydia and Sophia Leytze, Jacob and Anna Phillips; brothers, Jack (Susie) Phillips of Hudsonville, Robert (Grace) Phillips of Grandville, Duane (Arlene) Phillips of Cutlerville; sisters, Phyllis (Mel) Rahn of Jenison, Marilyn (Doug) Stauffer of Wyoming, Helen Kinny of Holland; several nieces and nephews.

A celebration of Don's life will be 11 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 7, at the South Wyoming United Methodist Church, 2730 56th St. SW, Wyoming, Mich.

Memorial contributions may be made to Hospice of Little Traverse Bay, 1 Hiland Drive; or to Northern Chaplain Services, 416 Connable, both in Petoskey, MI 49770.

Sign Don's guestbook at www.winchesterfuneralhome.com.

Lorraine E. White, 84

Lorraine E. White, 84, of Petoskey, went home to be with her Lord Tuesday, Aug. 27, 2013, at her home surrounded by her children.

She was born Sept. 15, 1928, in Whittemore to Cecil and Bessie (Partlo) McBride. Lorraine moved to Petoskey as a teen where she worked as a cook and waitress at her parents' business, Mickey's Dairy Bar in Petoskey. She met her husband-to-be, Paul H. White, while working there and on May 26, 1951, they were married. They made their home in Hayes Township in Charlevoix County.

Lorraine was very family oriented, spending time with her children and grandchildren. She loved to travel, watch birds, and was a Girl Scout leader. She attended the Charlevoix Church of the Nazarene.

She is survived by her children, Sandra (Ward) Sommerville of Alanson, Debra (Carl) Taylor of Boyne Falls, Barbara (Terry) Moore of Conway, Linda (Dennis) May of Pellston, Paul White of Oden, Carol White of Petoskey; 19 grandchildren; 26 great-grandchildren; sister, Arlene (Jerry) Knickerbocker of Davison.

Lorraine's husband Paul preceded her in death on May 28, 1989. She was also preceded in death by an infant daughter, Cynthia Gail, and a great-granddaughter, MacKenzie Himebauch.

Visitation for Lorraine will be from 6-8 p.m. Friday, Aug. 30, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. Funeral will be 2 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 31, at the Charlevoix Church of the Nazarene with The Rev. Daniel Gilmore officiating. Burial will follow at the Undine Cemetery in Hayes Township.

Memorial contributions may be made to Hospice of Little Traverse Bay, 1 Hiland Dr., Petoskey, MI 49770; or to the Charlevoix Church of the Nazarene, 12023 Waller Road, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

Historical society ice cream social set for Sept. 3

The Charlevoix Historical Society will be hosting its annual Volunteer Recognition Ice Cream Social at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, Sept. 3, at the Depot, Depot Beach, in the Heritage Garden.

Featured this year inside the depot will be an exhibit of large prints made from the society's collection of glass plate negatives that date from the late 1800s into the early 1900s, plus two large albums of prints made from these same negatives and assembled specifically for the 135th anniversary of the Belvedere Resort.

The public is invited to attend. Call (231) 547-0373 for more information.

Explore the shipwrecks in Oyster Bay

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

On the northern shore of Lake Charlevoix, about three miles from the city of Charlevoix, a pinkie of a bay extends northward.

That pinkie is Oyster Bay. The long, skinny bay is just under a mile long and, at its mouth, about a third of a mile wide. Between the bay's unusual size and its northern situation, people around the turn of the 19th century saw the bay as a good place to store boats. Underwater.

In articles in the 1950s, writers described the bay as a "shipwreck graveyard."

"If, some dark summer night, residents at Oyster Bay should think they are seeing the sails of old schooners or hearing sea chanties on the night air, George Burns, 96, pioneer resident who has lived on the Bay for half a century, wouldn't be a bit surprised," reads a story that was printed in the Charlevoix Courier on Aug. 1, 1951.

"After all," continues the article, "such things as ghosts and eerie sounds are expected in a graveyard, and Oyster Bay is a graveyard for old ships."

Now, 60 years after that article was published, wind and wave action have only more firmly embedded the ships into the bottom of the bay.

Six of those ships have been identified, according to that 1951 article. There is the Jennie Mullen, a two-masted, 206-ton schooner built in 1866. After a storm snapped a rope that moored the Mullen to a tugboat, the Mullen ran aground. The wreckage was towed to Oyster Bay in 1907 or 1909, according to a transcribed oral history from Robert Burns, son of George Burns. The oral history is stored at the Charlevoix Historical Society.

In the middle of the first decade of the 2000s, George Burns' great grandson, Bryan Burns, drew a map of Oyster Bay. This map and an essay that accompanies it is stored at the historical society — it was part of a scholarship essay competition, said society director David Miles.

Bryan puts the Mullen on the western edge of the bay. Alongside it is the Gordon, a 56-foot steam vessel built in 1881. It carried passengers between East Jordan and Charlevoix. When it was loading passengers once at Ironton, it overestimated its carrying capacity and capsized. It was laid to rest next to the Mullen in 1912.

Along the northern edge of the bay, an unidentified boat lies. Counter-clockwise from the unidentified boat are the I.Y. Avery, the Onekama and a boat called the Pottowatmee. A sixth named boat, the Beaver Queen, lies in the mouth of the bay.

The Avery is a 133-foot, three-masted schooner whose bury-date is unknown. The Onekama, a 57-foot steamer passenger boat, was buried in 1905. The Pottowatmee, also spelled Pottawatomie, was built in 1871 and is 48-feet long. It spent its life as a passenger boat, and its bury-date is unknown.

The Beaver Queen was a sailing scow. The 1951 newspaper article reports that the scow's owner built a cabin on the ship and sailed it to Chicago. The Beaver Queen, which had been built on Beaver Island, was towed to Oyster Bay and sank in 1918.

As for ghosts among the shipwrecks, Bryan, as a school kid writing an essay for a contest, wasn't convinced.

"When I was little, my brothers told me about the ghosts that lived in the water of Oyster Bay," wrote Bryan. "At the bottom of the Mullen is where the captain and the cook lived. When the boats were burned, those two went down with the boat and have been there ever since. So far, there have been no sightings of ghosts in the bay."

When the water is low, as it is right now, the bones of the shipwrecks are above water.

"The six in Oyster Bay are very good to view because the water is so low," said Miles.

Snorkelers, kayakers and boaters can float among the wrecks and see a part of history. But access can be tough. The closest public access for paddlers is at the end of Eastern Avenue. Eastern Avenue dead ends into Lake Charlevoix, and both Charlevoix Township and the Charlevoix County Road Commission are listed as owning that piece of property, according to Charlevoix County's geographic information systems office. From there, it's about a mile paddle to the bay.

The bay itself has an inlet along its northeastern edge. A portion of that expanse is the Oyster Bay Nature Preserve, a Little Traverse Conservancy property that is accessible to the public.

To reach the public access at the end of Eastern Avenue, head east on Boyne City-Charlevoix Road. About a third of a mile from U.S. 31, turn right on Eastern Avenue and drive a third of a mile to the water.

In low water, the shipwrecks stick right out of the water, said David Miles, director of the Charlevoix Historical Society.

Exhibit features work of Charlevoix residents

A new exhibition is on display at the Crooked Tree Arts Center's Atrium Gallery in downtown Petoskey featuring the work of two Charlevoix residents.

"Dissimilar Interests" highlights the work Meredith Krell and Steve Toornman. The exhibit explores the artistic journey of their work from linoleum block prints representing campers, crows, dogs and influences from travels to Japan by Krell, to mixed media objet d'arts, to a large scale painting of Toornman's titled "Serious Business" (displayed in Grand Rapids during ArtPrize), to smaller intimate oil paintings of toy cars and other intriguing objects.

"It probably would have been advantageous to our professional art careers, financially, to have stuck with a single theme created in a recognizable style repeated with a single media. However, neither of us has ever been able to do that. Instead we have both varied our focus on subject matter and the choice of materials we work with. This show is a celebration of that diversity," explains Toornman.

The end result is a fascinating view of the curiosities and observations of the artistic mind with whimsy, study and joy in what they see and do. "Dissimilar Interests" will be on display through Sept. 16. For more information, contact the Crooked Tree Arts Center, located at 461 E. supplied through the program includes topics such as roles and responsibilities in the program, how to get volunteers, how to revitalize downtowns, best practices and how to get a local program started.

She said it was clear to her that Charlevoix would qualify for the program if it is the path the community wants to follow.

Initial reaction from much the audience was positive, if not enthusiastic. Several people asked questions trying to pick Krizov's brain about the secrets to the success of the program in Boyne City.

Some audience members asked questions about how restrictive the program is on downtown property owners.

Krizov said in the absence of a federal historic district designation (which Charlevoix does not have) much of that is up to the community.

"Main street is about preserving what we have, not tearing down and building new," Krizov said. "We really rely on the communities for determining (development restrictions)."

At one point the discussion strayed into how to develop the economy in the whole community, not just the downtown. Krizov noted that while the two are closely related, a vibrant downtown can be a key factor in attracting new businesses to the broader area.

The same discussion spilled over into Monday's Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority Board meeting. It was the first meeting for newly-hired Charlevoix Economic Development Director Bethany Pearson, who takes on a new role that replaces the former authority director's position and is shared with the city at large.

Pearson's question for the board: "What do you want me to be doing in this position?"

The question prompted what ended up being a brainstorming session on how to stimulate the economy in Charlevoix's downtown and beyond.

City manager Rob Straebel suggested that the city might want to commission a marketing survey for the downtown that could highlight what its strengths and weaknesses are and where community leaders should be focusing their efforts.

Board member Kirby Dipert suggested that Pearson might be able to glean some of that information simply by surveying certain demographics such as boaters who stay in the city's marina.

STEVE ZUCKER/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

Laura Krizov from the Michigan Main Street Program answers audience questions about the program during a presentation at the Charlevoix Public Library on Thusday, Aug. 22.

Board member Dan Barron suggested finding out from downtown merchants which of the authority's efforts seem to be working and which are not. Dipert said the lights in the trees downtown "make a huge visual impact" and the consensus of the board was that it should try to expand the display into East Park as soon as this winter.

Another consensus that seemed to grow among the board was that one of the keys for the community to market itself toward attracting new businesses in the downtown and beyond is the quality of life the community offers.

Pearson asked for feedback on the idea of pursuing the Main Street Program and the board members wanted more information. Straebel noted that the application deadline to be considered for this year's Main Street training program is Nov. 1 and both the authority's board and the city council would have to pass resolutions in favor of pursuing the associate level of the Main Street program fairly soon to meet that deadline.

For more information on the Michigan Main Street Program, visit www.michiganmainstreetcenter.org.

Charlevoix officials made video recordings of both presentations at the library last week and they have now been posted online. Those who would like to view the videos can find links to them on the city's website, www.cityofcharlevoix.org and its Facebook page.

FERRY

In the meantime, the island's secondary ferry, the Beaver Islander, will again be handling the bulk of the island's water-based transportation needs.

She said although this time the Emerald Isle's problem is taking place at a somewhat less-busy time than the earlier issue — which included the Fourth of July holiday — repair crews and transportation officials are still treating the ferry's repair as a very high-priority. She noted that the upcoming Labor Day weekend won't be as busy as the Fourth of July and so far transportation officials haven't had to call on St. James Marine's barge or the Keweenaw Star for help. However, she said, even though tourist traffic to and from the island slows down, fall is also an important time for the ferry service because its the time when island residents starts stocking up on supplies to get them through the long, cold, ferry-less winter. The Beaver Islander's lesser cargo-carrying capacity could become a factor in those efforts.

Schwartzfisher said the switch to the Beaver Islander will cause some changes to the Beaver Island Boat Company's schedule until the Emerald Isle is back in service and she recommends those with travel plans to or from the islands check with the boat company by phone at (231) 547-2311 or its website www.bibco.com for updates. As of Thursday, Beaver Island Boat Company officials had posted a modified ferry schedule through Sept. 9.

SCAN

this region of the Great Lakes until the mid-1800s.

A small crowd watched during Saturday's scan, many snapping photos, as crewmen with Libert's Great Lakes Exploration Group unloaded the nearly 20-foot-long timber from a trailer at Otsego Memorial Hospital in Gaylord, about 225 miles northwest of Detroit. The hospital is near the timber's storage spot— a location Libert is keeping secret to prevent theft or vandalism.

Libert had originally planned to host a press conference in Charlevoix following Saturday's scan, but he said he called it off when the scan took longer than anticipated and because several national media organizations that had originally planned to attend, cancelled.

The oak beam has been submerged in water and preservative chemicals. One end is split, and three peg-like pieces of wood protrude from the side. Libert said they are "tree nails" and provide further evidence the beam was fashioned by humans.

For the scan, it was wrapped in a permeable fabric and placed inside a cradle made of PVC pipe. Eight men lowered the slab, which weighs about 400 pounds, onto dollies and wheeled it down a hallway to the hospital's radiology section, maneuvering carefully around corners and through doorways. Then they donned rubber gloves and hefted it into the room with the scanning machine.

There, it was placed on an examining table usually occupied by patients being X-rayed to detect cancerous tumors, blockages in blood vessels or other internal ailments. The mechanical table eased one end of the timber — a nearly five-foot-long section — into the doughnut-shaped scanning machine, where a spinning X-ray camera recorded cross-section images of the interior.

BILL SERVENY/GAYLORD HERALD TIMES

Steve Libert, president of Great Lakes Exploration LLC., stands as what he believea is the bowsprit of the Griffin is acanned at Otsego Memorial Hospital in Gaylord Saturday. The CT scan of the beam could help solve the mystery as to whether it came from the Griffin, the sailing ship commanded by French explorer René-Robert Caveller, Sleur de la Salle, which mysteriously disappeared in 1679 somewhere in the Great Lakes.

Readings were taken about an inch apart for 10 minutes.

The crew then lugged the timber into the hallway, turned it around and took it back for a scan of the other end.

A computer read the images and projected them onto screens in an adjacent room. Tree rings were clearly visible, and radiology director Andy Lanway said technicians counted at least 29. Carol Griggs, the Cornell specialist, has said 50 or more might be needed to determine when the tree was felled by matching ring patterns with those of other trees in the university's archive.

"I'm not sure it's going to be enough," Libert acknowledged. But he added, "There might be more rings. They might be so tight that we couldn't see them with the naked eye."

The rings weren't as clear as those of treated lumber that the hospital scanned earlier as a test, Lanway said. "That may be due to the age, or its being in the water for so long," he said.

Regardless of the outcome, Lanway said the hospital was glad to have taken part in the experiment.

"If this is what they think it is, it's of great historical significance," he said.

Griggs has said it could take up to a year to complete her study and write a report. If it's inconclusive, Libert said the next step might be extracting a core sample for a carbon 14 test, another dating method.

In the meantime, he said he intends to keep searching the floor of northern Lake Michigan near uninhabited Poverty Island for other signs of the Griffin, which he's convinced is nearby. Libert told the Courier Wednesday that he and his team plan to make their next visit to the area sometime yet this year. He said this expedition won't be as public as the last one when he and his crew thought they might uncover the Griffin.

Libert said he's also going to be taking another sample from the timber and sending it out for a different kind of testing known as accelerated mass spectrometry, which may yield better results on the age of the timber.

He found the possible bowsprit there during a 2001 dive. But because of a legal dispute with the state over ownership of the timber, it took until this year to get permits to excavate the lakebed.

"Most of us think this is the Griffin," said Tom Gouin, vice president of operations for Great Lakes Diving and Salvage, the Gaylord company that provided the dive crew. "We're all excited to get back out there and find the rest of it."

WHAT IS A PATIENT-CENTERED MEDICAL HOME (PCMH)?

A Patient Centered Medical Home practice is centered around you, the patient, and dedicated to providing you with the best health care experience possible. Instead of just treating you for a problem here and there without making a connection between symptoms, a patient-centered medical home works to connect the dots and coordinate your care.

The PCMH is about you, the patient. It's your care the way you want it.

BENEFITS OF JOINING A PATIENT-CENTERED MEDICAL HOME PRACTICE:

- Same-day appointments with off-hour service
- Focused, personal interaction with doctors and care teams
- Have your health care team really listen to your questions and concerns
- Build a relationship with your physician and the team
- Be a part in making decisions regarding your care
- You, your doctor, and your health care team will create a plan to help you achieve optimum wellness.

DO YOU HAVE A MEDICAL HOME?

Ron Bindi is a Rayder.

He went to school in Charlevoix, played as a Rayder, still talks to old teammates and more than anything, wants to see the Rayder tradition once again stand tall.

After all, as Bindi sees it, the football team is more than just a football team in the community of Charlevoix.

"It's not my program. It's your program, it's the community's program," said Bindi, a 1971 Charlevoix graduate who takes over the reigns from Joe Pruchnicki following one season in Charlevoix. "That's the biggest thing I'm trying to establish. We're trying to get out and establish oursevles within the community."

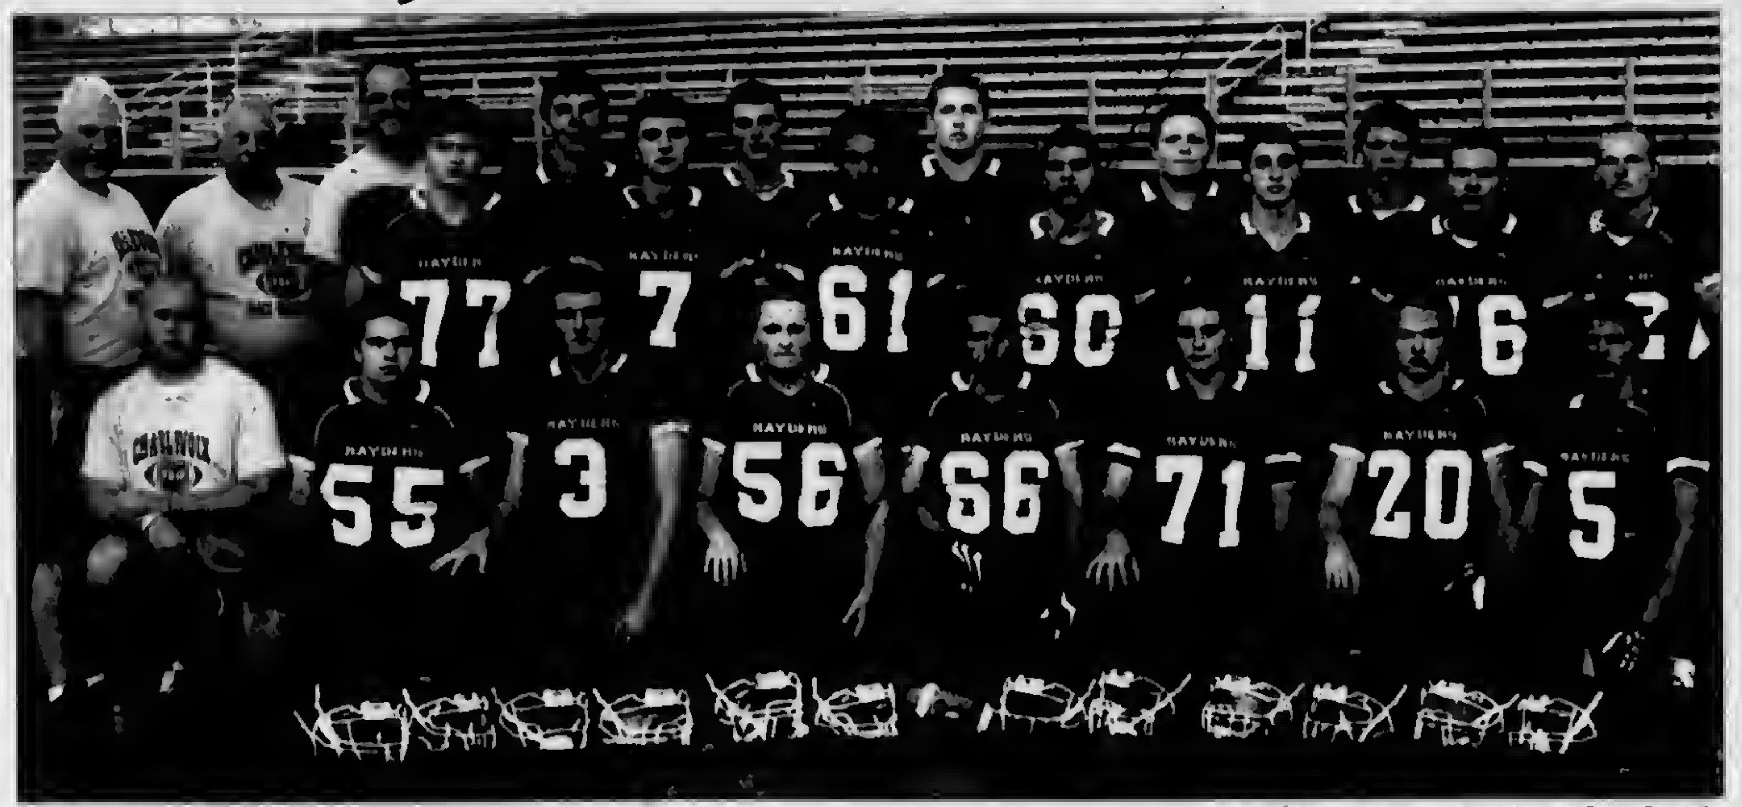
The Rayders, who finished 1-8 last season after winning their final regular season game against East Jordan, have an established coach in Bindi.

Bindi has coached at the Division II level in Texas, Division III level in Indiana and three years was as a coach for the Grand Rapids Rampage in the Arena Football League.

Since moving back to Charlevoix in 2004, Bindi had run the Bellaire football program, taking the Eagles to a 9-4 record and appearance in the eight-player state final game last season where they lost to Deckerville, 14-12.

In three years competing in eight-player football, Bellaire compiled a 25-9 record.

Going from coaching at Bellaire and now back to 11-man football this season won't be a problem for Bindi, who joked he's loving having the extra players to work with for an offense that will run the triple option and variations of the veer.



M. CHRIS LEESE/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

The Charlevoix High School football team waa set to open its 2013 season, Thursday, Aug. 29, with a non-league contest at St. Ignace. Team members are front (from left), assistant coach Steve Apfel, Devin Largent, Will Teigenhof, Spencer Stewart, JJ Bottomley, Andrew Michaud, Sam Hovle, Logan Eckhardt; middle, Spencer Kilpatrick, Shane Sutherland, Kenen Bortha, Sam Eakes, Brad Rizzo, Spencer Bruce, Luke Klinger; back, coach Tim Carey, head cosch Ron Bindi, coach John Haan, Austin Putman, Nate Moon, Andrew Mitchell, Adam Michaud, Bryan Noirot.

"I don't know what to do with three of them," he said with a laugh. "I'll tell you, what we did with eight men offensively in Bellaire, is basically the same thing we're doing here. It's all about blocking, tackling and the fundamentals. We want to be fundamentally sound. We're going to hold onto the ball, we're going to tackle the right way. We're going to be aggressive."

A total of 19 players comprise Charlevoix's roster, including nine returners.

"It's been good," Bindi said. "From when I first met the kids and talked to them, they've bought into what we've wanted them to do. They've been in the weight room, getting there at 6:30 a.m. throughout the summer, and they've been working hard in practice and conditioning hard.

"We've been throwing a lot of new stuff at them."

Of the nine returning letter winners, seven are now seniors including running back/linebacker Shane Sutherland, running back/defensive back Bryan Noirot, running back/defensive back Brad Rizzo and wide receiver and defensive back Logan Eckhardt.

Returning seniors up front for the Rayders include Andrew Mitchell, Sam Eakes and JJ Bottomley.

"All our seniors and three or four year players," Bindi said. "They are all pretty solid. We're small on numbers with just 19, but one of our strengths is that nearly everybody is back."

A pair of juniors also return who played as sophomores in quarterback Nate Moon and running back Bryan Noirot.

"We've worked really hard since I've gotten here to build this program from the ninth grade to the 12th grade," Bindi said. "With the 19 players that we have, guys are playing for a variety of positions and we're still trying to figure some things out. Every position is open to competition and there's no free rides based upon where you played last year. You have to compete to earn your spot."

That also includes the quarterback position, where a trio of players could be under center come game one.

The Rayders were set to open the season with a non-league contest, Thursday, at St. Ignace.

"Overall, I think it's been a good transition," Bindi said. "I've retained last year's coaching staff and there's an easiness there. A lot of these kids, their parents played for me or I've played with their uncles.

"A lot of that has been very positive," Bindi said. "The community is seeing what I'm trying to instill and in practice, we're working on the fundamentals."

Bindi said more than anything, he and his team are excited about getting the season started.

"The kids are very fired up to play," Bindi said. "They're enjoying it and they're believing in themselves. Everything is new for them, but with this group I've got, so far it's been tremendous."

JV FOOTBALL

JV drops opener to St. Ignace

STEVE ZUCKER

The Charlevoix Rayder junior varsity football team couldn't overcome several turnovers and penalties as it opened the high school's football season with a 18-13 loss to St. Ignace in a non-conference game at Kipke Field Wednesday.

The Rayders scored first in the first quarter on a 6-yard run by Turner Havens. The two-point conversion attempt failed.

The Saints answered in the second quarter, scoring on an 8-yard run. Their two-point conversion attempt also failed, leaving the score knotted at 6 each at halftime.

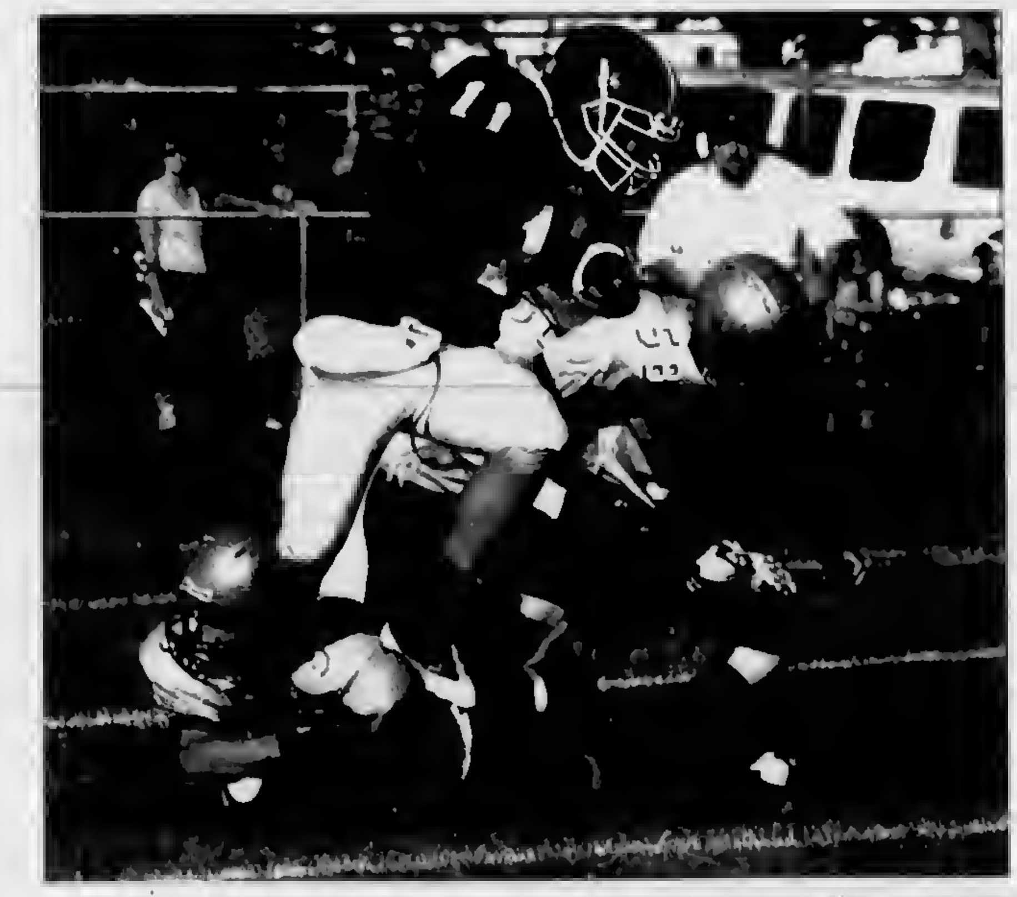
Both teams were dogged by numerous penalties. On one play, the referee threw two flags and his hat to indicate a holding penalty and to personal fouls.

The Saints took the lead in the third quarter on a 8-yard touchdown run. The two-point conversion failed, leaving the score 12-6.

As the Rayders made their way down the field, an alert Saints defender picked up a Rayder fumble and returned it 48 yards for a touchdown. The two-point conversion again failed leaving the score 18-6.

After the momentum-killing play, the Rayders were able to regroup and early in the fourth quarter Forrest Noirot scored on a four-yard touchdown run. The got the potential one-point advantage they needed when Hunter Cox's point-after kick was good closing the gap to 18-13.

As the clock wound down, couldn't capitalize on a couple of chances to make a push to the end zone.



STEVE ZUCKER/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

Charlevoix's Forrest Noirot (11) triea to break free from a St. Ignace defender during the first have of the Rayder JV team's game against the Saints at home Wednesday.

Noirot lead the Rayders with 68 yards on 11 carries, while Malcom Williams had 54 yards on four carries, including one big gain that set up a Rayder touchdown. Turner Havens had 24 yards on four carries and Ben Boss notched 15 yards on nine carries.

Noirot was 0-3 in passing.

On defense, Williams, Boss and Justin Adkins had nine tackles each, while Alex Klieber, had eight. Hunter Cox had seven and Noirot had six.

Rayder JV head coach Todd Klinger said the game was "tough to swallow" because of the turnovers that plagued the team.

"It is tough to win when we have three fumbles and three interceptions," Klinger said. "The players deserve credit for playing hard and almost overcoming the turnovers to win the game."

Klinger praised Noirot for how he ran the option offense. "He made some good decisions and had some nice runs. We did a good job moving the ball but just did not get in the end zone enough."

He also lauded the defense for their play despite being put in a some tough spots because of the turnovers.

"They made some big stops to keep us in the game," he said. "Overall, we did do a number of positive things that we will build on and correct our mistakes to get ready for the next game."

Next week the Rayder JV will travel to Glen Lake on Thursday, Sept. 5 for a non-conference game set for a 6 p.m. kickoff.

SOCCER

Season opens with 2 wins

The Charlevoix High School boys' soccer team opened up the 2013 season on a positive note Friday as they shut out Maple City Glen Lake, 4-0 in a non-league contest.

Walker Drost and Nick Snabes had two goals apiece for the Rayders, while Davis Labelle had two assists and Brendan Britt added one assist. J.J. Wachler earned the shutout in goal.

On Saturday, the Rayders played a pair of games as they lost to Leland, 3-1, and then defeated Manistee, 8-1.

Against Leland, Davis Lebelle scored the lone goal with an assist from Drost.

Against Manistee, Snabes had two goals, while Christian Mayte, Noah Carson, Nick Bradley, Wesley Crandel, Drost and Britt all had a goal apiece. Lebelle and Bradley had two assists apiece, while Drost, and Snabes each had an assist.

The Rayders were next slated to travel to Boyne City on Thursday, Aug 29 and then will travel to Kalkaska on Tuesday, Sept. 3 and Harbor Springs on Thursday, Sept. 5.

FLAG FOOTBALL

Flag football returns Sept. 11

The City of Charlevoix Recreation Department will again host a flag football program this fall.

The co-ed program, which is intended for children in grades 1-4, will begin with a practice set for 6 p.m. on Wednesday, Sept. 11 at the Carpenter Street ball fields.

Games will take place the following three Wednesdays.

City recreation director Amanda Wilkin said she is still working to finalize the site for the games, but she is hopeful at least one week's games can take place at Kipke Field.

"Flag Football is a fun way for children to get outside, be active and to learn the game of football," Wilkin said.

The cost is $20 per child. Registrations are available to print out from www.cityofcharlevoix.org, at city hall, and will also be sent home from school. All players must be registered by 5 p.m. on Wednesday, Sept.11t.

For further information, call the city recreation department office at (231) 547-3253 or email Amanda Wilkin at: amandaw@cityofcharlevoix.org.

Rayders go 3-3 in first tournament

PELLSTON — The Charlevoix Rayder varsity volleyball team opened its season at the Pellston Varsity Primary Tournament on Saturday, Aug. 24, where the team posted a 3-3 record.

In pool play the Rayders defeated Bay City 25-11, 25-19, and Harbor Springs 25-11, 25-21.

The Rayders then lost to Pellston 25-23, 25-23 in very close games, and then fell to Onaway 25-18, 25-19. The Rayders ended pool play defeating Central Lake 25-18, 25-19.

Moving into bracket play, the Rayders bowed out of the tournament falling to Kingsley 25-19, 25-21.

"Our record ended 3-3, not bad for a first outing, but we still had intentions of getting farther in bracket play," Charlevoix coach Audra Randall said. "Our team has really good chemistry and I expect that we will take care of the ball a little better on serving, defense and out of system balls in our next outing. All the girls have a great passion to step their game up and are willing to work hard to accomplish that."

Randall pointed to the play of Madeline Boss who earned recognition on the All Tournament Team with 32 kills, 85 percent serve recieve, 35 digs and 12 aces. She also noted Gloria Greene who had 46 assists, 13 aces. Madi Carey had 23 kills. Jennaca Holecheck had 24 digs, 14 kills and 7 aces. Olivia Storm had 32 assists and 14 aces with 93 percent serving accuracy.

The Rayders return three seniors this year, Carey, Kelsey Pischner and Holecheck, all of whom have been "big contributors" on the court, Randall noted.

Boss and Greene are the team's returning juniors.

The rest of the team is new to varsity, among them are four sophomores who Randall said bring a lot of talent to the team.

The Rayders were slated to next be in action at a tournament in Leland on Thursday, Aug. 29.

Woman pleads no contest in Gayling golf team crash

KALKASKA (AP) — A driver who authorities say was involved in a two-van crash that killed a 31-year-old Michigan high school golf coach, an 18-year-old player and a passenger has pleaded no contest in the case.

Rhonda Mitchell of Kalkaska entered the plea Monday to a misdemeanor charge of committing a moving violation causing death. She had been facing felony manslaughter charges.

Three people died, and six, including Mitchell, were hurt in the April 29 crash in Kalkaska County.

A police investigation shows both Mitchell and Grayling High golf coach Jason Potter were at fault.

Mitchell's no-contest plea isn't an admission of guilt but will be treated that way at sentencing, which is set for Oct. 2.

Rayders enter first year of pay-to-play smoothly

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Charlevoix High School won't field a boys tennis team this fall, but school officials don't think its a function of the district's newly-enacted athletics participation, or pay-to-play policy.

So far the implementation of the policy has gone smoothly, new district athletic director Travis Garrett said.

The school board decided to move forward with the participation fee earlier this year as part of its efforts to balance its long-beleaguered budget.

The fee works like this:

For high school students there is a fee of $100 per student, per sport. There is a maximum per-school-year fee of $250 per student or $400 per family.

For students who are eligible for the reduced-cost lunch program, the fee is $50 per student, per sport with per-school-year maximum fees of $125 per student or $200 per family.

For students who qualify for free lunches, there is no participation fee charged.

For middle school sports there is a $75 per-sport, per student fee with a yearly maximum of $175 per student and $300 per family.

For students eligible for the reduced price lunch program, the fee is $37.50 per student, per sport, with an $87.50 per school year maximum per student and $150 per family.

Parents need to contact the school office to verify eligibility for the free and reduced programs.

Participation fees must be turned in to a player's coach or the main office in order for athletes to be eligible for the first contest.

"We understand that times are tough all over, but see this as an opportunity to be able to maintain and run at the highest level, all our current offerings. In addition, the majority of schools in our conference as well as MHSAA are now charging participation fees," Garrett wrote in a letter to parents about the fees.

Contacted by the Courier Wednesday, Garrett said he's not yet had a single parent complain to him about the fee.

"I can also say that it has not had an effect on our numbers of athletes," Garrett said. "We have roughly the same number this year as we did last year. Our soccer numbers are very strong compared to last year. This year we are at 20 kids. Tennis graduated a high number of seniors, so this (the low number of tennis players) was expected. The majority of schools in the Lake Michigan Conference charge a fee as do the majority of schools in MHSAA. Given the cost of sports ... I think parents were expecting and are understanding of the fee for athletics."

CROSS COUNTRY

Rayders, Amber Way notch early season wins

The Charlevoix Rayders cross country teams are only two meets into the 2013 season and already they have racked up some impressive finishes.

The boys team notched first place finishes at the Ryan Shay Memorial in Central Lake on Saturday, Aug. 24 and another at the East Jordan Cross Invite Wednesday.

The girls team took third at the Central Lake meet and was nipped by two points for first place by Petoskey in the East Jordan meet. Also, Charlevoix's Amber Way took first place in both meets' girls races.

At Central Lake, Way, a junior, finished the two-mile course in 11 minutes, 53 seconds. In the Division III team standings, Charlevoix won the boys side of the meet with 31 points, while Manistee was second, 39, followed by Harbor Springs, 57.

Manistee won the girls meet with 27 points, followed by Harbor Springs, 47; and Charlevoix, 50.

For the Charlevoix boys, Tristen Rudolph finished a team-best third in 11:01, while Luke Buday was fourth, 11:30; followed by Jackson Buday, fifth, 11:32; and Noah Jeakle was eighth, 11:43. Lucas VonLau was 11th, 11:47; while Nicholas Plude was 13th, 12:13; and C.J. Rice was 14th, 12:24.

Other Charlevoix girls runners were: 4-Caroline Boss, 12:57; 12-Cora Taylor, 14:42; 16-Isabelle Buday, 15:08; 17-Pauline Sheets, 15:25; 21-Anna Voci, 16:01; and 28-Kayla Illenden, 16:29.

At the East Jordan meet, which included multiple area Division 1-3 schools, temperatures in the upper 80's slowed times and drained bodies throughout the race.

In the end, the Petoskey girls' cross country team brought in a narrow first place finish over Charlevoix, escaping with a two point, 42 to 44 win over the Rayder girls. Harbor Springs was a close third with 49 points, while Boyne City finished fourth with 87 points.

Charlevoix's Way was the top girls finisher on the day, regardless of division, bringing in a time of 18:31.9, as she was followed by Caroline Boss in a third place finish at 20:59.2.

"She's ahead of last year, she's in way better shape than last year," Charlevoix girls' coach Mary Plude said of Way. "If things had been right we were hoping to go under 18, but with the way the heat was, she had to stay relaxed the first mile."

The Charlevoix boys' cross country team brought in a first place finish amongst Divisions I, II and III in the race, scoring 27 points, which included five top 10 finishes. Petoskey took second with 53 points, followed by Traverse City Central, 70; Harbor Springs, 103; and Boyne City, 104.

Tristen Rudolph finished first in the division for Charlevoix, second overall, with a time of 17:20.4, while also finishing in the top 10 for Charlevoix were, Nick Plude in third at 17:44.2, Jackson Buday, 17:46.6; Luke Buday, 18:48.8; and Noah Jeakle, 18:52.2.

Also for the Charlevoix girls: 14th Ellie Way; 17th Cora Taylor; 19th Isabelle Buday; 20th Pauline Sheets, 22nd Anna Voci; 36th [illegible] Matchett; 45th Katie Mousseau; 47th Sarah Rockafellow; 52nd Erin Hybl; 54th Alyssa Chomiczyski; 59th Ryleigh Knoop. Boys: 13th Lucas Vonlau, 19:07.4; 23rd Brendan Gregory; 24th Parker Skeel; 31st Shae Bearss; 34th Jonathan Lindfors; 37th Micah Peebles.

New state-wide teacher evaluations pending

JAMIE BAUMANN
Northern Michigan Review

The way teachers are evaluated could soon change.

An independent state panel of educators recently recommended teachers be evaluated in scheduled and unscheduled observations as part of a state-wide evaluation system. One of four piloted observation tools would be used, including: Charlotte Danielson's Framework for Teaching, Marzano Teacher Evaluation Model, The Thoughtful Classroom or 5 Dimensions of Teaching and Learning.

Area schools are already familiar with two of the models, according to Bob Alger, director of instructional services for the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District. Local school district administrators have been using 5 Dimensions of Teaching and Learning to help define quality instruction and use a common vocabulary. In addition, Alger said that many local districts are using modified versions of Danielson's system.

"Two years ago, we began using 5 Dimensions to help administrators redefine quality instruction and instructional practice that they can comment on. For example, we helped people recognize that data recorded during an observation is useful in coaching conversations. We discussed how to have professional conversations to get an individual to reflect and see the need to change," Alger said.

"As far as the recent report, we're on hold, waiting to see what happens before putting together a huge training program," Alger said. While he expects legislation concerning teacher evaluation will ultimately result from this report, what lawmakers actually decide to codify into law remains to be seen.

"For example, the ISD will probably be an integral part of training districts in the model chosen. However, the report says, and rightfully so, that whichever model a district decides to adopt must be implemented with fidelity, meaning that the training must be vendor-provided," he explained. "Also, the report recommends the four models, but that the state should pick only one to fund for implementation. Which one will the state pick, once lawmakers have finished?"

The report bases the overall teacher evaluation on observation of practice and student growth.

Current law allows state, national, and local assessments to be used to measure student growth. The report recommends that the state develop, select and support all aspects of assessments that are aligned to state-adopted standards in all core subject areas (English, math, science and social studies). Also the report says the state should develop or select assessments to be used in non-core content areas such as in the arts, health, physical education, technical education and other electives.

A new assessment over the Common Core set of national standards developed by the Smarter Balanced Assessment Consortium is slated to begin in the spring of 2015. This interactive, computerized test is projected to give individual performance levels that will be comparable year to year. The current state testing system gives performance levels of how students do on standards defined in each academic subject, which shows schools the strengths and weaknesses in their curricula, but the test isn't designed to measure an individual student's performance year-to-year, because the standards tested vary each year.

Funding for the Smarter Balanced Assessment has not yet been approved by the Legislature.

"The difficulty in determining the level of student performance comes in finding an instrument that will quantify that performance," Alger said. "This is an issue of great magnitude. The decisions on teacher evaluation have real-time effect on both students' and teachers' lives."

Color confusion

Accountability scores send mixed message on Charlevoix schools

JAIME BAUMANN
Northern Michigan Review

Charlevoix Public Schools officials were left with more questions than answers after the Michigan Department of Education released its new School Accountability Scorecards for the first time last week.

Through a waiver agreement with the U.S. Department of Education, instead of meeting the federal Annual Yearly Progress targets, mandated by No Child Left Behind, and the Michigan School Report Card grades, the state and federal targets have been combined into the School Accountability Scorecards.

The new scorecards are based on several accountability criteria — annual proficiency targets for all students, targets for subgroups, gap reduction between the scores of high and low performers, school planning and attendance or graduation rates.

The annual proficiency targets differ from district to district and from building to building within a district. The targets were set as increments of improvement that each building would need to meet in each subject area — reading, writing, math, science and social studies — to ensure that all students will be proficient by 2020. For example, schools with students who averaged significantly under proficiency will require greater improvement each year to hit their targets, than schools with students averaging nearer to proficiency.

In addition to setting targets for whole school achievement, the system sets targets for each student subgroup of 30 or more students within a school. Examples of subgroups a school might have are: students whose families are socio-economically disadvantaged, students of various ethnicities, students of two or more races, and students with disabilities.

There are also targets set to narrow the gap between the performance of the top 30 percent of students and the bottom 30 percent of students. If, for an individual school, the performance gap is greater than the state target in a subject area, the school would not hit the performance targets for that subject area.

The School Accountability Scorecard allocates points for competent and on-time completion of the School Improvement Plan, points for an educator evaluation, and points for student attendance rates at the elementary level or student graduation rates.

Sewer saga

Who should pay for sewer backup damage?

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Should the city show compassion on a few residents at the possible expense of all of them?

That is the crux of a question that was before the Charlevoix City Council Monday as it heard from one of its residents about the damage caused to her Upright Avenue home by a sewer backup in the basement earlier this summer.

Sam and Jill Washburn and Rod and Kim Stevens are asking the city to reimburse them for the portion of damage not covered by their homeowner's insurance from the sewer backup that happened on the morning of June 15.

Jill Washburn told the council Monday that it was around 8 a.m. when she and Sam noticed the sewage starting to back up in their basement drains.

She said they called the city and by 9:15 a.m., city crews were on the scene and found a blockage in one of the sewer mains.

Washburn said when city crews used a water jet out in the main to clear the blockage, it caused even more sewage to backup into the basement. She said the couple lost everything in their basement from carpet to the bottom 20 inches of walls, to bathroom fixtures, cabinets and flooring.

"I don't have any luggage. The dehumidifier is gone. In the main room I don't have the bar that was painted for me. I don't have grandmother's chairs. I don't have anything left of my basement," Washburn said.

The cleanup and repairs cost the Washburns $10,658 (more than $4,000 for cleanup alone) and their homeowner's insurance paid them the maximum allowed by their coverage for such losses, $5,000. The Washburns want the city to reimburse them for the rest.

Comments sought on revised donation policy

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

The Charlevoix City Council will likely soon be tweaking its months-old donation acceptance policy, but it is seeking input from the community before it makes the changes.

On April 15, the council (made up of three different members than the current body) approved a donation acceptance policy in the wake of the months-long controversy that surrounded a now-defunct proposal by an anonymous donor to pay for the construction of a gas-fueled outdoor community fireplace in East Park.

Some highlights of the original policy include:

— When in the city's best interest, the city reserves the right to restore, relocate, remove or relinquish gifts that are no longer suited for their original purpose.

— Ongoing maintenance and operational costs may need to be covered by outside sources, depending upon council's decision.

— There are guidelines established for each donation that council may choose to use when deciding merits of each donation element.

— Acknowledgements and plaques should be tasteful and subtle.

In a May 7 recall election sparked by the fireplace controversy, city voters chose to replace then-council members Jill Pieba, Bryan Vollmer and Dennis Kusma with current council members Gabe Campbell, Jeff Porter and Shirley Gibson. At its next meeting, the newly constituted council voted 4-2 to do away with the fireplace project. In early June, discussions among the council about concerns still lingering from the fireplace controversy, prompted the council take another look at the donation policy approved in April.

Ultimately the council voted to appoint a five member committee to re-evaluate and make recommendations on the policy. The committee members appointed are: Kay Heise, Birdie Whitley, Tom Ochs, Dave Robinson and Robert Kline.

In his explanation of the draft revised policy to the council, city manager Rob Straebel said the revision uses much of the same language as the original, but has reorganized it for better readability, and some provisions "have been changed or revised for a better understanding of the obligations of the city and the donor," Straebel wrote in his memo to the council.

Straebel highlighted what he considered the most notable changes including:

— A requirement that purchase or installation of a gift shall not commence until the donor's gift has been completed and funds received by the city for such purposes.

— A requirement for a maintenance and repair endowment for any gift expected to cost $5,000 or more annually to operate or maintain. The policy suggests an endowment amount of 20 times the expected annual costs.

— A provision that allows the city in "rare and unusual" circumstances to waive either of the first two requirements when the value of the gift substantially exceeds the cost associated with it, but only after appropriate notice and public hearing.

Fire destroys boat on Lake Charlevoix

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

A fire, apparently sparked by a faulty cooking stove, destroyed a sailboat moored on Lake Charlevoix's Oyster Bay late Friday, Aug. 30.

Charlevoix Township Fire Chief Dan Thorp said firefighters were called to the area of Indian Trails Road in Hayes Township around 8:30 p.m. Friday to a report of a boat on fire in Oyster Bay.

When firefighters arrived on the scene, they found a 34-foot Tartan sailboat fully engulfed in flames about 100-150 yards off shore.

Thorp said the owners, a couple from Northport, reported that they were attempting to light an alcohol-fueled stove on the boat when it flashed-over causing a fire on the boat. The couple tried briefly to extinguish the fire, but then abandoned the boat aboard a dinghy they had with the sailboat. The couple made it to shore safely aboard the dinghy.

Thorp said fire crews had no way to reach the burning boat, so he contacted officials at the U.S. Coast Guard Station Charlevoix who gave them permission to put out the fire using a boat from Bergmann Marine.

He said it took about an hour to make the necessary arrangements. When fire crews arrived at the sailboat, all that remained was the bottom portion of the fiberglass hull. Firefighters used a portable pump to extinguish the lingering fire and then crews from Bergmann used another pump to get the water out of the hull to prevent it from sinking.

"It was probably minutes away from sinking," Thorp said.

A 34-foot sailboat burns in Lake Charlevoix on Friday night after a problem with a cooking stove cause a fire on board.

Bergmann Marine crews then towed what remained of the sailboat back to their dock and returned the following morning to retrieve the boat's mast from the water.

Firefighters, who were also assisted by the U.S. Coast Guard and the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office, were on the scene until about 12:30 a.m.

Pool director Al Gooch to retire

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

After more than 40 years in the aquatics business, Charlevoix Area Community Pool Executive Director Al Gooch will soon be hanging up his towel for good.

The pool's board of directors announced this week that Gooch will retire from his position effective Jan. 14, 2014.

In a press release on Gooch's impending retirement, the board expressed its appreciation for Gooch's efforts during his 15-year tenure.

"Al has been the pool's executive director for the past 15 years and during that time (the pool) has not only expanded its programs offered and increased its usage by the community but has grown to be a valued community resource employing a number of area residents," the board wrote in the release.

Gooch

The board said over the coming months it will be looking both internally and externally to ensure that they select a suitable candidate to assume the role of executive director and that no changes in operations are expected during the transition period.

Gooch said he took over as the pool's executive director in March of 1998, about eight months after the pool opened. Before that he had worked in aquatics for the Midland Community Center for 25 years. Gooch grew up in Midland and participated in his middle school and high school swim teams. He migrated to the community center thanks to his swim coach and began working there while he was attending Central Michigan University.

Gooch, 60, said he's never regretted moving his family north 15 years ago.

"Charlevoix has been wonderful," Gooch said.

He said he's proud of how the pool has grown in its offerings over the years.

One of the first things he did after taking over the reins was to add Sunday hours for the pool during the school year. He also noted that the pool has seen huge growth in many of its programs such as the water exercise class, which had a record 30 participants in one session this week; and the Stingrays Swim Team which had only four swimmers in its first season and now tops 100 participants.

"Its been great to watch that grow over the years," Gooch said of the swim team.

He said he's enjoyed watching the many children grow in the pool's swimming classes over the years.

"It has been fun to watch those kids grow up and become accomplished swimmers," Gooch said. "It's gone quickly."

Looking ahead, Gooch said he plans to stay in the area and spend some time relaxing, enjoying all the things Northern Michigan has to offer and maybe find some kind of part-time, not-so-demanding work.

He said he'd like to do some snow skiing and has already purchased his pass for the coming winter.

He added he'll still be around the pool from time to time, perhaps doing some volunteering, or maybe just enjoying some off-duty swimming for a change.

Season turns out strong for tourism

Pure Michigan appears to still be paying dividends

RYAN BENTLEY
Northern Michigan Review

After achieving a strong pace in summer 2012, many of Northwest Michigan's lodging and tourism-related businesses saw comparable — or better — results this year.

As a group, Charlevoix Area Convention & Visitors Bureau executive director Amanda Wilkin said Charlevoix lodging providers' room rental revenue for the first seven months of 2013 was 14 percent higher than that period last year. She anticipates the properties maintained a strong pace through August.

"Anecdotally, everyone said they did well," Wilkin said.

Noting that the share of lodging guests from outside Michigan has continued to grow, "I would probably attribute a lot of (the strong summer performance) to the Pure Michigan campaign, especially since they're focusing more on out of state," she added.

Irene Hizelberger, general manager of the Weathervane Terrace Inn & Suites in Charlevoix, said that hotel had some slow points this summer — such as a period of cool weather in early August but that business kept pace with last year for the summer as a whole.

> "I was pleasantly surprised that we stayed as good as last year because ... last year was such a good year."
> — Irene Hizelberger, Weathervane Terrace Inn & Suites, Charlevoix

"I was pleasantly surprised that we stayed as good as last year because ... last year was such a good year," she noted.

Fred Moore, a partner in Magnum Hospitality — which operates four Northern Michigan restaurants, including two in Boyne City — said company-wide sales trended positively this summer.

"Last year was a record summer," he said. "This one, we were up from last year, so it was a really good summer."

Boyne Resorts, which offers golf and lodging at several local sites, maintained or improved on the 2012 pace this year for its core summer businesses.

"Overall for our Michigan operations, June through August lodging numbers were about even to last summer," Boyne spokeswoman Erin Ernst said. "Golf packages for the same summer period were up over 10 percent compared to last year."

Boyne's Michigan operations include the Boyne Mountain Resort in Boyne Falls, Boyne Highlands Resort in Harbor Springs and The Inn at Bay Harbor — A Renaissance Golf Resort.

Having achieved its strongest summer performance ever last year, Stafford's Hospitality vice president of hotels Reg Smith said the 2013 season's outcome for his company basically mirrored it.

"Lodging and food and beverage sales were excellent," said Smith, whose company operates a group of lodging and dining properties around Emmet and Charlevoix counties.

On the whole, Petoskey Area Visitors Bureau executive director Peter Fitzsimons said the lodging properties his organization represents got off to a slow start this season — likely because of chilly weather persisting through much of the spring — and perhaps ended up down slightly in terms of room rentals compared to the 2012 season. But fortunes tended to improve as the summer progressed.

"We started out soft, but I think we had a pretty good season overall," Fitzsimons said.

The visitors bureau collects a 5 percent fee on rooms rented at its member properties around Petoskey and several neighboring areas, and uses proceeds for marketing the area to prospective visitors. Because of the transition from a 2 percent room assessment used for bookings made prior to last October, Fitzsimons said it's difficult to draw direct year-to-year comparisons.

Emerald Isle expected back in service soon

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

If everything goes according to plans, the Beaver Island ferry the Emerald Isle is expected to be back in service in a matter of a few days.

That was the word from Beaver Island Transportation Authority Executive Director Barb Schwartzfisher as of the Courier's press time Thursday following a successful test run by the troubled ferry late Wednesday afternoon.

The Emerald Isle, the main ferry that serves the water-based day-to-day transportation needs for the island has been out of service since Aug. 22 when routine tests on the boat's engine oil came back with results that could indicate a serious problem with the bearings on the port side engine — the same problem with the same engine that failed in June leaving the Emerald Isle sidelined for more than three weeks during the height of the busy summer season.

To keep that from happening, transportation authority and Beaver Island Boat Company officials took the ferry out of service as a precautionary measure. The island has since been served by its secondary ferry, the much older and smaller Beaver Islander.

Schwartzfisher said for the past two weeks mechanics have been trying to figure out what is causing the problem with the engine but have been stumped.

She said mechanics have been over the engine extensively, made "some tweaks," and after Wednesday's successful sea trial, are planning to put the ferry back into service in the next few days.

Schwartzfisher could not be more precise as of press time because arrangements still needed to be made for crews to man the docks and the boat and for freight that will be shipped to and from the island to be scheduled appropriately.

She also said crews will be keeping a very close eye on the engine, testing it frequently for any future signs of trouble.

Both of the ferry's engines were rebuilt last winter, which makes the problems that have cropped up this summer even more puzzling to the authority and its crews.

"It ran for 24,000 hours and this never happened. We have (the engines) rebuilt and now this happens. It's a mystery," Schwartzfisher said.

Deputy mayor enters House race

BRANDON HUBBARD
Northern Michigan Review

An East Jordan City Council member announced Tuesday night he will be making a run for the state House in 2014.

Tony Cutler, 30, announced to the council Tuesday his intention to run for the 105th Michigan House District, representing Antrim, Charlevoix, Montmorency, Oscoda and Otsego counties.

The seat is held by second-term state Rep. Greg MacMaster, R-Kewadin, who announced his intentions last month to not seek a final third term and run for state Senate.

The open, GOP-leaning seat is also being courted by former Antrim County Republican Chairman Triston Cole, R-Mancelona, who announced his candidacy last month.

Cutler, who will also run for the Republican nomination, says he is running to represent people, not politics.

"We need representation who won't forget their Northern Michigan roots," he said in a statement Tuesday night.

Cutler is serving his second year in a four-year term on the East Jordan City Council and previously served eight months on the East Jordan City Council in an appointed commissioner position 10 years ago.

"It has been an honor and a privilege to serve the residents of East Jordan these past years, and I can think of nothing greater than continuing to work on everyone's behalf in the House of Representatives," he said.

The councilman is no stranger to the 105th House District, where he briefly

Looking back 32 years on a Labor Day of love

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

"I Do"

So, it was a mere 32 years ago when we said our "I do's."

Time has passed so quickly. I can't believe that our own children are nearing middle age and we are eligible for assisted living. Who moved our lives into fast forward? It seems like such a blur.

Labor Day is not a popular day for a wedding but I had my reasons. I was in the teaching profession. The proposal was the weekend of the Fourth of July. For most brides and grooms a year down the road would be logical for a wedding. Since both of us weigh heavier on the creative side of our brains, and because we both had been married previously, we were ready to plan a wedding within two months. It made sense that my answer to my beloved's request was, "Yes, I'll marry you but I've made arrangements with my cousin to venture westward to camp, canoe and raft for two weeks." I also added, "And I don't want my students learning a new last name mid-stream during the school year." Not a very romantic answer but this is who I am and, by golly, this man was OK with it.

So the task began: traveling westward and calling from a pay phone when I was able. When my quarters would run out (after all, I needed them for water to take showers) the wedding conversations ended. I invited my parents to come up and visit with my soon-to-be husband whom they had never met. They spent a week getting to know each other, all the while I traversed mountain tops by horseback and fought the swell of currents against a river raft.

So Labor Day it was. Like a light switch, the weather turned from a warm summer day to one that resembled the cool and windy days of November. We were married in the comfort of our own home which we still reside in today. The dining room table graced a cake adorned with fall flowers and champagne ready for a toast. Always one to make certain everyone is comfortable and the setting cozy, I was quick to add another log to the fireplace. Yes, it was really that cold. Unfortunately in my haste the log hit the damper and the entire first floor of our home became enveloped in smoke. Probably not the best welcoming aroma but I was marrying a fireman and one could assume there was a theme to the wedding.

After our ceremony I placed my beautiful lace dress into safe keeping for future memories. This garment would serve as a lasting memory of my mother who had faith that this was the man meant for me. A wonderful seamstress, she decided to design and sew a dress all in her own loving hands. From this elegant garment I changed into a white suit similar to the one John Travolta wore in Saturday Night Fever. Looking back at the photos and seeing this suit, I can only wonder, "What was I thinking?" I forgave myself. After all, it was the 80s and the perm in my hair may have affected my thinking. The white suit was perfect, minus any disco ball, as the evening temperatures cooled when we hoarded and dined on the Star of Charlevoix.

Reflecting on that Labor Day many moons ago, we said promises to comfort, love, honor and respect each other in good times and in bad. We followed through and have been there for each other providing comfort, especially in times of loss when our parents passed away. We shared good times and had and learned that when you get through the bad it makes the good even better. None of us are perfect. If we were life would be boring. What we knew in our hearts 32 years ago was this: If we were ever drawn apart because of our differences, we would definitely come back to each other again. Maybe it's time to renew our vows. I think I still have an eight track of the Bee Gees.

Bridging our past with our future

LOOKING BACK…

This photo, taken from the north side of the property at 109 Park Ave., shows the east end of the channel and bridge area as it looked in the late 1880s and early 1890s. The Lewis Grand Opera House at right was constructed in 1883, site of musicals, plays, lectures, high school graduation ceremonies, the town's first basketball game, and other social events for years. Across the channel, the grist mill was put up in 1885, called Rifenburg's, then the Charlevoix Roller Mills as seen here, finally the Argo Milling Company. It was purchased by Earl Young in 1953 and torn down to become the Weathervane Inn that opened in July of 1954. The boat passing the bridge is the City of Charlevoix, launched in 1888 on the expanded hull of the Champlain that had burned in 1887 with the loss of 22 lives off Fisherman's Island. The south revetment is made of pilings topped by a row of double planking just wide enough for one person to walk along, as seen in the middle distance. In the far distance, the windmill on the Chicago Club can just barely be seen. Behind the revetment, pools of stagnant water formed that stank from rotting fish and decaying garbage, and became breeding grounds for swarms of mosquitos until these spots were filled in. The revetments on both sides of the channel had to replaced constantly from the action of waves, currents, rot, and ice, and at times the federal government, which had responsibility, just let them decay away. Charlevoix did not receive cement revetments until 1938.

Hospital welcomes new general surgeon

Foster

Charlevoix Area Hospital recently announced the hire of a new general surgeon, Sarah Foster, M.D. Dr. Foster has received full privileges in general surgery from the medical executive committee and hospital board.

Dr. Foster obtained her medical degree from the University of Michigan. She completed her residency and internship training at Grand Rapids Medical Education Partners.

A native from Sault Saint Marie, Ontario, Dr. Foster is "thrilled to return home to Northern Michigan to serve the general surgery needs of the Charlevoix area," according to a hospital news release.

Dr. Foster has become a partner at the Charlevoix Surgeons practice in which she, Dr. Marc Lame and Dr. Craig Wendt provide Charlevoix and the surrounding communities with general surgery needs.

East Jordan, townships forming ambulance authority

Talks continue with Charlevoix, surrounding townships

JORDAN SPENCE
Northern Michigan Review

EAST JORDAN — The East Jordan City Commission and six townships will come together to pay for repairs on an ambulance.

"What will happen is we've got the city commission coming together with the townships to repair the one emergency services vehicle," said Jay Peck, director of East Jordan's Emergency Medical Services. "We're then creating the Jordan Valley Area Emergency Medical Service Authority, which will then present a millage to voters to pay for more ambulances."

The cost of repairs for the one ambulance will be $130,000, instead of purchasing a new ambulance for $180,000.

The cost of repairs will go toward replacing the chassis along with other engine issues.

The city, along with Eveline, Wilson, South Arm, Echo, Jordan and Banks townships, will pay one seventh of the repair costs.

This will amount to $5,001 each, every year, for a four-year period.

"For a thousand dollars more, why don't we just buy a new one?" asked commissioner Tony Cutler.

Peck said that the $50,000 would be reserved for future ambulance needs, as they put ambulances on a replacement schedule.

> "It's been a very good working relationship."
> — Jay Peck, East Jordan Emergency Medical Services director

"We've got seven different entities working together, to form this board," Peck said. "It's been a very good working relationship."

The city of Charlevoix and several of its surrounding townships have been in similar talks in recent months. The city has expressed interest in forming a fire and ambulance authority while only some of the surrounding townships have expressed interest in the fire element of the proposed authority, there's been more universal interest in the ambulance authority.

Charlevoix City Manager Rob Straebel said city officials just recently received a first draft of an intergovernmental agreement on forming an ambulance authority that is being proposed by several of the townships. He said staff is still going over the draft and has several questions about it.

"(City fire chief Paul Ivan) and I have made an initial review and we have some questions on how it's going to work," Straebel said. "We will be getting together with the townships to get more details on the proposal."

Some of the questions Straebel said city officials are interested in answering include: How would assets, such as ambulance and equipment, now owned by the city, be transferred; what type of ambulance service would be offered — basic or advanced life support; and where would the service be located.

Straebel said Charlevoix city officials are still most interested in a combined fire and ambulance authority, but are keeping an open mind on other options.

He added that if such an authority were formed, the city and participating townships would appoint representatives to serve on its board of directors and then pledge to support it with either money from the general fund or a voter-approved millage.

The townships which have been in talks with the city about forming an authority include Charlevoix, Hayes, Marion, Norwood and Eveline.

David Foulkrod, owner of the newly-opened American Man Cave in downtown Charlevoix, stands with some of the merchandise he offers in his new business.

The American Man Cave, a new enterprise (in the former Cliff's Shoes/Carey's Boot Shop), at 229 Bridge St., in downtown Charlevoix, is the result of a whim and an inspiration.

Owner David Foulkrod, a native of Pennsylvania, who was stationed in Naples, Italy where he met his wife, has been retired from service in the U.S. Navy for three years.

"We came up to Northern Michigan with a friend, and fell in love with the area," Foulkrod said.

Then they found the available space for a store on Bridge Street.

"I don't know of any other place around that fills the need for this kind of merchandise," he said as he glanced around the store.

Foulkrod said the inspiration for The American Man Cave as an enterprise came as he was standing around in his driveway musing about the possibility of building a man cave of his own in his home or in a pole barn on his property. His wife is thankful, that his plan of operation turned into a commercial enterprise outside of their home. The store has taken a year in planning, locating suppliers, designing the space and acquiring interesting and unique "boy toys," he said.

The store offers man-specific antiques, beer steins, motorcycle gear and jackets, poker chip sets, assorted novelty, gifts and mirrors lining the walls and shelves.

"I am not a bike store, but do carry "cave cycles" (motorized bikes)," Foulkrod said.

Signs, including license plate signs, are his best sellers.

"I like to say that we carry everything a man wants and nothing he needs," Foulkrod said.

Bay Winds Federal Credit Union announces promotions

Chojnacki

Daly

Charlevoix-based Bay Winds Federal Credit Union to announced two promotions among its ranks this week.

Sarah Chojnacki was named branch manager/loan officer for the Petoskey – North office located on East Mitchell Road in Bear Creek Township.

Chojnacki has served as a loan officer since 2005 and recently celebrated her 10 year anniversary with Bay Winds. Her community involvement includes assisting with the organization of the United Way's Instant Wine Cellar event and volunteering with Petoskey's Festival on the Bay and the Petoskey Area Jaycees Annual 5K Run.

"Sarah's expertise and community involvement made her a logical choice for this position," said credit union president/CEO David Leusink. "She prides herself on delivering high-quality service to our members." Chojnacki can be reached by calling (231) 547-3913 or via email at schojnacki@baywindsfcu.com.

Stephen A. Daly has been promoted to the position of loan officer. A lifelong Petoskey resident, Daly worked previously in Bay Winds' accounting department. He currently volunteers with the Petoskey Area Jaycees and was recently admitted into the Leadership Little Traverse program.

"Stephen has demonstrated a solid grasp of lending and continues to distinguish himself as a quick learner and talented member of our loan department," Leusink said. "He is conscientious and possesses an extremely high degree of professionalism."

Daly currently works out of the Charlevoix office, but may serve in several of the credit union's branches as future member lending needs dictate. Daly may be reached by calling (231) 547-3918 or emailing sdaly@baywindsfcu.com.

Doctors' Discovery Helps Diabetics

PHILADELPHIA — A team of doctors has found that a new formulation of exotic sounding ingredients gives new hope to diabetics.

The formula, called Cinnatrol™ promotes healthy blood sugar levels by effectively metabolizing glucose into energy. In a research study, all patients taking just one capful of the liquid (one ounce) daily, dramatically lowered their blood sugar levels compared to a placebo group. Another scientific study found that an ingredient in Cinnatrol made insulin 20 times more capable of converting blood sugar to energy.

While individual results vary, one patient in the study lowered his blood sugar from 220-245 to the 100-130 range in only 28 days despite being instructed not to change his dietary habits or physical activity. Some patients, under their doctors care, have been able to reduce or eliminate their need for diabetic drugs. Scientists say that Cinnatrol helps diabetic drugs to work more efficiently. OBITUARY

Anthony John 'Tony' Lucas Sr., 45

Anthony John "Tony" Lucas Sr., 45, of Charlevoix, died unexpectedly Thursday, Aug. 29, 2013.

He was born April 17, 1968, in Mount Clemens and grew up in Rochester and Harrison. He attended Kirtland Community College.

Tony was a tinkerer and "jack-of-all-trades" and worked in concrete construction most of his life. He was always willing to lend a hand to anyone in need.

On Nov. 2, 1991, he married Melissa Lynn Kemerer in Pontiac. In 2004, they made their home in Charlevoix, where Tony owned and operated Charlevoix Cab Company. He was a member of the Charlevoix Church of the Nazarene.

Tony is survived by his wife, Melissa; children, Amber Lynn Lucas of Manton, Anthony John Lucas Jr., his fiancée, Sydney Stevenson, and their daughter, Lunna, Tawnie Jacquelyn Lucas and her children, Izabella and Elizabeth, Tabitha Renee Lucas, all of Charlevoix; sister, Eva (Neil) Flower, of Charlevoix; brother, Dave (Tara) Lucas, of Harrison; three sisters-in-law; five brothers-in-law; many nieces and nephews and great-nieces and -nephews.

Animal control officer retires after two decades on the job

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

There are a few things Julie Whitley will miss from her job as Charlevoix County's animal control officer.

Namely, those things are emus, ostriches, rheas — a bird slightly smaller than an emu, which is a bird slightly smaller than an ostrich, which is a big bird — and holding baby badgers in the palm of her hand. But particularly the rhea.

"That was the most fun," she said. "We had to chase it down. A logger tackled the bird and we got leashes to wrap around its legs so it would quit kicking us."

Whitley, 55, retired Friday, August 30, from her job as Charlevoix County's animal control officer. Though she has occupied that position since 1996, Whitley has been with the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office since she was an auxiliary officer — their first auxiliary officer, hired under former sheriff George Lasater — when she was 21. Then, in 1987, she joined the sheriff's office as a part-time animal control officer.

That was just the beginning. After four years in that position, she worked for the Boyne City Police Department as an emergency dispatch operator and secretary to the chief of police. Then, she returned to the county sheriff's department, then worked for the prosecuting attorney until 1996.

Then, she settled into her full-time position as animal control officer.

"All of it was really good," said Whitley. "Every job I had helped me understand the whole court system."

That's something to which Sheriff Don Schneider can attest.

"She's certainly been a great asset to our county for 24 years," he said. "She brought a professionalism to this job we really have enjoyed, and was very knowledgeable about animal control and law enforcement."

Charlevoix undersheriff Chuck Vondra said Whitley has been valuable in working with other animal control officers, including training her replacement, Emily Reynolds.

Scott MacKenzie, executive director of the Charlevoix Area Humane Society, said the humane society — a 501(c)3 nonprofit not associated with the county — has been lucky to have Whitley as a liaison who can provide information about those looking to adopt from the humane society, as a proposed Michigan bill, Senate Bill 378, would amend state law to require background checks for prospective adopters.

"She's been a godsend for us," he said.

Whitley said she stresses to kids considering careers in law enforcement that the job isn't just about catching dogs.

MORGAN SHERBURNE/NEWS REVIEW

Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider and undersheriff Chuck Vondre stand next to retiring county animal control officer marking the occasion of her retirement last week.

"It's so much more nowadays. We can end up dealing with anything, and we have to know how to take care of them temporarily," she said.

That includes the big birds mentioned earlier, but also snakes, lizards, parrots — even an alligator.

Beyond the exotic animals, Whitley was able to take care of animals more traditionally associated with Northern Michigan — particularly horses.

Whitley's work at an administrative level continued to her position on the Michigan Animal Control Officers state board. As a member of the board, she oversaw 15 Northern Michigan counties below the bridge. Because a control officer has to be actively employed to be on the board, Whitley will also be retiring from that position. She'll go from working with animals to playing with them.

"I'll be painting my walls and playing in my garden," she said. "I'll be giving my own dogs much-wanted attention and leaving to go camping right from my last day of work."

entered the six-GOP candidate primary race in 2008 and was the campaign manager for former Charlevoix County Republican Chairman Tim Boyko during his bid in 2010.

An employee for Boyne City High School and Baker College instructing business, marketing management and finance, Cutler plans to use his background as a Lake Superior State University graduate in finance, economics and business administration to help fuel a campaign platform for "critical infrastructure investments" and "redundancy."

"Michigan has to be smarter about how we approach these issues without raising the burden on our taxpayers and residents," Cutler said.

No Democrats have filed or announced their intentions to run for the seat, though the election is not until Tuesday, Aug. 5, 2014.

at the high school level. The educator evaluation currently considers professional development, proper credentialing and proper teacher placement, and in the future is planned to include each individual teacher's annual student improvement rate.

All of the achievement targets and the additional areas are rated with points to determine a school's color on the School Accountability Scorecard. The system uses green, yellow, and red colors to show where a school/district stands in each of the individual areas, and overall. Green is the highest rank and red is the lowest. If a school or district rates red in any one subgroup area, it cannot earn an overall green rating.

"About 82 percent of the schools in the state scored yellow in this first year," [illegible] Peter Moss, superintendent of Boyne City Public Schools. No local multi-school district rated a green score.

Beaver Island Community School and Petoskey Montessori Elementary School earned green ratings. The vast majority of the local districts were rated yellow. Alanson Public Schools, Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District, Charlevoix Public Schools, and Pellston Public Schools rated red.

This new scorecard is one of three accountability reports available to parents. On a district's website, parents can find the Annual Education Report, where two years of comparative state testing data is displayed for the district and each school.

Top-to-Bottom list ranks schools

The Michigan Department of Education also disseminates a Top-to-Bottom list of schools, where schools receive a percentile based on overall student achievement, academic growth, and any achievement gaps between low and high performers. Schools that earn a spot in the top 5 percent of schools on this list are outperforming schools with similar risk factors. These schools are called Reward Schools.

In Petoskey, Lincoln Elementary, Ottawa Elementary and Central Elementary schools earned Reward School Distinction designations for 2012-2013. Pellston Elementary School and Beaver Island Community School also earned distinction as Reward Schools.

Those schools that fall in the bottom 5 percent on the Top to Bottom list are called Priority Schools, and begin to receive state support and intervention. No schools in the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District are Priority Schools.

Ten percent of schools with the largest achievement gaps between the students in the top and bottom 30 percent are designated as Focus Schools. For a Focus School, the state Department of Education offers support in analyzing achievement data, facilitating professional dialogue and customizing interventions.

Boyne City Middle School, East Jordan High School and Harbor Spring High School were designated as Focus Schools for 2012-2013. Boyne City Middle School and Petoskey Middle School were Focus Schools in 2011-2012. Petoskey Middle School is not on the Focus School list for 2012-2013. In 2011-2012, Boyne City became a Focus School because of the achievement gap between the top and bottom students in social studies and science. In 2012-2013, that gap narrowed; however, data showed a wide gap in achievement between top and bottom students in writing.

A Focus School identified in one year and not the next is conditionally suspended from all required interventions provided the school is not again named a Focus School during a four-year period. However, any school named a Focus School does not exit that status for four years.

To exit Focus School status, the school, at the end of the fourth year must make Accountability Scorecard progress including meeting the performance targets for the bottom 30 percent subgroup. The school must submit a report to the Michigan Department of Education documenting the on-going steps that will be taken to sustain the achievement results.

Charlevoix's color confusion

Charlevoix Public Schools Superintendent Robert Gendron said he doesn't understand how all three of Charlevoix's Schools (now housed in two buildings) earned yellow ratings, but the district as a whole had a red rating.

In fact, digging further into the data, by subject and by sub-group, Charlevoix's elementary, middle and high schools scored green ratings in most categories and subjects. The handful of red scores were typically in the subgroup labeled "bottom 30 percent."

Gendron said since the scores were released last week he and Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District officials have made multiple calls to get answers from the state's education department on the apparent disparity in the rankings, but so far they have not been able to get any answers.

Gendron speculates that it likely has something to do with something in one of the sub-groups. He said he hopes to have more answers about the scores in time for the school board's next meeting on Sept. 16.

POLICY

— A "grandfather clause" that says the new policy won't apply to any program in place and approved by the city as of the approval date of the policy.

— A requirement that a contract be executed between the city and a licensed contractor for any installation work for donated items.

In his comments to the council at Monday's city council meeting, Straebel said several of the new provisions are good, but he expressed some concern — especially the one requiring an endowment for ongoing operating and maintenance expenses could deter some donors.

Council member Porter suggested a provision that donated items be surveyed or evaluated prior to being accepted to determine their condition and/or value and that the donor should be responsible for those costs.

The council ultimately approved a motion to set the policy for consideration at its Sept. 16 meeting to allow the community to have time to read and submit comments on the policy. The complete policy is available on the city's website at www.cityofcharlevoix.org.

In other business, the council set a special meeting for 6 p.m. on Monday, Sept. 9, for the purpose of interviewing a candidate for the city treasurer's position.

The city has been in the market for a someone to fill the position since learning that current city treasurer Rick Brandi is planning to retire in early 2014.

Straebel said a search committee interviewed four candidates recently and the one person among those candidates they recommended for the council to interview was Joseph Zielinski, of Grand Blanc.

The council also approved a resolution to accept a $774,000 grant from the Federal Aviation Administration for ramp repairs to the city-owned Charlevoix Municipal Airport. The city's match for the grant will amount to $43,000. The work is expected to take place in the spring.

BACKUP

The Washburns' neighbors, the Stevenses, also had significant damage from the sewer backup, but not as extensive as the Washburns'. The Stevenses also received a $5,000 settlement from their homeowners insurance, but their costs only exceeded the insurance settlement by $411

The city turned both the Washburns' and the Stevenses' claims over to the city's insurance carrier, who recently denied the claim citing a state law known as the Governmental Immunity Act, that says a city is only liable for damages caused by sewer backups under certain circumstances.

Specifically, the act says a municipality is liable for sewer backup damages only if there was a defect in the system, the city knew, or reasonably should have known about the defect and failed to take reasonable steps in a reasonable amount of time to fix the problem.

"I'm mad. I'm really mad. I think you should be really glad that I am no longer the Welcome Wagon," a clearly frustrated Washburn said.

City department of public works superintendent Pat Elliott told the council Monday backups, such as the one in this case, are rare. (The last one was two and a half years ago, be said) Elliott said that some kind of blockage in the sewer main caused the backup, but city crews have no idea what the blockage might have been. He said all kinds of unusual things end up in the sewer system.

"We don't know exactly what it was," Elliot said. "It's nearly impossible to see what we broke free."

He added: "Just today at pump station there was a mop head that made it through the collection system and got sucked up into a pump ... It's really bizarre what ends up in those sewer lines."

Several among the council members seemed sympathetic to the Washburns' and the Stevenses' situation, but city attorney Bryan Graham gave the council members a stern warning if they were considering offering to pay for the expenses.

Graham said if the city opted to pay for these expenses, for which they are not liable under state law, it would be voluntarily accepting a liability it does not have and would be setting a precedent for future similar circumstances.

"Here you know what the costs are, but your decision tonight could be used against the city in the face of a much larger claim in the future," Graham said.

Elliott said the section of sewer main involved in the backup is slated to be inspected by video late this week to see if there are any problems the line.

To that end, the council decided to hold of on any decisions on the matter to see what the results of the video inspection show.

Straebel said he was doubtful, even if the video inspection shows some problem such a tree roots, that the insurance company would change its mind about paying for the claim. Straebel noted that the law refers to a "known" defect that went unrepaired.

Council member Lyle Gennett said the city should make an effort to educate its residents on the fact that sewer backups can happen, that they are only covered by homeowner's policies with the purchase of the proper riders, and that except under certain circumstances, the city isn't liable for damages caused by them.

Grandparents Day

When a child is born, so are the grandparents

SEPTEMBER 8, 2013

Getting kids interested

Do your kids drag their heels when it's time to visit Grandma and Grandpa? Do they plead to bring along their electronic games or to be left at home alone? While some of us have fun loving over-fifty parents who seem ever youthful and dynamic, many more of us have mothers and fathers who are elderly, frail, and lonely. It is understandable that our children might resist visiting a grandparent who is clueless about iPods, especially if it involves a trip to a nursing home. But for the sake of family, it is important to help the two generations find a way to relate.

When planning a visit, pick a time of day when Grandma and Grandpa are likely to be awake and alert. If your children feel uncomfortable in their grandparents' tiny apartment or nursing home, try inviting your parents to spend time with you and your children at a café or restaurant; the event might be considered a real treat, by both young and old. If conversation is the challenge, perhaps because the elderly person has hearing difficulties or cognitive loss, you might suggest an activity that requires little talk but that has togetherness-appeal — perhaps a game of dominoes or lawn bowling.

The most important thing is to respect everybody's feelings by listening to them. If Grandpa is sad because he doesn't get more frequent visits, offer him some empathy and then steer the conversation back to a neutral topic. If your child is frustrated because he or she would rather be doing something else, offer some understanding and thank them for making an effort. Hopefully, with time, your children will see that visiting elderly grandparents is just a part of taking care of family.

Buzz building after first win

ST. IGNACE — When Ron Bindi took over the reins as the Charlevoix Rayders' head varsity football coach earlier this year, one of his main goals was to restore the buzz around town about Rayder football.

That buzz started building Thursday, Aug. 29, in Bindi's debut when the Rayders notched a season opening win over St. Ignace, 20-0 on the Saints' home turf.

The Rayders scored 20 unanswered second half points en route to their first win over the Saints since the 2009 season. It also brought a flood of emotions to many amongst the Rayder football family past and present.

"It was awesome," said Bindi, a 1971 Charlevoix High School graduate who last year guided Bellaire to the eight-player state championship game. "It's something where you have three guys here on staff who played in Charlevoix and when you're beating St. Ignace late, you have a tear in your eye.

"You have a former head coach (Todd Klinger) here with two kids in the program and everybody was as happy as can be.

"We received a lot of happy phone calls and texts from our old coach's family (Don Carey), whose son is coaching here with us," Bindi said. "It's a great feeling."

Charlevoix forced a total of six turnovers, while Kenen Borths had three takeaways on defense including a 45-yard touchdown that put the Rayders on the scoreboard with eight minutes to go in the third quarter.

Sam Hovie then ran in a pair of touchdowns from 1 and 52 yards and Luke Klinger added a two-point conversion.

"It was nice, we had some goalline stands and they (St. Ignace) turned the ball over a couple of times in the red zone," Bindi said. "Our motto was we wanted to swarm to the ball and punish, swarm and punish."

Klinger finished 4-of-9 passing for 53 yards and added 77 yards rushing. Hovie led all Rayder rushers with 84 yards on nine carries.

Defensively, Borths led the way with 13 tackles, while Sam Eakes had 11 tackles and Hovie had eight tack-

Rayders roll past Ramblers, Blazers

The Charlevoix Rayder boys soccer team is off to a strong start in Lake Michigan Conference play as they soundly defeated two conference foes in the past week.

Nick Snabes scored a pair of goals including one on a penalty kick and another on a corner kick as the Rayders topped Boyne City, 4-1, Thursday, Aug. 29 in a Lake Michigan Conference match.

With the win, the Rayders improved to 3-1 overall, 1-0 league.

Also for Charlevoix, which led 2-1 at halftime, Walker Drost scored on an assist from Justin Pearl, while Christian Matye added a goal off a feed from Wes Crandal.

"It was a good game and we were able to get a lot of substitutions in," Charlevoix coach Jon Boss said. "In the second half, we played well and had a lot of guys go in and were still able to possess and move the ball."

J.J. Wachler earned the win in goal for the Rayders, while Justin Pearl was lauded for his strong defensive efforts from his stopper position.

"We started out slow and picked things up as the second half progressed," Boss said. "We were able to make adjustments throughout the game."

On Tuesday the Rayders traveled to Kalkaska where freshman Cameron Clark and exchange student Tomas Tomas both scored their first career goals, while Wes Crandal added two goals as the Rayders rolled to a 9-1 Lake Michigan Conference win over the Blazers.

The Rayders, 4-1 overall, 2-0 league, led 8-1 at halftime before putting the game away via the eight-goal mercy-rule with close to 15 minutes to play in the second half on a penalty kick goal from J.J. Wachler, who played the majority of the game as the Rayders' goalkeeper.

"A lot of guys got a lot of playing time for us," Charlevoix coach Jon Boss said. "We're playing well. The first half of the game everybody played well and each game we're playing better. We're consistently playing more with the ball and possessing the ball more."

Walker Drost opened the scoring for the Rayders with an assist from Christian Matye, before Crandal scored two straight goals from Drost and Nick Bradley. Nick Snabes then scored from Matye before Tomas Tomas scored with help from Bradley.

Noah Carson added a goal from Chris Gregory, while Bradley scored from Tomas and then Clark added his first career goal from Ryan Joy.

Wachler then put the game away with his penalty kick goal.

Charlevoix played at Harbor Springs for a league match on Thursday, Sept. 5.

The Rayders may be young, but they clearly won't lack for talent this season.

Already at 4-1 overall and 2-0 league, Charlevoix has put together a solid start to begin the 2013 season.

"We go to Harbor Springs on Thursday and I'm excited to see how we'll do, it should be a good game," Boss said. "I'm interested to see how the league plays out this year."

Seniors Nick Snabes and Justin Pearl, who play center midfield and stopper, respectively, both return to the lineup while junior David Labelle, a transfer from Arizona, has also been a key addition for the Rayders. Labelle plays at left midfield.

Freshmen Christian Matye and Walker Drost have also shown strong promise early this season.

"Christian and Walker have good chemistry and they play well off each other," Boss said. "Any time you have a combination like them, it's fun to watch them work well together."

Along the backline, freshman Matt Good at right back has played strong in the early going, while junior J.J. Wachler is in goal.

les including a sack. Shane Sutherland had a fumble recovery and Austin Putman had an interception.

"These kids have bought into everything we've been teaching," Bindi said. "Our conditioning and getting to the ball and all that stuff, the takeaways, we're always striving takeaways and I think our conditioning led to a large part of that in the fourth quarter."

"St. Ignace is a good football program, based on long tradition. This should be a huge confidence builder."

Looking ahead to this week's home opener against Maple City Glen Lake, Bindi said they Rayders will have to bring their A game if they want a shot at defeating the Lakers.

"They were undefeated last year through the regular season and made a playoff run. They're going to be good," Bindi said. "They've got a couple of good running backs, and they are aggressive on both offense and defense at the line of scrimmage."

He added: "We are going to have to play our best on all phases of the game. But I think our kids showed (at St. Ignace), they wouldn't quit. I think they're up to the challenge. We will have to play error-free, and play with enthusiasm and intensity."

And then there's that buzz.

Bindi said he's hearing it already.

"People have come up to me, the coaching staff, the kids saying 'congrats.' That's important," Bindi said. "We're happy for the kids. They stepped up and made believers out of a lot of people that they want to play hard and get after it — that we can have successful program."

VOLLEYBALL

Rayders reach semi-finals

LELAND — The Charlevoix High School varsity volleyball team advanced to the semifinals Thurdsay, Aug. 29 at the Leland Invitational and finished with a 3-2 record.

In pool play, the Rayders opened with a 25-13, 25-18 win over Maple City Glen Lake, then defeated Benzie Central, 25-14, 25-21, and fell to Leland, 25-15, 25-15.

"The girls controlled the first match throughout the play wiht strong serve receive and attacking," Charlevoix coach Audra Randall said. "The next match against Benzie the girls played strong at the net, but serve receive was more of a factor but serving by Jennaca Holecheck with six aces and Madeline Boss at the net with 18 kills in that match allowed us to overcome a second game deficit.

In bracket play, Charlevoix defeated Frankfort, 25-21, 26-24, to advance to the semifinals where they fell to Traverse City St. Francis, 25-15, 25-15.

For the Rayders, Boss finished with 57 kills, served at 92 percent and serve received at 85 percent. Holecheck had 16 kills, while Madi Carey added 11 kills. Gloria Greene and Olivia Storm had 42 assists apiece, while Yogi Hang added seven aces and was 24-of-25 serving with 15 digs. Kelsey Pischner added six aces and was 27-of-28 from the service line. Randall also lauded the blocking of Emily Zahowa and Greene.

The Rayder were next slated to head to a tournament at Glen Lake on Saturday, Sept. 7.

BE A WISE SHOPPER
It's always wise to remember that if an offer sounds too good to be true, it probably is. If you are offered merchandise at an unbelievably low price, check it out thoroughly. A call to the Better Business Bureau (serving Eastern Michigan and the Upper Peninsula) will tell you whether other consumers have had problems with the firm that has offered the merchandises. (248)223-9400. But call the Bureau BEFORE you make a purchase. You'll be glad you did.

MORTGAGE SALE
Default has been made in the conditions of a mortgage made by Fred J. Duffy and Marcia A. Duffy, Husband and Wife, original mortgagor(s), to Fifth Third Mortgage - MI, LLC, Mortgagee, dated September 21, 2005, and recorded on September 26, 2005 in Liber 706 on Page 685, and assigned by said Mortgagee to Fifth Third Mortgage Company as assignee as documented by an assignment, in Charlevoix county records, Michigan, on which mortgage there is claimed to be due at the date hereof the sum of Eighty-Five Thousand Eight Hundred Sixty-Six and 37/100 Dollars ($85,866.37).
Under the power of sale contained in said mortgage and the statute in such case made and provided, notice is hereby given that said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises, or some part of them, at public vendue, at the place of holding the circuit court within Charlevoix County, at 11:00 AM, on September 13, 2013.
Said premises are situated in Township of Boyne Valley, Charlevoix County, Michigan, and are described as: An undivided 25% interest in and to Unit 18, being fractional ID "D", The Cabins Condominium, according to the Master Deed thereof as recorded in Liber 411, Pages 939 through 993, Charlevoix County Records, and amended in First Amendment to Master Deed recorded in Liber 419, Page 752, Charlevoix County Records, as amended and designated as Charlevoix County Subdivision Plan No. 126 together with rights in general common elements and limited common elements as set forth in the above Master Deed, as amended and as described in Act 59 of the public acts of 1978, as amended.
The redemption period shall be 6 months from the date of such sale, unless determined abandoned in accordance with MCLA 600.3241a, in which case the redemption period shall be 30 days from the date of such sale.
If the property is sold at foreclosure sale under Chapter 32 of the Revised Judicature Act of 1961, pursuant to MCL 600.3278 the borrower will be held responsible to the person who buys the property at the mortgage foreclosure sale or to the mortgage holder for damaging the property during the redemption period.

More tree lights possible downtown

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Downtown Charlevoix may get a little bit brighter this fall if all the pieces of an effort by the city's downtown development authority fall into place in the next week or so.

At a special meeting on Monday, the authority's board voted 5-0 to move forward with a plan to install more lights in the trees along the eastern edge of Bridge Street between Clinton and Mason streets.

If it goes forward, the new lights would fill a gap (or a perceived gap) in the downtown lighting display right in the heart of the city's main street.

The idea to move forward with more lights downtown grew out of a somewhat impromptu brainstorming session at a recent authority board meeting. During the meeting one consensus that rose to the surface was a desire to add more lights to the existing downtown display. However, the authority only had about $5,000 budgeted for lighting purchases and maintenance this year. Then authority board member Todd Wyett offered to donate $5,000 of his own money if the authority board and the city council would each match his contribution.

City economic development director Bethany Pearson told the board that a conversation with a lighting contractor revealed a rough estimate that it would

School welcomes new teachers

JAMIE BAUMANN
Northern Michigan Review

Two new vocational teachers and a band instructor started the new year at Charlevoix High School last week.

Kate Chanda, of East Jordan, will teach three levels of health occupations classes, and David Reynier, of Grand Rapids, will teach mechanical technology. Charlevoix resident and former Charlevoix band director Gary Stutzman is returning to the position that he held in the 1970s.

Chanda will be teaching health occupations both at Charlevoix High School and at the Charlevoix Area Hospital. She has seven years of experience as a secondary science teacher having previously taught at Concord Academy Antrim in Mancelona. She also worked three years as a medical surgical registered nurse at McLaren Northern Michigan. She has a bachelor's degree in secondary education, with an earth science major and a biology minor, a master's degree in curriculum and teaching and an associate degree in nursing.

"I love the energy of students and helping to build the leaders of our future," she said. "I can't wait to help kids explore the amazing opportunities the health care field has to offer. If it is the student's passion or desire, my hope is that health occupations will give students a great jump start into their future health profession."

Reynier comes to Charlevoix High School as a first year teacher, but with 20 years of experience in the manufacturing industry. He is teaching mechanical technology which earns students three units of credit at Baker College. The course

Smooth start under new two-building format

JAMIE BAUMANN
Northern Michigan Review

Middle school students, high school students, parents, teachers and administrators all agree that the combined Charlevoix middle and high school building is off to a great start.

As a result of cost savings measures, seventh and eighth graders, who were previously housed in the middle school building, now attend the high school.

Administrators worked through the summer planning for the move. When teachers returned, they worked long hours making sure everything was ready for the students' arrival.

Anne Marie Conway, chief negotiator for the Charlevoix Education Association, said, "By Friday, teachers were exhausted. Many had put in a week of 12-hour days preparing their rooms and for the Renaissance assembly and opening day activities, but it was a good exhausted with the satisfaction of a job well done. At first, we thought, 'Oh my gosh, how are we going to do this?' But by the end of the day Friday, we knew we had done what was best for kids, and we focused on that. On opening day, we filled the entire auditorium, all but about two or three seats. There was lots of energy, and we got really fired up about being Rayders. We built a sense of community."

Both middle school and high school students commented about the new configuration. At 6 foot, 9 inches, senior Zach Hankins is the tallest student in the school. He immediately sought out one of the shortest seventh-graders, Preston Seese, and they have become friends.

"I think it is going pretty well," Zach said. "I knew some of the middle school kids before and now I've gotten to know more. It's fun to see them running around the school. It makes me remember what it was like when I was in middle school. I make a point of talking to Preston when I see him. It has gone smoothly, and their presence here really doesn't make a big difference to the upperclassmen."

The Robinson family includes both a senior, Shelby, and an eighth grader, Kelsey, who now attend Charlevoix High. Mom, Melissa Robinson said that things have been going fine. She was never really concerned about the transition for the middle school students.

"I think that as long as kids can come home and talk about school issues with their parents, they are fine," she said. "So far, it seems to be a good experience."

Senior Shelby pointed out that many of the upperclassmen have younger siblings who are now in the school, and as a result, the older students know how to act around the younger students.

"I think it's better for the middle school kids to be with the high school kids. It helps them act more mature and it helps us by giving us the opportunity to be mentors and role models," Shelby said. "The halls are definitely more crowded."

Eighth-grader Kelsey likes being at the high school.

"I like it a lot. It gives us more freedom. The classes are harder and really putting us to the test. I feel more mature being in the high school. It is almost a practice for when we will be in high school," she said.

Seventh-grader Alyssa Cloud pointed out that there are more opportunities for

New city treasurer has deep roots here

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Charlevoix's new city treasurer may not be a familiar face to many in the community, but Joe Zielinski and his family are no strangers to the area.

At a special meeting Monday, following a roughly 30-minute interview, the Charlevoix City Council voted unanimously to hire Zielinski to take over as the city's treasurer as current treasurer Rick Brandi prepares to retire in January. (The city treasurer is one of just a handful of positions in the city's government which is appointed directly by the council, the others are the city manager, city assessor, city attorney, fire chief and police chief.)

Zielinski's family has a long history of spending summers in the Charlevoix area. His grandparents and great-grandparents spent many summers in the area. He, too, spent many summers in Charlevoix while his grandparents first rented, then eventually bought a condo at LaCroft Condominiums.

Zielinski's wife, Kendra, also has a strong connection to the area. She was born and raised in Bellaire.

He said it was that family connection and the natural beauty of the area that drew him and Kendra to look for opportunities to move to Northern Michigan. The Zielinskis have one daughter, Abigail, who is 10 months old.

Zielinski

Kendra recently completed her residency and took a position as doctor with Bay View Ob-Gyn in Petoskey, which prompted Zielinski to begin looking for a position here, too.

This will be Zielinski's first foray into working in the public sector, but at age 33 he already has extensive credentials in the private sector.

He holds a bachelor's degree in finance and a master of business administration both with honors Michigan State University.

Before looking to move north, Zielinski was employed with TI Automotive in Auburn Hills for more than three years as a finance manager and senior financial analyst. In that position he served as the finance manager of the company's global powertrain business unit.

Before that, he worked for about eight years for Delphi in Troy first as a financial analyst and then as a senior financial analyst in several of the company's divisions.

Zielinski said he is looking forward to working for the city and contributing to the community.

"Rick's going to be around until January and during that time I'm going to be a sponge of his expertise," Zielinski said. Fortunately, Rob, Rick and the city council have done an outstanding job putting the city in a sound financial position by making good decisions even through this recent economic downturn. My goal will be to keep Charlevoix in a strong financial position."

City manager Rob Straebel, who was on the interview committee that brought Zielinski forward to the council as the top candidate among four finalists spoke highly of Zielinski's qualifications.

"Mr. Zielinski, with extensive experience working in the private sector, will bring a fresh perspective to the city's finances and continue our efforts to run the city in a business-like manner. He certainly has the financial acumen to be successful in the challenging position of city treasurer and is very open to different ways of doing things. I think the community is going to be very pleased with city council's decision to hire him."

Straebel went on to note that Zielinski's hiring comes at a good time as city officials are poised to begin working on the 2014-15 budget soon.

"The timing is perfect and allows our current treasurer, Rick Brandi, to work with Joe for several weeks on the budget and other financial issues. It will be a smooth and seamless transition."

Planners approve draft review policy

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

The Charlevoix Planning Commission may have checked yet another item off its "to-do" list Monday when it approved its recommendation to the city council for a policy on which city infrastructure projects it should review prior to implementation.

The policy, like the city council's donation acceptance policy, is a lingering outgrowth of the controversial proposal to build an outdoor community fireplace in East Park that cropped up a little more than a year ago and ultimately led to a successful recall of three city council members. (The council will consider adopting a proposed revision to the donation acceptance policy at its Sept. 16 meeting.)

Among the complaints of opponents of the fireplace project was that the proposal didn't go before the planning commission for its input before the council approved its construction.

At the time city planner Mike Spencer noted (and proposed resolution accompanying the proposed policy notes) the state's planning enabling act does require that a "street; square, park, playground, public way, ground, or other open space; or public building or other structure shall not be constructed or authorized for construction in an area covered by a municipal master plan unless" it is first reviewed by the planning commission. However the act does not clearly define what constitutes a "structure."

The proposed resolution also notes that typically infrastructure projects are reviewed by the planning commission during each year's budget process, but the city does not currently have a process in place for reviewing proposed projects that come up between budgets.

The proposed policy spells out the following definitions:

— Structure: a permanent building, typically enclosed or containing a roof, used for a wide variety of activities. (Examples include, but are not limited to: City Hall, the water treatment plant, harbormaster building, performance pavilion, park pavilions, bathroom facilities, airport hangers, etc.)

— Feature: an element or attribute that serves to enhance or provide a specific use to a property. (Examples include the trout stream, water fountain, public art, sculptures, kiosk, signs, pavers, maps, benches, etc.)

— Amenity: a feature, attraction, use, or structure typically located in public parks to enhance the experience of the user or fulfill a specific need. (An amenity may also be a feature such as the trout stream, interactive water fountain, disc golf, etc.)

The policy goes on to exempt from review projects that have already been approved through the budget's capital improvement plan; those that are necessary to protect public health and safety; repair, replacement or expansion of utilities; replacement or repair of existing structures, features, and amenities or existing roads, curbs, gutter systems, and sidewalks; and minor changes or improvements to existing uses related to recreation, governmental operations, utilities, and recycling.

Under the proposed policy projects that would require review include:

— Any new structure, feature, or expansion of an existing building.

— Any new use or recreational activity proposed on public properties.

— Purchase of any additional properties to be owned by the city. Sale of any city owned lands.

— Construction of new roads, alleys and parks.

Spencer said Wednesday that the proposed policy is expected to be presented to the city council for its consideration at its Oct. 7 meeting.

Board approves full millage levy for 2014

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners approved the full allowable millage of 7.5 mills for 2014 at its regular meeting on Wednesday.

The millage includes a small tax increase of 0.05 mills for the senior citizens millage, which is 0.65 of the overall millage. Last year, it stood at 0.6 mills, said Charlevoix County Clerk Cheryl Potter Browe.

Shirley Gillespie, director of Charlevoix County Commission on Aging, said the slight increase, which will equate to about $100,000 over the county, will help pay for increased expenses from aging buildings, increased food costs and replacing a freezer.

Browe said balancing the 2014 fiscal year budget was difficult because, after a dip in the county's property taxable value this year, the county's revenues decreased. Taxable values decreased by about $300,000.

Browe said each department in the county lowered its budget to help balance the county-wide budget.

"We hope, according to equalization, taxable values will begin to move up, and we hope these are short term cuts to departments," said Browe.

The board of commissioners also considered a letter from Pam Grassmick with the Beaver Island Association. She wrote to ask for the county's endorsement of a birding trail on Beaver Island, which would be similar to Sleeping Bear Birding Trail.

"Charlevoix County would become the gateway for birding tourists and their associated dollars," Grassmick wrote.

Grassmick said a wide array of migrating, nesting and resident birds are on Beaver Island, and a group called Saving Birds Thru Habitat of Leelanau County has been helping Beaver Islanders develop the Beaver Island Birding Trail website. The website will have a companion map that will note 33 quality birding sites.

Finally, the board will consider a letter from commissioner George Lasater, which requested that county parks honor Charlevoix County war veterans.

Merchants: Business picked up after slow start

ANNE KELLY
Courier Staff Writer

Despite a slow start, many tourism-related businesses in Charlevoix reported strong numbers for the overall summer season this year.

Merchants who spoke to the Courier recently generally reported that there was more foot traffic than usual on the downtown streets and that figures were up but not by much.

Erin Bemis, president and CEO of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, was optimistic about the past summer season and is looking forward to the coming autumn season which traditionally brings residents and visitors to the downtown.

"Five new businesses opened in Charlevoix this year," Bemis noted reported. "The Bear, the American Man Cave, Asian Fusion, Schulman Paddleworks and The Poppery. Right now there are only three vacant retail spaces available on Bridge Street: the Kilwin's building, The Whitney's building and the Trademark building. I prefer to think of these positively as three business 'opportunities.'"

Bemis reported that area hotel occupancy was up in the first seven months, and many retail and hospitality business owners reported that although the tourism season seemed to have a slower start, many posted record numbers in July and August.

"For good sales, we have to have good weather interspersed with rainy days when people stay and shop ... that's the ideal. If it's good weather they're out on their boats or at the beach. If the weather is bad, they don't come," said Mike Hinkle of Charlevoix State Bank.

When Sandie and Rick Root, proprietors of The Taffy Barrel, retired, they traveled Michigan from Saugatuk to Mackinac in search of a retirement enterprise and a place to set up business. They became "tourist observers" to see what treats people enjoyed while on vacation. They found that the top three were ice cream, coffee and candy. When they came upon Charlevoix, according to Sandie, they decided there was plenty of ice cream but only fudge in the candy department.

"We've been here seven years," she said, at her store where vintage candies are interspersed among the barrels overflowing with their specialty, salt water taffy. "Each year is increasingly better. We've had a really good summer. We notice that people return for what they remember as a

Conservancy to host upcoming events

The Little Traverse Conservancy will host several upcoming events including:

— A "Getting Kids Outdoors Educator Workshop" will take place from 10 a.m.-noon on Sunday, Sept. 22 at the Raven Hill Discovery Center in East Jordan.

The program, which will be presented by the center's Cheri Leach, will be geared toward teachers interested in strengthening their science skills in geology, and enhancing lessons with hands-on activities.

To register contact Cheri Leach (231) 536-3369 or email info@ravenhilldiscoverycenter.org.

This workshop is offered with assistance from GKO Partners and the Petoskey-Harbor Springs Area Community Foundation. For more information about Getting Kids Outdoors, visit www.gettingkidsoutdoors.org.

— The conservancy is seeking volunteers for a two-day work bee on Beaver Island from 9-4 p.m. on Monday and Tuesday, Sept. 23-24.

The organization is looking for 10-20 volunteers each day to work building trails at Barney's Lake, general preserve clean-up and maintenance. With multiple preserves on Beaver Island, the conservancy takes a few days each year to get some large projects completed, volunteers should bring work gloves, appropriate footwear, lunch and a water bottle. Drinks and snacks will be provided. To sign up or for more information, contact Mike Lynch at (231) 344-1011 or mike@landtrust.org.

— The conservancy is also seeking volunteers for a work bee at its Hill Preserve just outside Boyne City from 9 a.m.-4 p.m. on Friday, Sept. 27. Work on that day will include maintaining views of Lake Charlevoix by clearing, hauling it and chipping brush. For more information or to sign up, contact Lynch at (231) 344-1011 or mike@landtrust.org.

Politics should not influence science

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

As a society we seem to have confused science and politics. Surveys strongly suggest that the public's view of science is colored by political ideology. If someone holds the view that global warming is a hoax perpetrated by scientists to help them get more money for their private research, we know that they are almost certainly politically conservative. If someone considers that Darwinian evolution, and not Creation Science or Intelligent Design, should be taught in public school science courses, we can be almost certain they are politically liberal.

That sort of confusion is not a good thing for the society we live in. It will certainly lead to unfortunate political choices. If whatever group is temporarily in charge of the political scene can decide what is scientific truth, we will be making the same mistake that the USSR made when Stalin made the political choice to support the genetic ideas of T.M. Lysenco over those of all the rest of the community of genetic scientists. As has been wisely said, "If we do not know history, we are doomed to make the same silly mistakes repeatedly." The USSR essentially rejected modern genetics on political grounds and fell 50 years behind the rest of the world in that area of science. We could be making the same mistake with regard to human-caused climate change.

In politics, conflicts are settled by vote or laws passed. In science conflicts are settled by evidence; all the evidence, not just selected bits that support a political view. Science does not pay much attention to the loudest voice or the most prominent charismatic figure. Politics, on the other hand, depends on the loudest voice or the most charismatic figure.

Are all scientists moral paragons? Hardly. But the most serious sin a scientist can commit is to concoct evidence to support a particular idea. When such false evidence is revealed by the rest of the body of scientists, the perpetrator will not be believed again. Functioning science absolutely depends on truth-telling.

Jacob Bronowski said that science began to take hold as a mechanism of understanding the world when educated people no longer believed that humans called witches could cast spells, alter the world and predict the future. Evolution as an explanation for the diversity of creatures on the earth began to take hold when educated people no longer believed that the first chapters of Genesis described the actual early history of the earth.

Science today must contend with the loud voice of authority presented by the popular media. There is no loud voice of science to balance it. We do all tend to listen to the loudest voice.

I can only suggest that evidence rather than only opinion should be examined. If that is too much to ask from the general public, then we are in very deep trouble indeed.

Roger Knutson is a professor emeritus of biology from Luther College in Decorah, Iowa, where he taught for 30 years. He holds master's degree and a doctorate from the botany department at Michigan State University.

Charlevoix recently lost one of its favorite sons. Chuck Fairbanks, a 1951 graduate of Charlevoix High School who went on to a highly successful collegiate and professional football coaching career. Chuck attended Michigan State University and was on its National Championship team in 1952, the Big Ten Championship team in 1953, and the Rose Bowl team victorious over UCLA in 1954; plus being on the winning side in the Blue-Gray game that year. He then coached at Ishpeming for three years, then went west to Arizona State University as backfield coach from 1958 to 1961. From there he journeyed to Texas as the assistant head coach at Houston for three more years. That led to the defensive backfield coach position at the University of Oklahoma in 1966, then appointment as head coach in 1967 to 1973 (left). While at UO, the team became three time Big Eight champions in 1967, 1968 (Orange Bowl victory), and 1972. Chuck coached Steve Owens to a Heismann Trophy in 1969. The team also appeared in two Sugar Bowl and two Bluebonnet Bowl games. Then came the crowning appointment of his life when he became head coach of the New England Patriots in 1973. The team won two division titles leading to the playoffs, and Chuck was voted NFL Coach of the Year in 1976. He stayed with the Patriots through the 1978 season, then ended his coaching career as head coach at the University of Colorado from 1979 through 1981. Chuck always retained his northern Michigan roots with the family summer cottage near East Jordan on Lake Charlevoix and maintained strong ties with many local families through the years.

Introduction to Microsoft Word 2007 — 10:30 a.m. Tuesday and Thursday, Oct. 8 and 10 — will give attendees a basic working knowledge of this word processing software.

I have a new iPad, Now What? — 10:30 a.m. Monday and Wednesday, Oct. 28 and 30 — will teach the basic use of this popular mobile device, including instruction on the latest upgrade.

All technology classes will take place in the library's computer lab, with the exception of the iPad class which will be in the community meeting room.

The technology instructors include Roger Gowell, Scott Silberhorn and Rick Malamed. They request patrons register for classes either online at www.charlevoixlibrary.org/calendar or by calling (231) 237-7340.

Noorwood Area Historical Society to host movie night

The Norwood Area Historical Society will present the all-star adventure classic "The Spoilers" at dusk on Wednesday, Sept. 18, at dusk at the Old Schoolhouse in the village of Norwood.

This 1942 oscar-nominated movie version of the popular 1905 Rex Beach novel stars a young John Wayne, Marlene Dietrich, and Randolph Scott.

Adventure author Rex Beach was born in Atwood, Mich. in 1877. His contemporaries include Jack London and Zane Grey. Twenty-seven of Beach's stories and novels became successful Hollywood movies, and "The Spoilers" was filmed four times between 1920 and 1950.

The novel and movie are based on true events witnessed by Beach in Alaska. Miner Roy Glennister (John Wayne) and his partner Dextry, financed by saloon entertainer Cherry Malotte (Marlene Deitrich), fight to save their gold claim from crooked commissioner Alexander McNamara.

Weather permitting the movie will be shown outdoors, inside if the weather is inclement. Movie runtime is 87 minutes. A $5 donation is suggested. Members are free. Movie snacks will be provided. More information is available at www.norwoodhistory.org/news.

The students and staff at Charlevoix High School will celebrate the school's 2013 homecoming with full slate of activities over the coming week.

The theme for this year's homecoming spirit week is "At the Movies" and each class has been assigned a genre of movie including romance for the seniors, action for the juniors, horror for the sophomores and westerns for the freshmen.

The week of events includes:

— Service auction: Near the end of the school day Thursday, Sept. 12, students will have the opportunity to bid on members of the homecoming court and student council to have them do certain activities around school. Proceeds from the auction help support homecoming activities.

— Float building: From noon-5:30 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 15 students will gather near the district's bus garage on May Street to construct their floats for the homecoming parade.

— Spirit days: Each day of Spirit Week has a theme. Monday is pajama day, Tuesday is hippie day, Wednesday is Hawaiian day, Thursday is dress as a movie character day, and Friday is Rayder day.

— Powder Buff volleyball: The boys in the school will have their opportunity to try their hand at volleyball in the Powder Buff volleyball matches. The event starts at 7 p.m. in the gym at the former middle school building. Admission is $2.

— Powder Puff football: Right after the volleyball matches, starting at 8:30 p.m., the girls will take to the gridiron at Kipke Field for Powder Puff football. Admission is $2. Proceed from both the volleyball and football game benefit the student council.

— Spirit Day: Starting after lunch on Friday, the students will get fired up for the night's football game against Elk Rapids with an afternoon of fun activities in the gym.

— Parade: The homecoming parade will take place starting at 6 p.m. on Friday, Sept. 20. The parade units will line up on Clinton Street near the Charlevoix Public Library and will proceed east to Bridge Street, and then south to Garfield Street.

— Football game/king and queen coronation: The Rayder varsity football team will take on the Elk Rapids Elks at Kipke Field with kickoff set for 7 p.m. Friday, Sept. 20. The 2013 homecoming king and queen will be crowned at halftime.

— Dance: The 2013 homecoming activities will be capped off by a dance at Charlevoix Elementary School from 7-10 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 21.

Elks pies say 'Thank you' to first responders

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

For the third time in as many years the members of Charlevoix Elks Lodge have found a sweet way to show Charlevoix County first responders how much they are appreciated on the anniversary of the Sept. 11, 2001, terrorist attacks on the United States.

On Wednesday the Elks delivered 200 pies to police and sheriff's offices, fire and ambulance departments and to crews at U.S. Coast Guard Station Charlevoix as a way to thank them for their service to the community.

This year the pie count was up 50 from last year's total. On Tuesday a handful of volunteers spent about four hours baking 50 handmade pies in the kitchen at the Belvedere Club Casino. The rest of the pies were donated from national companies at the request of the Elks Club.

The pies were delivered Wednesday in the Charlevoix area by Elks members, to Beaver Island via Island Airways and the rest of the county by the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office.

Scouts to host recruitment event

The Charlevoix area Girl Scouts will host a recruitment night event from 7-8 p.m. on Monday, Sept. 16, at the Charlevoix Elementary School.

Girls and their parents who are interested in participating in Girl Scouts or just learning more about what Girl Scouting are encouraged to attend. Those who are unable to attend but would like to be placed in a troop or would like more information, may call Amy at (231) 544-2714.

Area Girl Scout leaders are also looking for volunteers who would be willing to assist with area Girl Scout programs.

Chamber car raffle set for Sept. 19

Time is running out for anyone interested in participating in the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce's 23rd annual car raffle.

The raffle drawing will take place at a drawing party set for 6-9 p.m. on Thursday Sept. 19 at Fox Motors in Charlevoix.

Ticket holders will have a chance to win a blue 2014 Ford Mustang convertible or $20,000 cash. The second place prize is $500 and third place is $250.

Ticket holders do not need to be present at the party to win.

Only 899 tickets are sold for the drawing. Tickets are $100 each or three for $200 and they will be sold up until an hour before the event.

Each ticket also admits two people to the raffle party which includes dinner catered by Grey Gables Restaurant, door prizes from area merchants, and a cash bar.

Tickets may be purchased by contacting the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce at (231) 547-2101 or via email at ferguson@charlevoix.org.

Hospital to host 'Walk with a Doc' event

Charlevoix Area Hospital will host a new event dubbed, "Walk with a Doc," starting at 9 a.m. on Friday, Sept. 20, at the hospital.

The event will offer members of the community the opportunity to meet the hospital's chief medical officer Dr. Craig Boss during a morning stroll from the hospital to downtown Charlevoix.

The event is open to the public and participants should meet at the hospital's cardiac rehab center which can be found by entering through the billing entrance.

Belvedere Club marks 135th anniversary

ANNE KELLY
Courier Staff Writer

Last month the members of Charlevoix's well-know summer resort association the Belvedere Club celebrated its 135th anniversary with a commemorative dinner club's casino.

The Belvedere Club, formed in 1878, is recognizable by its summer cottages, and the casino on Lake Charlevoix which opened in 1923. The Belvedere Club is an integral part of the Charlevoix community since its formation.

The Belvedere Golf Course, also a landmark and now open to the public, was originally designated as a private golf club in 1927. While many residents and guests may know about the Depot at Depot Beach, many may not know that the Belvedere Club built its own train station in 1892 which stood until 1931 when it mysteriously burned down. Another long gone landmark was the Belvedere Hotel which was built in 1879, destroyed by fire in 1886, and then rebuilt as the new Belvedere Hotel a year later.

As part of its celebration, club members recently partnered with the Charlevoix Historical Society to create a pictorial display that highlighted some of the club's notable landmarks over the years.

The Belvedere Club will be honored next summer by the Charlevoix Public Library's Michigan Room Committee at its annual Margaret Duerr Award Ceremony in recognition of the many philanthropies from which the Charlevoix community has benefited over the years. David Miles, co-director of the Charlevoix Historical Society's Museum at Harsha House has gathered and sequenced more than 100 photographs and digital images marking the history of the club.

Colorado colors

Charlevoix Elementary student Kate Klinger recently received a Colorado flag along with a certificate and letter from Colorado State Representative Don Coram in response to a letter Kate wrote to him last year while in Kristen Beach's fourth grade. This particular flag was flown over the state capitol on Kate's birthday. Several students from the same class were sent things from the senators and congressmen to whom they wrote. Pictured with Kate (far right) are school principal Doug Drenth and Kate's former teacher Kristen Beach.

nostalgic experience — the old corner candy store."

Patty Moore, an employee at the newly-opened popcorn business The Poppery, said the store opened May 1 and business took off quickly.

"We did really well and stayed open until midnight that week. After that we didn't do quite as well. During art fair or sidewalk sales, when people are there for other purposes, sales were not so high. Labor Day weekend, however, we did reasonably well."

Other downtown merchants, such as Nancy Suzor of Elements, agree that bad weather in the beginning of the summer made for a slower start than usual to the summer season, and then business picked up in July and August.

Pam Beer of The Clothing Company reported that they were blessed with a good season.

"Cooler weather is sometimes good for us," she said.

Patrice Stieglitz of J. Phillips thought their sales were up this year a bit.

Jeff Spreckell, of The Weathervane Restaurant said, "Last year we had record sales, and this year we exceeded that. It was a cold start to the summer and not much business in June, but July and August were fantastic."

Scovies Gourmet's Vi Keller reports that business was definitely up because of the fact that her business expanded its physical space to double its previous size.

"We were really scrambling to keep up," she said.

Allen Plungis at the Edgewater Bistro added a positive for the restaurant scene.

"It's been a good summer for us. I feel badly that some restaurants were closed this year, but this is our sixth season and it was our best so far."

Many of the businesses in the hospitality and retail industry in Charlevoix credit Castle Farms for bolstering the spring and fall seasons with weddings that continue outside summer. Anora O'Connor at Castle Farms reported that their self-guided tours were up 30 percent and that they continue to bring in revenue from weddings.

SPECIAL EVENTS

Trail ride fundraiser — The Front Porch Ministries is in Ellsworth will host a Chuck Wagon Trail Ride fundraiser on Saturday, Sept. 21, at the Timber Ridge Ranch in Ellsworth. Space is limited to 50 riders. The cost is $55. Registration includes Louise's cinammon rolls in the morning, chuck wagon lunch by the lake provided by the Front Porch, a prize drawing, and a T-shirt. The trail ride will be about four hours including a stop for lunch. All money raised through the event will benefit the Front Porch Ministries, a donation only restaurant in Ellsworth. For more information or a registration form, contact Nancy Ferguson at (231) 547-22B5, or visit www.frontporchellsworth.org.

Back Porch Coffeehouse — Drive South, from the Traverse City area, will open the sixth season of the Back Porch Coffeehouse in Charlevoix on Saturday, Sept 14. Drive South brings together two seasoned musicians, Roger Brown and Mary Sue Wilkinson; known most recently as the core of the traditional country band Sister Wilene. Vocal duets, featuring tight harmony singing, are a match for Brown's original American roots music. The Back Porch Coffeehouse is a music series that takes place on the second Saturday of each month, September through May at the Charlevoix Senior Center building. Scheduled musical guest(s) play from 7 to B:30 p.m., then area musicians circle-up for a jam session. Soups, desserts, coffee, tea are donated. Donations at the door are all for the scheduled performer(s).

LIGHTS

cost around $8,000 to light the five locust trees located just east of the Bridge Street sidewalk along the edge of East Park. The board had also expressed an interest in possibly lighting some trees in the area of the trout pond and harbormaster's building. The estimate for that work was $2,000-$3,000 and about $1,000 would also be needed for maintenance on existing lights in the display.

However, Pearson told the board that she recently spoke with city public works superintendent Pat Elliott who said the trees near Bridge Street would need some extensive pruning before any lights are installed. Pearson said Elliott reported that the work would cost $2,000-$3,000 which is not in his department's budget for this year.

In the motion that it passed, the authority's board asked that the city's department of public works reimburse the authority for the tree trimming over the next two years, but included a provision that if the request for reimbursement was denied, that the board would pay for the trimming out of its own coffers to keep the lighting plan moving forward yet this fall.

The proposal and request for the remaining $5,000 match will now go before the Charlevoix City Council at its next meeting set for 7 p.m. on Monday, Sept. 16.

Pearson said if the city council approves the plan and expenditure, the project will be put out to bid with a goal of having the new lights installed sometime in mid-October.

Last fall a combined effort of downtown merchant and community fundraising matched with money from the downtown development authority paid for a complete replacement of the lights in the trees that lined Bridge Street. The previous lights had an unpopular "cool white" tint and had several sections were in need of repair or replacement. However, because the five bigger locust trees on the edge of East Park are technically not street-side trees, they were not included in the program. Therefore, although all the streetside trees were included, the display still appears to have a gap right in the heart of the downtown.

This image, taken in November of 2012 shows the most recent version of the downtown Charlevoix tree light display shortly after it was installed. The area at the far right, just into East Park on the east side of Bridge Street between Clinton and Mason streets, is where the downtown development authority would like to add more lights to the display.

"I feel more grown up being here, but with all the big kids, I also feel small," she said.

Erin Bemis, Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce president and CEO, and mother of fourth-, fifth- and seventh-graders said, "From my perspective, the transition is going very smoothly. There was good communication from the administration, and the orientation helped with nerves of both parents and students."

"One of the reasons we were successful is we were honest throughout the entire process," said superintendent Bob Gendron.

"I've worked in districts throughout my career that have been seven-12. Middle school kids have access to higher-level curriculum. The juniors and seniors are great role models for the younger students. Middle school students tend to behave better when in a high school environment."

covers basic computer numeric programming, blue print reading and measurement.

Reynier works for Oliver Racing Parts that has been bought by Joe Mock, and is relocating from Grand Rapids to Charlevoix. Mock offered Reynier's services to the high school as it is difficult to find people with the skills and experience necessary to teach the class.

"Manufacturing is not what it used to be," Reynier said. "Now operators need to be educated. They need to be able to read the blue prints, do the measurements, and know enough about programming to make adjustments on the line. Students with this kind of background can get jobs for $16 or $18 (per hour) right out of high school. Then, they can decide to settle down, or go on to college with a good paying job to help defray the costs."

Reynier served as a First Robotics mentor to a successful team in Grand Rapids. Several of his team members chose to go on to school to become engineers.

"But some students would rather start working, right out of high school, make some money and start their families," said Reynier. The mechanical technology course lays the foundation for job skills that pay good wages."

"Industry locates where resources are. A key resource is a trained labor force. They can't wait four years for trained workers. Programs like this will make this area more attractive to those thinking of relocating," he went on to say.

Reynier is currently commuting between Charlevoix and Grand Rapids, going back downstate to work in the company there on weekends as they move. He plans to relocate to Charlevoix with his wife Diane. His vocational certification for teaching is based on his years of experience in the industry.

Stutzman teaches sixth grade band, seventh and eighth grade band, and high school band.

He has been in the band business since 1969, when he taught at Flint Northern High School. In 1970, Stutzman was hired to assist Clarence Odmark in Charlevoix Public Schools.

When Odmark retired, Stutzman took over the band program. He retired in 1979, to take a job with a national fundraising company, Henco Inc., and moved his family to Colorado. He returned to Michigan in 1986 and continued to work in fundraising. In 1996, Stutzman became the director of bands at Northwest Academy for the next 17 years. He retired in 2012 to help take care of his 98-year-old mother, Josephine Stutzman.

"When the Charlevoix band position opened up, it was too much of an opportunity to turn down, so I am home again, where I began my music career in Mr. Odmark's beginning band in 1956, Stutzman said. "The Charlevoix band program is one of the premier teaching jobs in the state and I am honored to be selected to lead this program to great things in the future."

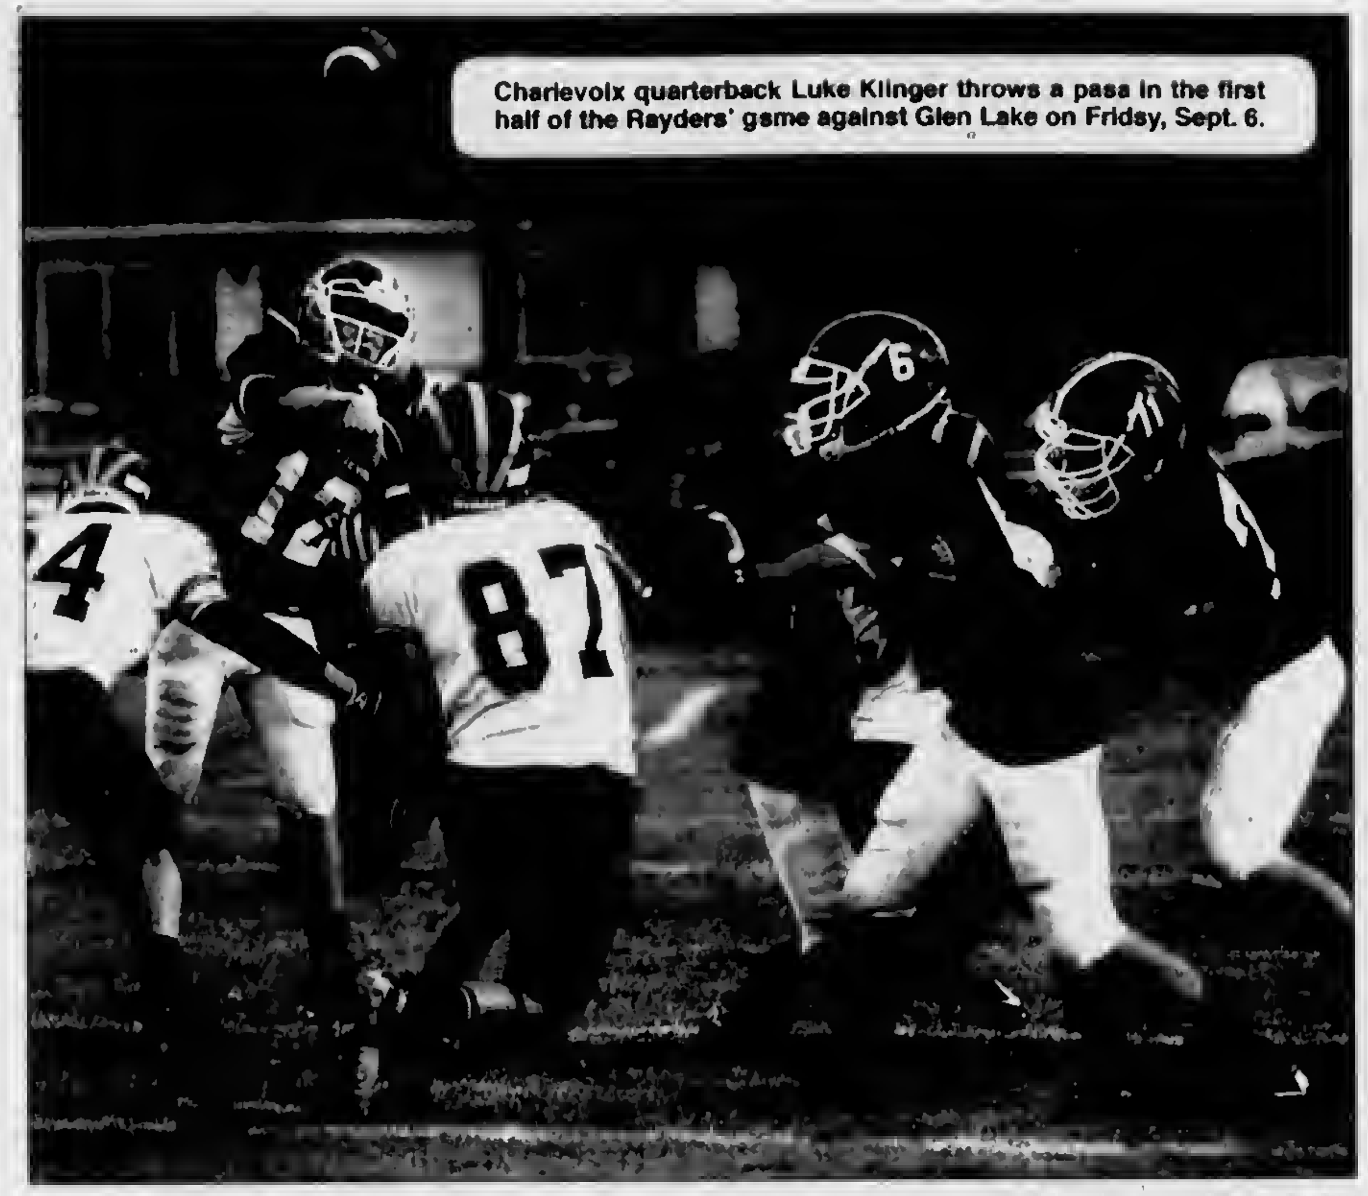
VARSITY FOOTBALL



Charlevoix quarterback Luke Klinger throws a pass in the first half of the Rayders' game against Glen Lake on Friday, Sept. 6.

DREW KOCHANNY/NEWS-REVIEW

Rayders look to bounce back after loss to Lakers

The Charlevoix varsity football coach Ron Bindi has the same message for his Rayders this week heading into game three as he had last week heading into game two: Cut down on the mistakes.

Bindi said although the Rayders took their season opening game from St. Ignace, his team would need to have fewer mistakes to defeat Maple City Glen Lake.

Unfortunately for the Rayders, penalties, fumbles and interceptions continued to plague them Friday, Sept. 6 in their home opener as they fell to the Lakers in a non-conference match.

The Rayders fell to 1-1 overall on the season, despite 119 yards from junior fullback Sam Hovie, who ran through tacklers on a damp Kipke Field.

"They're a great football team, they're good and we just had too many mistakes tonight," said Charlevoix coach Ron Bindi. "We got a nice gain or get something open, then we fumble the ball, turn it over. Get a first down, second and five we jump on the next play, second and 10."

Charlevoix came out of the locker room looking strong, as the Rayders escaped the first quarter down just 6-0 after a 25 yard touchdown run by Glen Lake quarterback Carter Lee. Charlevoix blocked the point after attempt.

In the second quarter, Glen Lake running back Travis Wiltjer found the endzone on a 23 yard run and later, Lee found receiver Thomas Waning on a 32 yard strike for a touchdown.

The Lakers' and Rayders headed to the half at 21-0 after a long drive for Charlevoix stalled inside the 20 yard line with an interception for Waning on defense.

"It's all about playing assignment football and one of the first things we have to do if we're going to be a great team is, you've got to play your assignments," Bindi said.

Charlevoix opened the second half with another long drive, but once again turned over the football on a fumble on the quarterback-center exchange.

The turnover again led to a Glen Lake touchdown, as Lee connected with Logan LaCross for a three yard touchdown, making it a 28-0 game.

Injuries also mounted for Charlevoix as backup quarterback Nate Moon replaced Luke Klinger late in the third quarter.

Moon put together a drive for the Rayders early in the fourth quarter, but on fourth and goal a touchdown pass by Moon to Hovie was called back on penalty and turned over on downs.

Overall, the Rayders committed eight penalties and turned the ball over five times on the night.

"We got hit with a couple injuries, but the kids that we needed to step up, they stepped up," Bindi said. "But if we don't play smart, if we don't play disciplined, we're not going to win."

Klinger finished the night 3-for-10 with 57 yards and two interceptions before being forced out of the game, while Moon rushed for 36 yards on 11 carries. Defensively, Bryan Noirot and Sam Eakes led the Rayders with nine and eight tackles respectively.

Looking ahead to this week's game, the Rayders have another big test in front of them in the form of Lake Michigan Conference powerhouse Grayling.

Grayling is coming off a 9-0 regular season last year and is returning many of its players this year, Bindi noted.

He also noted that the Vikings have a decided height and weight advantage over the Rayders at many positions.

"They are good. They throw the ball all over the place. Up front we are going to be outmanned in terms of height and weight," Bindi said.

He said the team this week has again been focusing on fundamentals, staying with their assignments and taking care of the football.

Bindi noted that part of the problem facing some of the team members is that their desire to win and help the team is so strong they stray from their assignments of when to help elsewhere on a play.

"The talent and effort from the kids has been good ... I know we can rise to the occasion. We just need to do the things we need to do," Bindi added.

The Rayders game against the Vikings is set for a 7 p.m. kickoff in Grayling.

VARSITY VOLLEYBALL

Rayders open league play with a win

GRAYLING — The Charlevoix High School varsity volleyball team opened Lake Michigan Conference play on a positive note Tuesday.

Gloria Greene had 17 assists, three aces and three blocks while Madeline Boss added 18 kills and eight digs as the Rayders defeated Grayling, 25-22, 25-18, 22-25, 25-21.

"The girls really came out and played hard tonight," Charlevoix coach Audra Randall said. "In the third game we were up 16-3 and they came back and tied it up. Their momentum and energy came way up and Grayling was not going to give up.

"We came back and played strong and smart in the fourth game to finish the match."

Also for the Rayders, Jennaca Holecheck had six kills and was credited with a strong defensive game at the net and on serve receive, while Olivia Storm had 12 assists and two aces.

Randall also credited Yogi Hang and Emily Zabowa for solid defense and on serve receive.

"Everyone played and it was a great team effort," Randall said.

On Saturday, Sept. 7, the Rayders finished with a 2-2 record at the Rogers City Tournament.

The Rayders defeated Au-Gres, 25-11, 25-12; and topped Mio, 25-17, 25-15; then fell to Rogers City, 27-25, 25-12. In a quarterfinal match, the Rayders fell to Alpena, 25-18, 25-14.

"The girls played some really well excuted volleyball early on in pool play against Au-Gres and Mio," Randall said. "We needed a win against Alpena to move to the semifinals but fell. The girls are playing well at times and then very inconsistent.

"If we can be more consistent with our play, the girls will make some amazing steps toward their goals," Randall added.

JV FOOTBALL

JV falls to Glen Lake despite strong defensive effort

A strong defensive showing for most of the game wasn't enough to overcome some miscues for the Charlevoix Rayder junior varsity football team as they fell to Maple City Glen Lake 15-7 on Thursday, Sept. 5 at Glen Lake.

"We came a little flat," Charlevoix JV coach Todd Klinger said. "On our first drive, we fumbled to set up their first touchdown."

The Lakers opened the scoring, as Klinger noted, in the first quarter on a three-yard run. A successfull point after put the Lakers up 7-0.

The Rayders answered in the second quarter when quarterback Forrest Noirot hit Brad Klinger for a six-yard touchdown pass. Hunter Cox tacked on the point-after to even the score at 7-all.

That's how the score would stay at the half and through the third quarter.

The Lakers made the go-ahead score in the fourth quarter on an 83-yard touchdown pass. The Lakers' two-point conversion attempt was good leaving the score at 15-7.

"As the game went on, the defense got more aggressive. We pretty much stopped except for one play where they were able to get a receiver wide open for the second touchdown," Klinger said.

Malcom Williams led the Rayders on defense with 10 tackles, while Benn Boss had five and Justin Adkins and Noirot had four each.

On offense, Adkins led the way with 36 yards on nine carries. Turner Havens had 22 yards on eight carries, Noirot added 20 yards on 10 carries and Boss had 16 yards on five carries. In the passing department, Noirot completed six of 17 passes for 38 yards. Boss caught two passes for 18 yards, Klinger caught three for 16 yards and Miles Windon caught one pass for four yards.

"Offensively, we need to play with more consistency," Klinger said. "On most of our drives, at some point we had a play and that would set us back. As we get better running the new system, the consistency will come."

Next up the Rayder JV squad will host Grayling. Kickoff is set for 6 p.m. on Thursday, Sept. 12 at Kipke Field.

CANCELLATION

Weather cancels Mud Run

Charlevoix High School's annual cross country event the Charlevoix Mud Run was canceled on Saturday, Sept. 7, because of bad weather. The race will not be rescheduled.

The Charlevoix Rayders cross country team will be back in action on Saturday, Sept. 14, at the House on the Hill meet in Ellsworth.

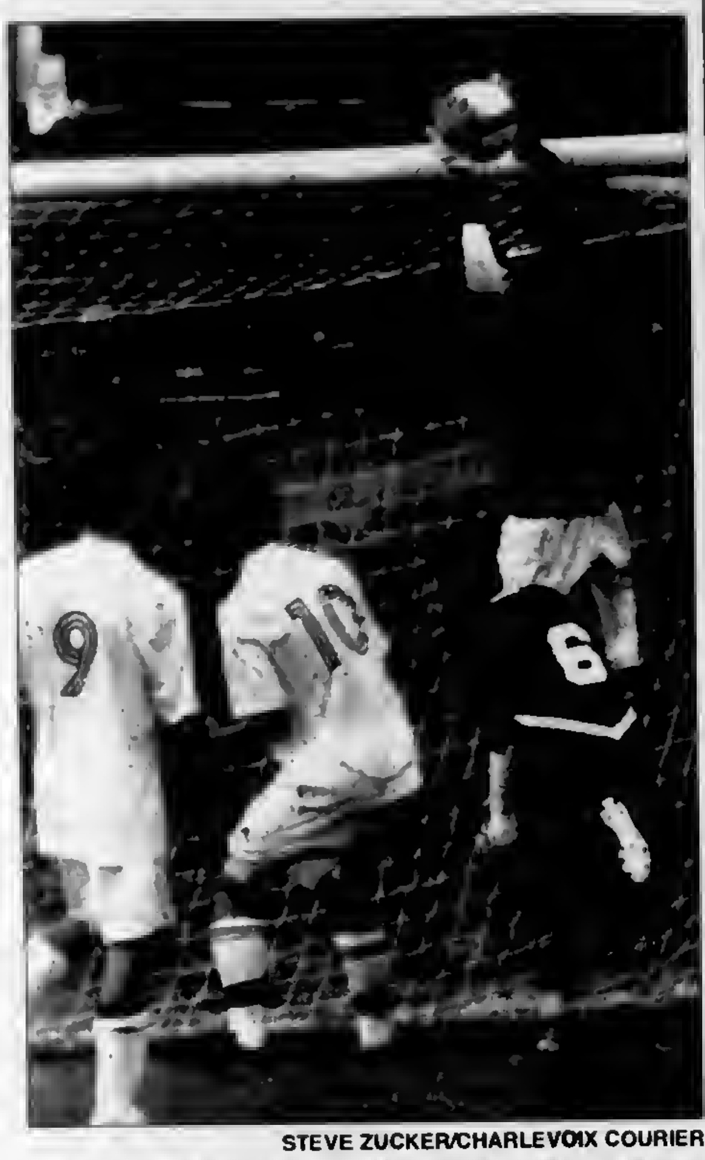
Rayder thrill rides go up, then down



STEVE ZUCKER/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

Charlevoix goalkeeper JJ Wachler catches a Grayling shot late in the second half of the Rsyders' game against the Vikings Monday.

The Charlevoix Rayders were opposite sides of two nail-biting games against conference rivals in the past week, first defeating Harbor Springs in overtime and then falling to Grayling.

Junior midfielder Davis LaBelle scored three goals including the game-tieing goal and another in overtime as Charlevoix earned a 7-5 double overtime win over Harbor Springs Thursday in a thrilling match at Ottawa Stadium.

With the win, the Rayders improved to 5-1 overall and remained perfect in the Lake Michigan Conference at 3-0.

"It was a very exciting game and a game I'm sure both teams will remember playing under the lights," Charlevoix coach Jon Boss said. "Harbor is a very skilled team and we expected a game like this going up against a team we know so well.

"It was exciting, we were pumped up before the game and even more so afterwards."

The Rayders took a 3-0 lead at halftime as Walker Drost scored first off a feed from Nick Snabes before Snabes scored an unassisted goal. LaBelle then made it 3-0 at the half. Brendan Britt had the assist.

In the second half, Harbor Springs came back to take a 4-3 advantage before LaBelle tied the game with a minute and a half to play from the left side as he worked his way around a pair of defenders and bent a shot from the 18 just under the crossbar.

In the first overtime, LaBelle scored his third goal of the game from just outside the 18 on a well-struck ball before defender Kevin Pearl moved up from his sweeper position and blasted a shot to score his first career varsity goal.

After Harbor scored to make it 6-5, Walker Drost closed the scoring as he scored unassisted.

"All of our goals were beautiful looking goals," Boss said. "The way we moved the ball around the field we're going to be an extremely tough team to beat if we continue to pass and move the ball around and possess the ball like we have been.

JJ Wachler was in goal for the Rayders and earned the win.

"He (Wachler) had two huge saves including one on a breakaway in the second half," Boss said. "This was a team win and we played together well as team. It was an exciting sight to see and just a great night for soccer."

On Monday, however, the last-minute edge didn't go the Rayders' way.

Grayling scored the eventual game-winning goal with close to nine minutes to play to earn a 4-3 win over Charlevoix Monday in a Lake Michigan Conference soccer match.

With the setback, the Rayders move to 5-2 overall, 3-1 league and will travel to Harbor Light Christian for a non-league match today, Friday, Sept. 13.

The Rayders were trailing 3-2 in the early second half, but tied it up right at the 20 minute mark on a goal by Nick Snabes from the left side.

The Vikings re-took the lead with about nine minutes left.

The Rayders had few good scoring chances in the minutes that followed including a shot by LaBelle on a breakaway that sailed just over the goal's crossbar.

"We just did not play very well," Charlevoix coach Jon Boss said. "We started out playing well and scored first, but then it just kind of fell apart from there and as the game progressed. I think the weekend affected the guys not touching a ball for a few days."

For the Rayders, Nick Snabes had a pair of goals, while Walker Drost also scored. Assists went out to Christian Mayte and Drost.

"Snabes had two very nice hard working goals where he was able to get his body in good position to score," Boss said.

Boss added his team was not able to play the style of game they typically like to play, which is a ball possession game.

"There was a lot of just kick ball," Boss said. "We like to have a more possession style type of game where we work the ball up, but we weren't able to do that. We just looked to play over the top, which isn't our style.

"We had some opportunities to score, but we were trying to shoot through the net rather than at it."

JJ Wachler was in goal for the Rayders.

DREW KOCHANNY/NEWS REVIEW

Bill Sylstra (right) of Grand Rapida receives the Golf Assocation of Michigan Senior Amateur Championship trophy from rules official Steve Braun after winning the two-day tournament at the Belvedere Golf Club Tuesday.

Zylstra wins at Belvedere

DREW KOCHANNY
Northern Michigan Review

Sometimes, it's best to keep thinking outside of the game and just play the game.

Bill Zylstra put that game plan into play Tuesday, as the Michigan senior amateur won the 27th Golf Association of Michigan Senior Championship at the Belvedere Golf Club in Charlevoix.

Zylstra, 62, shot a final round 3-under-par 69 combined with a first round 73 to finish at a tournament low 142.

The returning feeling of winning for Zylstra, who has won the tournament three times in the past, was one that he couldn't hold back.

"Wonderful. I didn't know if I'd ever win again," he said. "I think sometimes you just start doubting yourself. Today I really didn't doubt myself.

"I said no matter what happens, just play."

Originally from Grand Rapids and currently living in Ocklawaha, Fla., Zylstra was able to hold off Greg Reynolds of Grand Blanc, after a double-bogey by Reynolds on 18 pushed his score to 144 and a second place finish. Reynolds shot a 71 on Monday to go with a 73 on Tuesday.

Randy Lewis of Alma and Mitch Wilson of Portage each shot a 145 in the tournament to take a third place tie. Lewis shot 73 and 72, while Wilson brought in scores of 74 and 71.

The win for Zylstra will be his last in senior amateur tournaments, choosing to retire from tournament play at the top, as he's currently ranked No. 1 in the Golfweek Magazine senior amateur ranking.

The win at Belvedere for Zylstra at the end of amateur play feels just a little more special this time around.

"I think this might mean more than the three I've won before," he said. "Senior careers aren't real long. You think '55, this is going to be pretty good.' Well, by the time you get to 62, those guys are looking pretty young."

Belvedere also means quite a bit to Zylstra, who played amateur tournaments on the course from 1969 to 1988.

"If you grew up in this state, this was the place," said Zylstra. "It was always the place because you're going to have the state amateur here. That's everything. It's in the best shape I've seen it too. It was never in this good of shape when we played the state amateur here."

While wins haven't come often for Zylstra in Michigan tournament play this year, it was good to finish up the season with low maintenance win in the books.

"It's been tough this year. I've played alright. I just haven't finished anything," he said. "I hit the ball good today.

"I didn't miss many greens so that always makes it low maintenance."

Locals playing in the 161 player tournament included Tom Rex Jr. of Charlevoix who finished with a 153. Phil Harrison of Harbor Springs a 157; Brian Martindale of Petoskey, 158; Max Engelman of Petoskey, 160; Paul Riedorek of Charlevoix, 160; and Phil Speck of Charlevoix, 169.

POP WARNER

Season kicks off with a win, tie

The Charlevoix Pop Warner football season got under way on Saturday, Sept. 7, in Kalkaska, with both the Charlevoix Pee Wee and Midget teams in action.

The Rayder Pee Wees defeated the Traverse City Lions 21-7 behind a swarming team defense, and a strong running attack on offense.

Defensively, the Rayders were led by defensive end Tony Illenden, whose interception and return set up a score. Jake Snyder, Philip Sterrett, Max Ostrum and Caleb Stuck paced the defense with the help of strong line play.

Offensively, the Rayders were led by Stuck, who scored two touchdowns. Quarterback Jake Snyder threw a touchdown pass and rushed for another. Coaches credit the offensive line for creating the space for the backs to operate.

The Pee Wees are back in action at 4 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 14, in Pellston against Bellaire.

The Rayder Midgets battled with Boyne City to a tie, 6-6, in a soggy game that saw both defenses rule the day.

The Charlevoix defense displayed solid tackling, led by Ty Fry, Luke Stuck, Cole Wright and Tyler Ostrum

The offense was led by Cole Wright, who scored the only touchdown for the Rayders on a pass from Fry. Carson Gauthier led the running attack and had a break away that led to the score. The Charlevoix Midgets play again at 1 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 14, at Central Lake against the Traverse City Titans

Sales

Digital Sales Representative

Simple Digital Media is seeking a Digital Sales Representative. Do you consistently achieve goals? Do you feel like you'd enjoy going on sales calls every day, and meeting with new prospects (or are you already doing so)? We're looking for a Digital Sales Rep to join our market leading team that focuses on our customers' growth.
We're seeking someone to help us maximize digital revenue across platforms and ensure that our customers' digital advertising campaigns are optimized and completed accurately. Our culture thrives on creating and executing big ideas that provide solutions for our customers.

This position requires solid presentation skills, creativity and great attention to detail. Prior sales and digital media experience are both a big plus.

To qualify, you must possess good interpersonal skills, ambition and excellent prospecting abilities. Other responsibilities include the ability to develop and retain new, local business, manage and develop client projects and provide solutions, along with great problem solving.

The position offers great earning potential and full benefits, including group health, paid time off and 401(k). Dependable transportation and a valid driver's license are required.

Charlevoix High School student Katie Hinkley looks back as she runs away from would-be "tacklers" during the 2013 Charlevoix High School Homecoming Powder Puff football game at Kipke Field Wednesday night. Students at the school are celebrating homecoming week with a full slate of activities. The homecoming parade will take place at 6 p.m. on Friday and will travel from Clinton Street near the library, down Bridge Street to Garfield Street. The homecoming king and queen will be crowned during halftime of the Rayders' football game against Elk Rapids. Kickoff of the game is set for 7 p.m.

Be Alert

Getting connected for community safety

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Charlevoix officials are looking to be among first communities in a three-county area to get citizens signed up for a new system that will relay important messages in emergencies and other situations.

Shortly after a water main leak prompted a several-days-long water boil advisory for customers of the city's water system in early August, Charlevoix Police Chief Gerard Doan has been looking for ways the city might better communicate with its residents in the event of an emergency or situation such as the water boil advisory.

During the water issue, city officials posted the notice on the city's website and Facebook page, sent out news releases to area media outlets, posted notices at city hall and the Charlevoix County Building and even had crews go door-to-door in some parts of town to get the word out.

But Doan was tasked with finding another avenue to complement these other methods. Doan researched several companies that offer message delivery services through the many media

District student counts higher than expected

JAMIE BAUMANN
Northern Michigan Review

Charlevoix Public Schools started out the school year with more students in classes than expected when this year's budget was passed in late June.

Charlevoix Public School Superintendent Robert Gendron reported the good news to the Charlevoix school board at its regular monthly meeting Monday. Gendron said that the numbers in the elementary school are 475 and in the combined middle/high school 518, totaling 993. The district budgeted conservatively based on funding for 960 students. Official count numbers will not be in until the count day in the first week in October. The district receives a large portion of its revenue from the state's per pupil foundation grant, so to be above the number budgeted for is positive for the financially-strapped district.

Principals Doug Drenth and Suzanne Klinger reported that the district's iPads have been delivered and are in the hands of students and teachers. At the elementary school, iPad parent orientations have been scheduled. At the high school, 520 iPads were distributed on Monday.

Gendron also reported that a mix up in the test administration at the Beaver Island site caused the Charlevoix Public Schools to earn a red designation in the new state accountability system.

He has been working with representatives of Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District and the Michigan Education Department to try to research why the overall district score was red, when all the Charlevoix individual school buildings earned a yellow color.

The new state accountability system rates schools on several factors including test scores, graduation rates, attendance rates, appropriate teacher certification, their school site plans, as well as the test scores of subgroups and the gap between the lowest 30 percent and the highest 30 percent. This is the first year the state has used the scoring system, which combines both state and federal accountability criteria into one report. The highest score is green, yellow is in the middle and red is the lowest. About 85 percent of the state's school districts scored in the yellow range for this first year.

"I have been looking into this for the last couple of weeks," Gendron

More lights coming

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

An effort to add more lights to the trees in downtown Charlevoix flickered a bit before the Charlevoix City Council ultimately approved it Monday.

The council voted 4-2 to approve spending $5,000 of general fund money to be combined with $5,000 from the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority and $5,000 from a private donation to pay for lighting five honey locust trees on the extreme western edge of East Park near Bridge Street between Mason and Clinton streets, and if funds permit, the trees in the landscaping by the trout pond in the park.

The initiative grew out of a recent brainstorming session among the downtown development authority board and was kick-started when board member Todd Wyett offered $5,000 of his own money for the project if the authority and the city council would also kick in $5,000 each.

The goal of the project is to fill in an apparent gap in the streetside tree lights that line Bridge Street from just north of Memorial Bridge to the top of Belvedere Avenue. Last fall a combined effort of downtown merchant and community fundraising matched with money from the downtown development authority paid for a complete replacement of the lights in the trees that lined Bridge Street. The previous lights had an unpopular "cool white" tint and several sections were in need of repair or replacement. However, because the five bigger locust trees on the edge of East Park are technically not street-side trees, they were not included in the program. Therefore, although all the streetside trees were included, the display still appears to have a gap right in the heart of the downtown.

City officials have said that the five trees near Bridge Street need to be pruned before the lights are installed. The estimated cost of that work is about $2,000. However the city had not budgeted money to trim those trees in this

The motar merrier

Scaffolding re-appeared in downtown Charlevoix this week as crews began a project to repair the brickwork and root on the See Building at the corner of Antrim and Bridge streets.The building housea the Villager Pub and Terry's Place on the lower level and both establishments ara open while work is ongoing. Villager Pub owner Terry Left said the work is expected to take about a month. In July scaffolding lined the north side of the Masonic Building, located a block north at the intersection of Bridge and Mason streets, for about two weeks while crews repaired brickwork on that building. The work on the Masonic Building commenced after several bricks fell to the sidewalk below around 6:30 a.m. on a morning in late June.

SummerFolk series ends with concert

The Charlevoix Public Library will host the last concert of the SummerFolk season 6:30-8:30 p.m. Monday, Sept. 30, featuring Jack Elliot.

The SummerFolk concerts celebrate local folk artists with an evening of music. The featured performer kicks off the evening with a 45 minute concert, which is followed by an open mic session, an opportunity for the public to share talents. Open mic signup begins at 6 p.m. and is limited to five performers.

Elliott has been part of the local Michigan music scene for years, performing solo or with other musicians.

"I just want something that makes my love of music to come out clearly," Elliot said. "I love to interpret and express songs as they fit into my life and my passion for the song, itself, and the emotion that it creates in others."

Corrections

Because of incorrect information provided to a Courier writer, a story appearing in the Friday, Sept. 13, edition of the Charlevoix Courier about the past summer's local business trends incorrectly listed one of three vacant retail spaces in the downtown as the Kilwin's building. The correct building on the list should instead have been the Murdick's building.

Because of a typographical error, a Charlevoix County assumed business name listing appearing on page A2 of the Sept. 11, 2013 edition of the Petoskey News contained an incorrectly spelled last name. The correct listing is: Iseniorhomecare, 03820 North Sanderson Road, East Jordan; by Susan L. Cook and Frantz R. Cook.

year's budget. In its proposal, the authority board offered to pay for the tree trimming out of its budget this year, but asked that the city's general fund reimburse it over the next two years.

The city's recently-hired economic development director Bethany Pearson, who serves as an administrator for the downtown development authority board, presented the $5,000 request to the city council Monday.

But the proposal received a lukewarm reception among some of the council.

Council member Lyle Gennett said he appreciates Wyett's generosity, but thinks there are other things toward which the city should be putting its efforts and money. One example Gennett offered is the large evergreen tree at the corner of Clinton and Bridge streets that serves as the community Christmas tree each year. He said the tree is becoming decrepit and is looking bad and will likely have to be replaced in the next few years. He said he thinks the city should start putting money aside to replace that tree now.

"I think we need to have a wish list," Gennett said. "We need to prioritize it, then if people want to make donations, they can look at the list."

Council member Greg Stevens said the downtown development authority should think about making payments it promised, but hasn't made for several years, to the Charlevoix Public Library, before it spends money on more lights in the downtown. Stevens also suggested that perhaps the money could instead be used to replace some of the streetside trees the city is taking down this year because of the emerald ash borer.

Pearson explained that the authority's ability to make a payment to the library in the coming year will depend on how personal property taxes come in. Also, she said a bond for work in Bridge Park will also soon be paid off which will free up some money going forward.

Council member Jeff Porter didn't care for the fact that the proposal was coming to the council "at the last minute."

Hearing this, Wyett addressed the council, first apologizing for the "last minute" nature of the request, but noting that the authority did not have a director for a time during a personnel transition, and that if the authority waited any longer, it would be too late for this winter and the effort would have to wait another year.

Wyett also explained the reasoning behind further enhancing the downtown light display.

"The reason is to increase people, when they come through Charlevoix in the winter, wanting to stop in the downtown and investigate what's going on."

Wyett added that he plans to make additional donations in future years to help expand the light display further.

Council member Shane Cole said if the city doesn't take advantage of this opportunity, he's concerned about how long it might be until the gap in the lights might get filled.

Gennett and Stevens ultimately cast the two dissenting votes.

Pearson said Thursday that the project has been put out for bid with a deadline of Oct. 1. Around that same time the work to prune the trees is expected to take place. The lights are expected to be installed sometime around the second week in October.

Elks to host Oktoberfest Sept. 28

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

After a few years on hiatus, Charlevoix will again host an Oktoberfest this fall.

Officials with the Charlevoix Elks Lodge who spearheaded the effort, have set the event to take place from noon-6 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 28, in the public parking lot between Clinton and Mason streets just west of Bridge Street (the same lots in which the carnival rides are set up during Venetian Festival) in downtown Charlevoix.

Margie Tamminga with the Elks organization said the whole theme of the event is creating an event that matches family fun with nonprofit fundraising opportunities.

Tamminga noted that the Elks regularly get requests for contributions from nonprofit groups, so the idea emerged: Why not give the nonprofits an opportunity to raise money for themselves.

So organizers put out the word out to nonprofit groups to come and set up a booth with food or carnival games or whatever else they might think of to match the theme of the event.

"We aren't charging them anything. They get to keep whatever they make," Tamminga said.

As of Thursday, 30 nonprofit groups have signed up to participate.

"Oktoberfest is a fall party for families and friends to come and celebrate the beauty of fall in Northern Michigan," a release about the event reads.

In addition to food and beverage and game booths, musical performances are expected from the Northwest Academy Jazz Band, the Charlevoix High School band, the Pine River Band and more.

One of the highlights of the day will be the wiener dog parade and races, slated to take place around 3 p.m. That event will serve as a fundraiser for the Charlevoix Area Humane Society.

The Keweenaw Star will be offering a special sunset cruise on the day of the event and will offer discounted tickets for those who bring a non-perishable food item to donate to a local food pantry.

During the event, adult beverages and other food items will also be available at the Elks Lodge, at 104 Mason St.

After the outdoor activities wrap up, the event will continue into the evening at the Elks Lodge where more food and entertainment will be offered.

Elks officials hope to make this an annual event.

Pool hosts Splash Bash Oct. 6

The Charlevoix Area Community Pool is hosting the second annual Splash Bash 1-4 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 6.

Activities include a bounce house, games, popcorn, cotton candy and music. Clowns Toothpic and Crash will be at the pool again this year with face painting and balloon animals.

A free open swim from 1-3 p.m. will be followed by interactive water safety demonstrations. Pig Eatin' Ribs will be on hand with a menu of food for purchase.

Society hosts tour of Todd homestead

EAST JORDAN — The Charlevoix County History Preservation Society's will visit the pioneer home site of the Todd family, located in Wilson Township on the grounds of Raven Hill Discovery Center, at 6 p.m. Monday, Sept. 23.

Participants will meet at the main building at Raven Hill Discovery Center and proceed to the home site where Kerri Finlayson, professor of archeology and sociology at North Central Michigan College in Petoskey, will show the actual excavation area. Finlayson has been conducting research at this 1860s homestead for 13 years.

After the tour, participants will return to the Loranger Great Room at Raven Hill to hear from professional genealogists Barbara Hernden and Karen Giudice about the results of their recent research into the Todd family history.

Raven Hill Discovery Center is located at 1737 Fuller Road, between East Jordan and Boyne City, just off C48 at Pearsall Road.

This program is free and open to the public. Light refreshments will be served. For more infomation, call (231) 582-5326.

Communication is an art best done face-to-face

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

Animals communicate with their creative sounds, swift body movements and a gaze that keeps your darkest secrets. Birds will gracefully sing, dance and flutter their wings. Babies coo and babble smile and cry. For the rest of us, it's yada, yada, yada ... well, you know the rest. Texting and emailing is quickly replacing stolen glances, hands that talk, eyes that listen and words that are soft.

I've been reminiscing on the good old days of conversation. A time when ladies met for morning coffee or afternoon tea, when men checked in with each other while playing golf or checkers; and couples held hands and talked about their day and those yet to come. I am pleased to see that there are still some folk who take time to gather and visit to share their day. Afternoon teas have been replaced with internet cafes and cocktail hour with microbrews, but it's still good to see individuals gather for conversation. Our lifestyles have moved us into a quicker pace with our clips of: "OK. Uh huh. Yep. Alright. See ya." Conversing and letter writing are becoming archaic and lost arts. More individuals gaze into their pieces of technology instead of sparkling eyes, missing out on meeting people who have yet to enter their lives.

On the down side, conversation and communication may get us into trouble. Often times it's our lack of communicating with someone or our manner in which we communicate that may create a problem.

It's not always what is said, but how it's said, or a gesture made that changes the whole feel of what is being spoken. As couples age, they can usually figure out what their significant other will say or do at any given moment. Conversation may be less but communication may come in glances or a touch of a hand. When I am at the hospital, it's a warming site to see communication between spouses visiting if their beloved had a stroke. Again it's a smile or warm embrace but it is a form of communication.

Words fill in the spaces but action conveys what is felt. That's probably how the saying, "One picture is worth a thousand words" became so popular. Moments in time caught on film do evoke feelings but conversation will usually follow.

It's all about the sharing. It's like standing in front of Mount Rushmore or the Grand Canyon. When you travel alone you will invariably talk with a complete stranger just because you are in awe of such a site and feel the need to say something.

Words have the ability to comfort as well as hurt. In the counseling realm it is general knowledge that words hurt harder than a fist. Our memory bank has a difficult time letting go of verbiage that is negative. We replay those words in our head again and again until we believe them. Constructive and ongoing communication is a trait sought in new employees, friendships, future spouses and in general has been found to keep problems from becoming catastrophes.

My hope is for each new generation to remember the importance of what they say, how they say it and rely more on face to face rather than text to text. Conversation is an art that may be pleasing to our senses and savored when kindness and thoughtful sharing takes place. It's not one sided but shared, each individual given a time to share their thought on the subject, not driven entirely or monopolized by one person. Yes, there is an art to conversing and I am hopeful it's an art that will continue because I've never been good at reading minds or very small keyboards.

Gayle Gennett is a retired educator and counselor with more than 30 years experience. She is currently a licensed professional counselor in private practice focusing on youth and couples counseling. She also oversees the Lay Chaplaincy Program at Charlevoix Area Hospital. She holds a bachelor's degree in art education, a master's degree in guidance and counseling and post graduate work in administration all from Eastern Michigan University.

Junior Golf program director offers thanks to community

Editor:

It was a great summer for our Junior Golfers. Thanks goes to the many who helped provide excellent golf and educational experiences for our 8 youngsters. Next summer we will hit another milestone — 20 years of introducing golf values to area youth.

Our volunteer mentor helpers, numbering in the upper 20s, have been critical to our success and have helped establish the program's content and purpose.

Our teaching professionals led by Joan Walta, Marty Joy and Scott Blechel, make an impressive impact with their knowledge. Course managers at the Charlevoix Country Club (Keith Grunch), the Belvedere Golf Club (Mary Joy, the city's Charlevoix Golf Club, (Mike Wescott and the management team at Antrim Dells clear their schedule to accommodate our Junior Golfers for 15 summer days. What a wonderful commitment they make.

Local golfers have been quick to lend their support and they provide used clubs and bags for our "lending trailer used for each session. They give us "experienced balls" so that everyone has an ample supply. Local businesses such as Burger King, Kilwin's Celeste Murdick's Fudge and Mittens Frozen Yogurt provide us with incentive certificates which reward "good shots."

Belvedere pro Marty Joy's Hickory Hundred fundraiser takes pledges for each of his 100 holes he plays in a day using 1930s-era hickory-shafted clubs. It is an outstanding effort on his part and is our sole fundraiser which allows us to send eight golfers to Ferris State University Golf Camp and to award 18 deserving youngsters with a passion for golf free season passes for the Charlevoix municipal course. The Belvedere Association continues to support Marty's fundraiser. They are the main contributors who allow us to do things that make our program special.

We also wish to thank our mentors: Ron Angnello, Diana Baten, Mary Bradley, Jerry Christan, John Dixon, Rick English, Jim Grant, Stuart Goldblatt, Bob Heath, Ken and Sue Heeres, Rich Heeres, Bruch Hebert, Dan Howell, Dave and Pat Immonen, Tom Kirinovic, Charles Kohs, Mary Jo McFalls, Kathy Revard, Bob Sell, Jennifer Sell, David Sherman, Wendy Sloan, Todd Sorenson, Penny and Pete Szafran, Jill and Sam Washburn and Mike Way.

We have said it before and often, " It takes the whole village to raise our children." Charlevoix does it well.

We thank you one and all.

Until next year.

Dean and Joyce Davenport

Organization to host area columnist

Stephen Tuttle, columnist for the Northern Express, will be the guest speaker at the next meeting of the Progressive Women of Charlevoix County.

The meeting will take place Tuesday, Sept. 24, at the Charlevoix Public Library. Members may arrive at noon and the speaker will begin at 12:30 p.m.

Tuttle won first place in the 2012 Michigan Press Association contest for local columnists in a Class B weekly newspaper. He is a political consultant qualified by Michigan courts as a political communications expert.

Tuttle was born and raised in Traverse City, moved to Boston to get into political campaigns, then to Phoenix, Ariz., where he spent 35 years.

In Phoenix, he developed communication strategies and tactics for political campaigns and wrote speeches ranging from coverage of tiny water district elections to statewide candidate campaigns and ballot issues.

Tuttle authored a twice monthly column in Arizona Republic, the state's largest daily newspaper, from 1991-2001.

On a business trip to Traverse City five years ago, he re-met and married a high school classmate, then moved back to Traverse City.

Tuttle started writing for Northern Express about three and a half years ago.

Tuttle will speak about the state of the progressive movement. He said the direction he intends to take in his presentation will be a surprise Tuttle said, "it is a positive message despite what seems like bleak times for progressives."

Members are invited to brown bag their lunch. The program is open to anyone interested in progressive issues, male or female. R.S.V.P. by Monday, Sept. 23, by emailing progwomenchxcty@yahoo.com or calling (231) 582-0416.

The Progressive Women of Charlevoix County meets from noon-2 p.m. on the fourth Tuesday of the month. Locations alternate between Charlevoix and Boyne City.

There are no membership fees and meeting announcements are by email.

In the years following the establishment of a lumber mill in 1867 at the channel neck on the northwest corner of Round Lake, logs came into town by two methods. At first they mainly arrived in winter via horsedrawn sledges from the lumber camps on the north side of Lake Charlevoix. For the first two years of the mill's existence, the outlet from that lake into Round Lake was merely a small stream that ran below the current Chicago Club area. In the temperate seasons, only a few logs at a time could be nudged down this waterway, a narrow flow of shallow water with rapids that fell a total of two feet from the larger to the smaller lake. But then the channel was cut in 1869. From that time on, logs arrived via the water by the thousands. Still in winter they had to come by sledge. But after 1878, when a sturdier bridge was built, wintertime logs began to arrive by sledge from the south, coming up State Street to Park Avenue, turning to Bridge Street, then up the north hill to the lumber mill property on Dixon Avenue, where they unloaded onto what were called "rollways," gigantic piles of logs laid out it rows. Near the mill, these rows were very neat, but as the season wore on they began to appear less so (far right), until by the end of winter the far eastern log piles were nothing but helterskelter jumbles. At the height of the lumber era, which ended about 1915, about one half of the north shore of Round Lake was given over to rollways.

Welke earns aeronautics award

The Michigan Aeronautics Commission at its meeting Wednesday, Sept. 11, in Traverse City presented its Award of Excellence to two longtime Northern Michigan aviators and the National Cherry Festival Air Show Committee.

Paul Welke, a Beaver Island resident and current director of operations for Island Airways, has worked in aviation for nearly 40 years. Under his leadership, Island Airways has grown into one of the largest charter operations in Michigan, the Michigan Department of Transportation noted in a press release on the awards.

The Michigan Aeronautics Commission saluted Welke for "providing safe, efficient and valued air service to and from the Beaver Island community" and demonstrating how "aviation provides essential services to communities across the state."

Aaron Cook, of Traverse City, has served as director of Northwestern Michigan College's aviation program since 2006. Cook received the award for implementing "numerous best practices and innovative processes to dramatically improve productivity" within the aviation program, and for "successfully securing support for the implementation of an unmanned aerial vehicle training curriculum that is one of the first of its kind."

"The National Cherry Festival Air Show Committee was recognized for producing free air shows for more than 25 years, including this year's inaugural night air show. The award honors the committee for "demonstrating that a broad cross section of community volunteers can bring exciting family entertainment and significant economic impact to their community and the state."

Every year since 1990, the Michigan Aeronautics Commission has recognized individuals and organizations whose innovative contributions have significantly improved facilities, operations or public relations for aviation in Michigan. The commission provides general supervision of all aeronautics within Michigan.

Young Americans workshop set for October 20-22

Charlevoix High School will host the Young Americans for a three-day workshop Sunday-Tuesday, Oct. 20-22.

The Young Americans is a nonprofit professional performing arts company based outside of Los Angeles, Calif. One of the largest music advocacy organizations in the world, their performers/teachers audition from all over the world to become a Young American.

This year 45 cast members were selected to tour the Midwest region of the United States and Canada, among them is 2013 Charlevoix High School graduate, Alaska Dhaseleer, who is attending the Young Americans College in California.

The workshop is designed for students in grades three-12. The cast of 45 staff, singers, and dancers from the Young Americans will present a three-day workshop filled with music, dance, and fun to help fundraise for the performing arts programs at Charlevoix High School.

Students will take classes in singing, dancing and performing plus learn an hour-long show by the end of the second day. The brand new show will feature music from Broadway musicals, One Direction, Phillip Phillips, FUN, Disney and more.

Turn Up the Music is a campaign traveling the nation to help support performing arts programs. Those who participate in this workshop, will be helping to fund arts programs in the community.

The workshop promises to promote self-confidence and teamwork through the use of music. It is aimed at providing an experience that brings every student enjoyment and benefit.

The first day of the workshop is filled with classes, staging and rehearsal exercises. (The students are placed into grade-level groups for ease in teaching and learning at appropriate levels). On the last day, the students perform with The Young Americans on stage in a concert for the community, featuring the students and their personalities, talents and newly discovered abilities.

Tickets for the performance on Tuesday, Oct. 22, will be sold starting at 5:30 p.m. The show will run from 6-8 p.m. Ticket prices are $10 for adults and $8 for students.

To register for the workshop by Friday, Oct. 18, pick up a registration form from the Charlevoix Elementary School office or Charlevoix Middle/High School office or go online to www.youngamericans.org/turnupthemusic. There is no additional fee for online registration. Any family who registers two or more family members together will receive $10 off per registrant. The cost of the workshop is $59 per student. Partial scholarships are available.

OBITUARIES

Nicole Lynn Gibson, 14

Nicole Lynn Gibson, 14, of Charlevoix, died unexpectedly at her home in Charlevoix, Sept. 12, 2013.

Born in Charlevoix, Jan. 12, 1999, she will be remembered by the many people she came in contact with in her short life; and for her resiliency and selfless ways. Nicole was perceptive of the needs of others and quick to offer a listening ear and comfort. The staff and students of Orion school will miss her smile, hugs, and the stories she shared. She was the school champion of Bananagrams; taking on all challengers.

Nicole was a state finalist in the Sunburst Pageant in May 2012. She enjoyed modeling, the glamor of pageants, and looked forward to her next photo shoot.

Nicole was an articulate and reflective writer and was wise beyond her years. She gave this advice in one of her last school journal writings. 'So remember, the things you say, write, text, or post can hurt others and you can't take it back. So stop being a bully and make a difference. You will be surprised how the world can change in a short time.' Nicole changed our world in her short time and she will be missed.

Nicole is survived by her father, David Gibson; mother, Renee (Potter) Gibson; step-mother, Heather Gibson; sisters, Brittiny Gibson, Ashley Sliwinski, Morgan and Samantha Joseph; niece, Arianna LeClair; grandfather, Ron Potter; great-grandmother, Anne Racignol; aunts, Pam Korth, Lori Kupsi; family friend and "other mother," Jessica Moore; and her boyfriend, Colton Meeker, whom she dearly loved. Nicole was preceded in death by her grandmother, Donna Gibson.

Funeral was at 1 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 19, at First Baptist Church, Charlevoix, with the Rev. Ginger Stevens officiating. Visitation was from 6-8 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 18, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Contributions may be made to the David Gibson family.

Please sign Nicole's guestbook at www.winchesterfuneralhome.com.

Kimberly M. Mitchell, 51

Kimberly Mae Mitchell Revoir, 51, of Cape Coral, Fla., and formerly of Topinabee, passed away on Sept. 13, 2013, at her home. No memorial services are scheduled at this time.

She was born on Aug. 13, 1962, in Alhambra, Calif., to Dick and June Mitchell.

She grew up in Charlevoix, graduating from Charlevoix High School in 1980. After attending Central Michigan University, she worked as a legal secretary.

She married Greg Revoir in 1984 in Charlevoix. He preceded her in death.

Kim moved to Topinabee and worked at Christopher's Restaurant where she met Jack Barnhill. They traveled between Michigan and Florida, eventually settling in Florida where they split time between Tallahassee and Cape Coral.

Kim could strike up a conversation with anyone. Despite valiantly battling an illness for nearly 30 years, she loved to talk and laugh with people. She became a kid again every year at Christmas. She loved and was fascinated by all living creatures including a salamander she named George and her dogs Shelby and Murphy. She enjoyed cross-stitching, reading, computer games and wrote beautiful poetry.

She is survived by her parents Dick and June Mitchell; partner and loving companion Jack Barnhill; sisters Tamyra (Randy Wells) Mitchell, Chris (Larry) Nunemaker, Jackie Mitchell; auntie Vi (Bill) Sloan, uncle Bub (Kathy) Mitchell; longtime good friend Bill Marlow.

She was preceded in death by her grandparents.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Cheboygan County Humane Society or animal shelter of choice.

Dorothy Mackie, 79

God saw she was getting tired. A cure was not to be. So, He put His arms around her and whispered. "Come with Me." With tearful eyes we watched her suffer, and saw her fade away. Although we loved her dearly, we could not make her stay. A golden heart stopped beating, hard working hands to rest. God broke our hearts to prove to us, He only takes the best.

In loving memory of Dorothy Mackie, who passed on Sept. 5, 2013, in Castle Rock, Colo., with family by her side in peace and comfort.

Dorothy was born to the late Millard and Ruth Clawson on Aug. 26, 1934, in Jeffers, Minn. She married Richard Mackie on Feb. 26, 1956, in Spirit Lake, Iowa. They moved to Las Vegas, Nevada in 1962 where they lived for approximately 40 years before relocating to Charlevoix. They lived in Charlevoix for 11 years before relocating to Colorado Springs, Colo., then to Castle Rock, Colo.

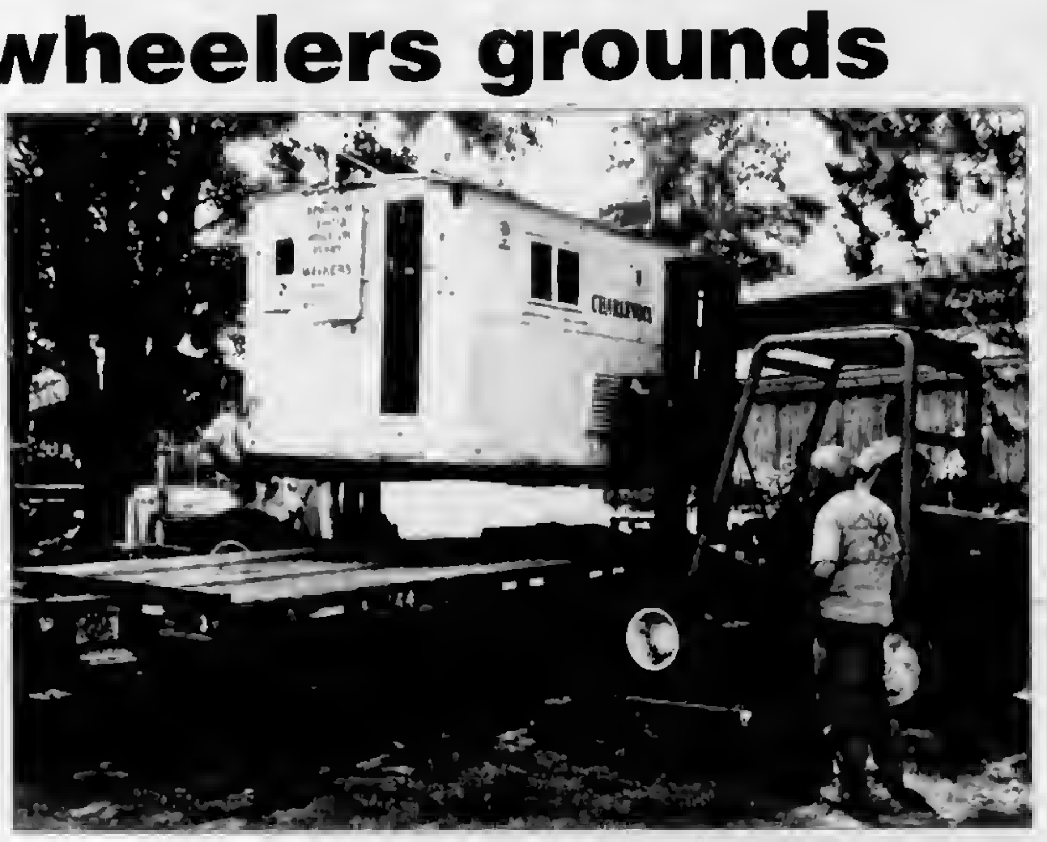
Dorothy is survived by her loving husband of 57 years, Richard Mackie; her three daughters, Julie (Steve) Boyd, Lisa (Dwight) McCormack, and Kari (Sean) Davis; grandchildren, Taylor, Joshua, Alyssa, Erica, Shelby, Leah and Colin; and great-grandson Luca Mazzetti. Dorothy is also survived by her three siblings, Diana, Deidra and Greg, and many dear friends.

Her love and compassion for family and friends will be cherished forever.

A memorial service will take place at 3 p.m. on Friday, Sept. 27, 2013, at Bethany Lutheran Church, 11906 U.S. 31 North, with desserts and coffee to follow.

Ferry cab finds new home on Flywheelers grounds

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review



MORGAN SHERBURNE/NEWS-REVIEW

Members of the Northern Michigan Antique Flywheelers lift the cab of the Ironton Ferry off the trailer of a Charlevoix County Road Commission truck.

WALLOON LAKE — For nearly a century, the cab on the Ironton Ferry braved wind, waves and rain to shield its operator from the weather.

Now, the cab will reside at the Northern Michigan Antique Flywheelers grounds, thanks to the donation by the Charlevoix County Transit Authority. The authority, which oversaw the overhaul of the Ironton Ferry, includes Charlevoix County Commissioner Rich Gillespie and Norwood Township Supervisor Frank Hamilton.

"I think this is a fitting place for this to end up," said Gillespie.

The Flywheelers already have the original motor that powered the ferry across Ironton Narrows portion of Lake Charlevoix's South Arm. The ferry — and the original motor — was installed in 1925, according to Hamilton. The cab came sometime thereafter, but the ferry's operators went for years with no protection at all aboard the ferry. The next motor was installed in 1978, and finally, the newest motor installed this year, 2013.

The cab of the ferry was removed because it was placed in the middle of the ferry. Larger vehicles, such as ambulances, had a difficult time maneuvering around the cab. Now, the new cab is placed on the side of the ferry.

"There's a lot of miles on that buggy," said Dick Lemon, maintenance for the Flywheelers.

Tom Webb, Charlevoix County Road Commission equipment operator, transported the cab to the Flywheelers site located along U.S. 131 south of Walloon Lake and north of Boyne Falls. He estimated that the ferry makes about 50 trips a day across the quarter mile arm during busy months.

The Flywheelers club knew it was getting the cab for about a year.

"And we've been excited about it ever since," said club president Jim Mort.

The club plans to set the cab up as a display and refurbish its exterior and interior in a nautical theme, said vice president Keith Carson.

"Now all we need is water," joked member Jackie Carson.

Year's last Adopt-A-Highway pickup begins Saturday

The last Adopt-A-Highway pickup of the year begins Saturday, Sept. 21, and runs through Sept. 29. Volunteers in the Michigan Department of Transportation program have been picking up litter along state highways since 1990.

There are three scheduled Adopt-A-Highway pickups every year: one each in the spring, summer and fall. In 2012, Adopt-A-Highway volunteer groups reported collecting about 65,000 bags of trash, a cost benefit to the state of $5.6 million.

Motorists should keep an eye out for Adopt-A-Highway crews clad in high-visibility, yellow-green safety vests. The state provides the vests and trash bags for free, and arranges to haul away the trash.

Approximately 3,000 volunteer groups are in Michigan's Adopt-A-Highway program, covering about 7,200 miles of state highway. Volunteers include members of various civic groups, businesses and families. Crew members have to be at least 12 years old, and each group must number at least three people.

Sections of highway are still available for adoption. Groups are asked to adopt a highway section for at least two years, with the group's name posted on signs along the adopted highway. There is no cost to participate. Interested groups should check the MDOT Web page at www.michigan.gov/adoptahighway for more information.

SPECIAL EVENTS

Huff & Puff Bike Ride and Dinner Cruise — On Saturday, Sept. 21, riders of all levels, ages and style are invited to participate in the fourth annual Huff & Puff Bike Ride. Participants will meet at Revolution Bike, 100 Mason St., at 3 p.m. and ride at their own pace down the Little Traverse Wheelway to Petoskey. The ride ends at the docks in Petoskey where the The Keweenaw Star awaits fully equipped with food, cash bar and live DJ. Participants will then cruise back to Charlevoix where they will arrive just in time for the sunset over Lake Michigan. Tickets are available for $60 at Revolution Bike. Space is limited to the first 60 registrants. For details or to purchase tickets, contact Revolution Bike at (231) 237-0900 or at bicycles@yahoo.com.

Trail ride fundraiser — The Front Porch Ministries in Ellsworth will host a Chuck Wagon Trail Ride fundraiser on Saturday, Sept. 21, at the Timber Ridge Ranch in Ellsworth. Space is limited to 50 riders. The cost is $55. Registration includes Louise's cinnamon rolls in the morning, chuck wagon lunch by the lake provided by the Front Porch, a prize drawing, and a T-shirt. The trail ride will be about four hours including a stop for lunch. All money raised through the event will benefit the Front Porch Ministries, a donation only restaurant in Ellsworth. For more information or a registration form, contact Nancy Ferguson at (231) 547-2285, or visit www.frontporchellsworth.org.

Young Americans workshop — The Charlevoix High School Performing Arts Program will host a three-day workshop for students in grades three-12 with the youth performance group the Young Americans on Sunday-Tuesday, Oct. 20-22. The Cost of participation is $59 per student. Families who register more than one student will recieve a $10 per student discount. During the workshop students will learn singing, dancing and performance, and the workshop will culminate with a show for the community on Tuesday, Oct. 22. Tickets for the show are $10 for adults and $8 for students and will be sold at the door. Registration forms may be picked up at Charlevoix school offices or parents can register their children online at www.youngamericans.org/turnupthemusic. For more information, call or email Jodi Thompson at (231) 547-8124 or jthompso@rayder.net.

JAMIE BAUMANN/NEWS-REVIEW

Former Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education President John McLean (middle) is honored by the Charlevoix Education Aasociation for his years of energy, commitment and service. Congratulating McLean are teachers Mary Beth McCray (left) and Cathy Silberhorn.

COUNTS

said. "We had the highest test scores we've seen, yet as an overall district, they rated us red. It appears that Beaver Island administered the wrong tests, which threw out all their scores, so the district didn't meet the 95 percent of students who needed to be tested standard, and this affected our rating."

Gendron will look into the issue more closely, because it is the second year in a row that the district has "gotten a black mark" from Beaver Island.

[illegible]linger passed out information to the board about the Michigan Merit/ACT Exam results.

"Last year, for the first time, we were able to offer all the juniors a trimester ACT prep course. Students rotated among three different teachers for 17 days each to be prepared for the testing. It paid off in the results," she said.

Charlevoix juniors scored higher than they ever had in each area — reading, writing, math, science and social studies. The scores all exceeded state averages and of districts in the Char-Em ISD. Charlevoix scored highest in reading, math and science, and second to Petoskey in social studies, and to Harbor Springs in writing.

The Charlevoix Education Association recognized former board president, John McLean for his service as a board member and school board president.

Several parents, students and former students spoke to support the rehiring of alpine ski team coach Sue Miller for the 2013-2014 school year. Miller was asked to resign last March by former athletic director Brian Certa after receiving an unfavorable evaluation. Miller did not resign, and the position for 2013-2014 is currently being advertised. The team combines students in middle school and high school from East Jordan and Charlevoix. Some of those who supported Miller were from East Jordan. All who spoke emphasized Miller's 20 years of dedicated coaching, her compassion and willingness to help students learn from where their ability is, as well as the family atmosphere she created with the team.

Speakers included parents, Brian Lindfors, Edward Engstrom, Mary Sue Cardwell, John Taylor, as well as six current or former team members. Johnathan Lindfors, team captain, summed it up. "There is no need to change coaches," he said.

Board members thanked all for their comments and said they would consider them, when a recommendation comes before the board on the ski coach position.

ALERT

platforms available today, but then discovered that officials with the Charlevoix-Chehoygan-Emmet Office of Emergency Management were one step ahead.

After many months of testing and tweaking, the office's director Greg Williams announced this week that local officials are ready to roll out a service through a system called Be Alert.

Williams said the office of emergency management recognized a need to disseminate emergency notifications to the public that would work together with the traditional Emergency Alert System technology currently in use today.

"For many years we have relied on EAS messages delivered by our local television and radio broadcasters, and EAS continues to be a very effective method of local alert notification. However, with the technology available today we have many more opportunities to alert the public including email, cell, and text devices. We needed a way to send messages across those platforms as well," Williams said in a news release on the new system issued Wednesday.

The Office of Emergency Management successfully applied for a $70,000 grant from the Department of Homeland Security to purchase the Smart Message notification system from Federal Signal. The counties of Charlevoix, Chehoygan and Emmet then partnered together to fund the sustainment and operation of the system as a free public service for the tri-county region. There will be no cost to local units of government, residents or businesses to participate in the citizen notification system. Williams said.

This notification system, will allow officials to send an immediate emergency message to residents or businesses in the area. The geographic area notified can be as large as all three counties or focus on a specific neighborhood if necessary.

Williams explained that the message will generally originate from local police, fire, municipal authority, or county emergency operations center. Once a local first responder agency (police, fire, EMS) have a message they want to send, they will coordinate the message with emergency management officials and the system is activated.

Williams told the Courier earlier this week that residents shouldn't be concerned that signing up for the service will result in them being bombarded by messages at all hours of the day or night.

He said messages will be sent out only if there is some important action residents need to take.

"Messages will be emergent, action oriented messages that require your immediate attention. Situations like evacuations, 'shelter-in-place' recommendations, neighborhood lockdowns, and boil water advisories are all examples of the types of messages you might receive from the Be Alert emergency notification system," Williams said in the release.

Residents can choose to be contacted by text message, email, or to receive a telephone call message to either a cell phone or landline telephone — or any combination of the methods.

Once a resident logs In and a profile is established, you specify what devices you want alerted and how.

Resident can also set the system to send severe thunderstorm watch/warning or tornado watch/warning alerts as well. Residents can modify or cancel your settings, by simply logging in and make the appropriate changes.

Williams said all information you supply is confidential and never shared outside of this notification system.

But the system only works if people sign up for it, and to that end Williams, and Doan, and likely soon other municipal officials will be encouraging residents to sign up by visiting https://bealert.smartmsg.com and following the prompts at the site.

Williams said for people who do not have a computer or Internet access but would still like to sign up for the service for their landline telephone, can choose a couple of options to sign up. The first, and likely easiest option, is for a person to find a friend or family member (or perhaps a library or senior center could help) to sign him or her up. Alternately, the person can call a special Be Alert telephone number at (231) 622-4496, where he or she can leave a message with his or her contact information. Officials will then send out an enrollment form.

Rayders can't hang on for upset over Vikings

David hit Goliath, but it wasn't quite enough to knock him out.

Outmatched in physical size and roster numbers, the Charlevoix Rayder varsity football team came painfully close to upsetting Lake Michigan Conference powerhouse Grayling on the Vikings' home turf Friday, Sept. 13.

The Rayders let an early 16 point lead slip from their hold as they fell to Lake Michigan Conference foe Grayling 30-26 in their road conference opener.

The Rayders move to 1-2 overall on the year, 0-1 in league play.

"What we've been preaching and what we've been trying to do is make this thing into a total program," Charlevoix coach Ron Bindi said.

"We have weekly goals each week and we're just going to come out and try to block a little better and tackle a little better. It's the little things that we need to do to win. We're seeing progress."

Sam Hovie led the Rayders with 98 yards and two scores on 24 carries.

Charlevoix held the lead 7-6 at the end of the first quarter and again at the half 14-10 as Grayling connected on a field goal as time expired.

The Rayders scored 12 points in the third quarter to go up 26-10, but 20 unanswered points from the Vikings would give the game its 30-26 final.

A fourth quarter to forget for the Rayders, a missed fumble recovery and missed interception from the Rayders would keep a 95 yard game winning drive alive for the Vikings.

Will Telgenhof and Nate Moon each had two receptions for the Rayders, combining for 48 yards in the game. Luke Klinger added 15 carries for 22 yards and a score.

Despite the loss, Bindi said the coaching staff was proud of the Rayders for their performance in the face of such a daunting opponent.

"We weren't given a chance in heck competing with these guys," Bindi said.

He said the style of the Vikings offense the depth of their roster and a little intensity let-down likely figured largely into the loss.

"They just kept coming and coming and coming at us. I think they just wore us down there a little bit at the end," Bindi said. "They ran 60-some plays, 44 were passing plays. They went no-huddle and they still had fresh legs at end of the game. They could two-platoon (their players). We're not fortunate enough to have that capability."

Bindi said the team learned a lot of valuable lessons from the game.

"I think they finally figured out what it takes to be a winner," Bindi said. "The second thing was, when we walked into the locker room after game, I could see they were hurting. That's telling me a lot. It was a big deal to them."

Another lesson Bindi had for his team after their performance against mighty Grayling was this: "You aren't going to sneak up on anybody anymore."

Bindi said he told the team, "Everybody now is going to take you seriously now. You're going to have to be ready for that.

That "everybody" will next include conference foe Elk Rapids on Friday, Sept. 20.

"They are fast," Bindi said. "It doesn't get any easier this week."

The Elks, who fell to Traverse City St. Francis last week 36-20 are 2-1 overall after defeating Mancelona 35-0 and Kingsley 40-0.

"They run the option and sweep," Bindi said. "We want to get to number 24 and number 7, their two big running backs. We've got to contain them and make them run east and and west."

With 20 or 21 players on the roster, the Elks won't have as big of a depth advantage over the Rayders' 16 as Grayling did.

"I've been impressed with all of them (the players). They are trying to buy in to what we are trying to do. I'm impressed by desire to win. The kids have played well and played hard. There are still some mistakes to fix up, they just have to put (the game) away."

JV FOOTBALL

Rayder JV controls Grayling offense for 23-8 win

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

The Charlevoix Rayder junior varsity football team was able to control Grayling's tricky spread offense through a solid running attack and strong defense to post a 28-8 victory over their conference foe at Kipke Field on Thursday, Sept. 12.

The Rayders got on the board first with 5:22 remaining in the first quarter when quarterback Forrest Noirot found Ben Boss for a five-yard touchdown pass. Noirot ran the ball in for the two-point conversion to put the Rayders up 8-0.

Early in the second quarter Grayling answered with a touchdown on a 17 yard run. A successful two-point conversion knotted the score at 8 each.

The Rayders re-took the lead with 4:07 left in the half when Boss rumbled into the endzone on a two-yard run. Noirot hit Boss with a pass for the two-point conversion, putting the Rayders up 16-8 at the half.

The Rayders were able to maintain their lead through the third quarter and got some insurance points with 6:54 remaining in the fourth when Turner Havens scored on a 15-yard touchdown run. Hunter Cox's point-after attempt was good, putting the Rayders up 23-8.

Justin Atkins led the Rayders' ground attack racking up 68 yards on nine carries. Noirot had 35 yards on 15 carries, Havens had 33 yards on five carries while Boss had 29 yards on nine carries and Malcom Williams had 29 yards on five carries.

In the passing department Noirot was five for nine for 30 yards. Boss had three receptions for 15 yards while Brad Klinger caught two passes for 15 yards.

Camden Alden led the Rayders on defense with seven tackles and two interceptions while Malcom Williams had five tackles. Havens also recovered a fumble and Jordan Adkins had a sack.

"This was by far our most consistent game," Charlevoix JV coach Todd Klinger said. "We cut down on mistakes and executed well on offense. We were able to control the game with our running game which was important because with Grayling's spread offense that can be difficult for a team to play against."

Klinger also lauded the play of the offensive line, especially Alex Kleiber and Jake Seger, who he said "did a much better job staying on blocks."

"Our offense was boosted by tough running from Justin Adkins and Jared McLean, both players were carrying Grayling defenders. Ben Boss had a nice all-around game on offense and defense," Klinger said.

He added: "Defensively, we did a good playing against Grayling's spread offense. It is not something that we are used to. Camden Alden had a great game on defense with two interceptions at key points in the game. One was inside our 5 yard line."

The Rayder JV squad was slated to take on Elk Rapids in Elk Rapids at 6 p.m. on Thursday, Sept. 19.

VARSITY VOLLEYBALL

Rayders dominant in conference play

The 2013 volleyball season is still young, but it hasn't taken long for the Charlevoix Rayder varsity volleyball team to find its stride as it has won two conference matches and made a good showing in a weekend tournament over the past week.

The Rayders remained undefeated in the Lake Michigan Conference with a sweep over Elk Rapids at home on Tuesday.

The Rayders won the first match of the night 25-22, to lead into wins of 25-19 and 25-17 as they moved to 3-0 in league play.

"We all contributed with solid net play, serving, and blocking," Charlevoix coach Audra Randall. "Our defense continues to improve, but consistency is still our key to longevity and success."

Olivia Storm led the Rayders with 15 assists, while going 20 of 21 in serves. Madeline Boss brought in 22 kills and four digs. Kelsey Pischner and Emily Zabowa each had three kills.

Both Kylie Scholten and Jennaca Holecheck served at 100 percent.

On Saturday, Sept. 14, Charlevoix finished with a 2-1-1 record at the Petoskey Invitational Tournament and ended up taking first place in the bronze pool.

In the preliminary pool, Charlevoix opened with a 26-24, 25-17 loss to Cheboygan, then split with conference rival (and eventual tournament runner-up) Boyne City, 8-25, 25-18. The Rayders then defeated Sault Ste. Marie, 26-24, 25-15; and defeated Harbor Springs, 25-5, 25-20.

"We left feeling like we made some good strides in our lineup and playing strategies," Charlevoix coach Audra Randall said. "We have some young players on our team which we expect some big things from. As we continue to be tested by strong teams we find sections of good momentum and positive play and then struggle at other points."

For the Rayders, Madeline Boss had 32 kills, 10 aces, 18 digs and five blocks, while Gloria Greene added 24 assists, seven aces and nine digs. Olivia Storm had 18 assists, four aces and 10 digs, while Alexis Tribfelner had seven aces and 20 digs and Jenneca Holecheck added 21 digs and three aces.

Kelsey Pischner had 10 kills.

"Our hitters Madi Carey, Hannah Zipp, Emily Zabowa and Kylie Scholten all continue to build their confidence and make positive contributions more stable the last outing each time," Randall added.

On Thursday, Sept. 12, it took a couple sets, but in the end Charlevoix looked like their dominant selves in their second Lake Michigan Conference meet of the season on Thursday.

Madeline Boss was a key contributor for the Rayder volleyball team as Charlevoix beat East Jordan in three sets. Boss led the Rayders with 18 kills, while going 10-for-10 on serves.

Charlevoix won the first set in a close 25-22 battle after an early 17-all tie. The Rayders would then take the next two sets 25-20 and 25-13.

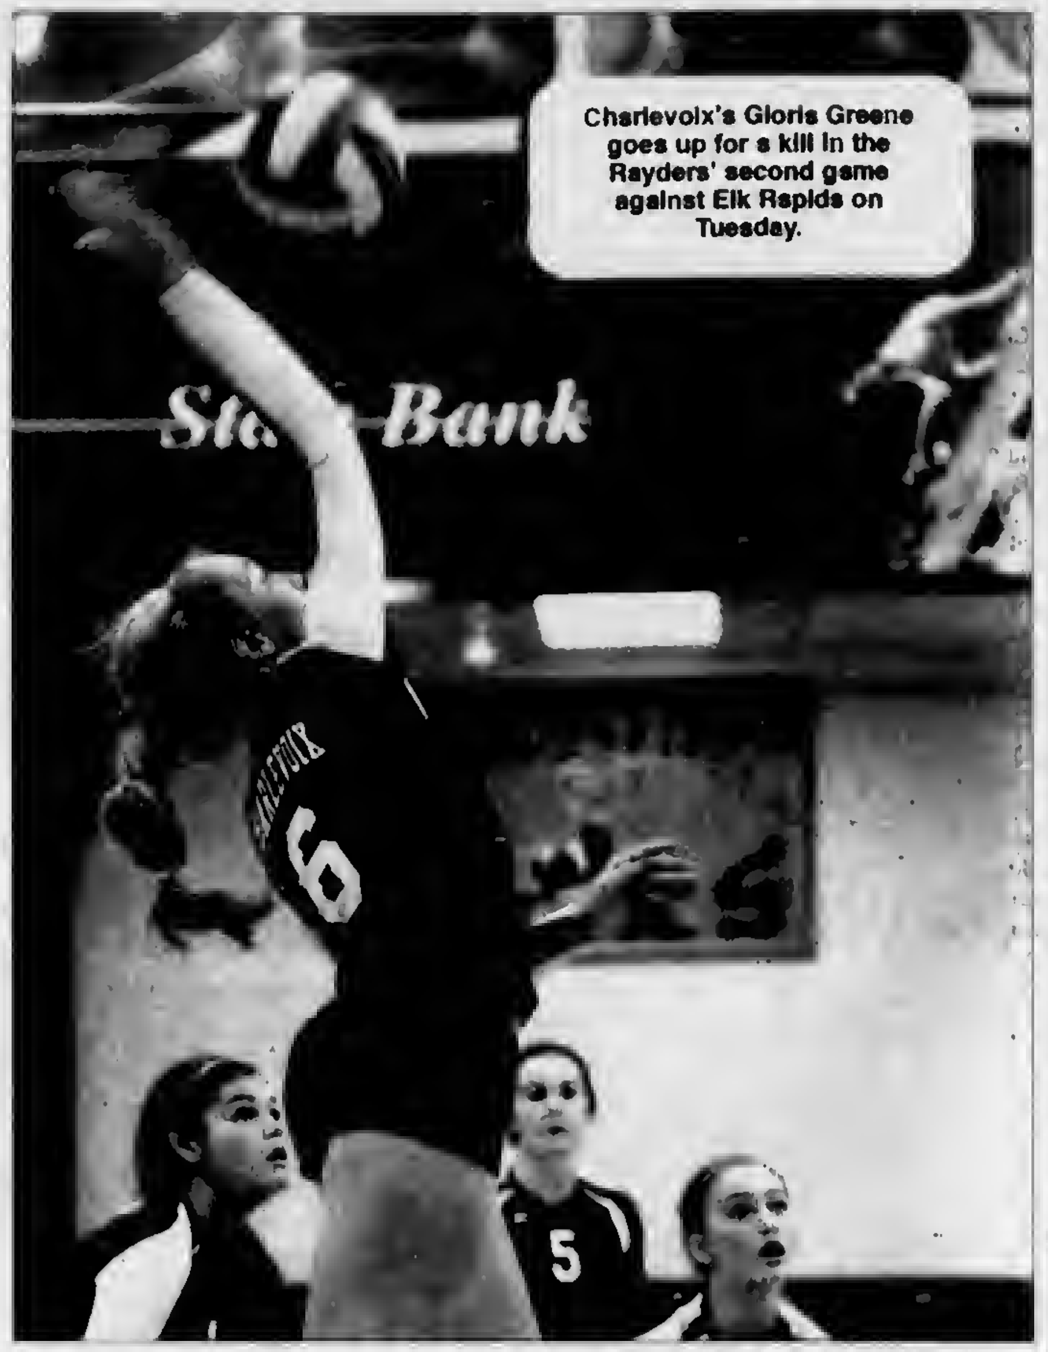
"The second game was successful with great serving by Alexis Tribfelner and more assertive net play by our hitters winning 25-20," Charlevoix coach Audra Randall said.

"The third game the girls were finally playing their game and everyone was getting involved with solid defensive work winning the match 25-13."

Besides Boss for Charlevoix, Olivia Storm finished with 16 assists and 13-of-15 serving, Gloria Greene finished with 15 assists and 100 percent serving with one ace.

Emily Zobawa had four kills, Madi Carey and Jennaca Holecheck each had three kills, and Hannah Zipp and Kylie Scholten had two kills.

Charlevoix will host the Charlevoix Volleyball Invite on Saturday, Sept. 21, with matches beginning at 10 a.m. in the Charlevoix High School gym.



Charlevoix's Gloria Greene goes up for a kill in the Rayders' second game against Elk Rapids on Tuesday.

The veterinarian: your pet's best friend

Medical check-ups for pets?

A great deal of thought is required before making the decision to purchase a pet. Even though having a pet can be a great antidote to loneliness, you should never shop for one in the same way you shop for a pair of shoes. You have to be ready to invest time, care, and affection to build a relationship with a little animal friend. Weigh the pros and cons carefully when the time comes to choose the creature who will share your living space.

The first question to ask yourself is what you prefer — fur, feathers, or scales. Find out about the species, race, and temperament of the animal in question and ensure that you are compatible. Cats, dogs, birds, hamsters, reptiles, and fish have very different physical and emotional needs. Choosing an animal simply to show off will likely backfire, leaving you with a pet you can't really love or take care of properly.

When you're ready to welcome your chosen pet into your home, remember that new surroundings can be a source of stress for the animal. Expect a few bumps; you will both need time to adapt.

As a responsible owner, you will want to have the health of your pet checked by a veterinarian who is qualified to examine your animal, diagnose any possible health problems, carry out surgery, repair fractures, administer vaccines, treat and dress injuries, or give advice on animal care. These professionals, who usually work in private clinics, mainly treat dogs and cats but are often willing to look at parrots, ferrets, rabbits, Vietnamese pigs, or other types of animals. Some vets specialize in the use of the latest technologies, including laser, ultrasound, and medical imaging.

Scheduling regular check-ups with the veterinarian is the surest way to guarantee a long and healthy life for your new pet.

Take your pets to the vet on a regular basis, this will help them have longer, healthier lives.

Teams notch two more wins

Both Charlevoix Pop Warner football teams were in action on Saturday, Sept. 14, and both came away with a victory.

The Charlevoix Rayder Pee Wee division team defeated Bellaire 24-0 in a game that saw the young Rayders set the tone of the game offensively with a 56-yard touchdown run by Max Ostrum on the first play from scrimmage. From there, quarterback Jacob Snyder ran for two touchdowns, while Caleb Stuck ran for another. Linemen Jack Bemis and Zach Nickel were among a host of Rayders clearing the way.

Defensively, the Rayders had another strong performance, starting with linemen Dmitri Bell and Bemis. Linebackers Will Glass and Snyder played well and the secondary, led by Isaac Moran, Stuck and Ostrum, tackled well on the back end, the team's coaches noted.

The Charlevoix Peewees will be hosting The Petoskey Badgers 2:30 p.m. on Saturday, at Kipke Field in a battle of unbeatens.

The Charlevoix Rayder Midgets came out victorious as well, beating the Traverse City Titans 14-8 in Central Lake.

Once again, the Rayder defense was stout, led by Ty Fry's two interceptions, one of which led to one of his two touchdowns on offense. Tight end Luke Stuck added a conversion on a pass from Fry. The team's coaches said that the offense was balanced.

Defensively, ends Stuck and Cole Wright played well along with the linebackers.

The Charlevoix Midgets will be hosting Boyne City 1 at 4 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 21, at Kipke field in Charlevoix.

Rayders fall to Elks amid second half struggles

The Charlevoix High School boys' varsity soccer team couldn't continue the momentum from a strong first half into win against a conference rival on their home field Monday.

Elk Rapids scored four unanswered second half goals en route to topping the Rayders, 4-1, in a Lake Michigan Conference match.

Jake Klein led the Elks, 7-0 overall, 4-0 league, with a goal and two assists, while Garrett Koss, Marty Raymond and Andy Atkinson all had a goal apiece.

For Charlevoix, 5-3 overall, 3-2 league, Nick Snabes scored the lone goal in the opening half on a penalty kick.

The Rayders led 1-0 at halftime.

"We played a great game and looked good in the first half," Charlevoix coach Jon Boss said. "I thought we moved the ball around well, possessed the ball well and had a great first half.

"In the second half though we started out kind of flat," Boss said. "We were not as aggressive and once they scored that first goal, our heads dropped and after they scored a second goal it was hard for our guys to recover mentally and get back in the game."

Boss added the Elks, a team which to the Division III state semifinals last season, were quite skilled.

"Overall they have a very solid team with very little weak spots," Boss said. "I was very happy with the overall score of the game. We played about 60 percent of the game the way we liked to play, the other 40 percent there was room for improvement.

"I felt we were able to stay right there with them."

Boss lauded the efforts of Snabes, along with defenders Justin Pearl and Kevin Pearl.

"The majority of the team played well, it just got away from us at the end," Boss said. "We had nice play from a lot of the guys."

JJ Wachler was in goal for the Rayders, while Jackson Waugh earned the win in goal for the Elks.

Also, the Rayders defeated Harbor Light Christian, 2-0, in a non-league match played Friday, Sept. 13. Snabes scored both goals for the Rayders, while Brendan Britt and Davis LaBelle had the assists. Wachler earned the shutout in goal.

Charlevoix was set to travel to East Jordan on Thursday, Sept. 19, and then will host to Suttons Bay in a non-league match at 10 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 21.

On the road to Main Street

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier editor

The Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority is ready to give the Michigan Main Street Program a whirl; all they need now is the blessing of the city council.

By a unanimous vote at its regular monthly meeting Monday, the authority's board gave the green light to apply for the downtown revitalization program that has seen many successes throughout the state.

If the city council passes a resolution supporting the application at its next meeting on Monday, Oct. 7, the city will be applying for — and almost certainly will be accepted into — designation as a Michigan Main Street Program "associate level" community.

Think of it as Main Street basic training.

The program will include several training sessions for community leaders — both official and volunteer — during which they will learn about the Main Street Program, and how to implement its main principles.

Technical assistance and other services are provided by the program to train staff members and volunteers in the aspects of design, economic restructuring, promotion and organization. Participation in the program has benefited communities by: creating new jobs, attracting new businesses, enhancing a positive community image, increasing investment in the downtown, preserving historic resources, protecting and strengthening the existing tax base and improving visual appeal and economic viability. So far, the program has seen success in many cities throughout the state. Perhaps the best known Northern Michigan example is Boyne City, which just celebrated its 10 year anniversary of the program's beginning in that community. Other Michigan cities in which the program has seen success include Grand Haven, Manistee, Calumet and Lansing.

The associate level of the program comes at no cost to the city outside of travel costs for those who attend the training.

Some on the board expressed some concern about the amount of volunteer support the program requires. But, board members Dan Barron and Fred DiMartino said the program could be a catalyst for positive results and send a message to the community that city officials are asking them to get involved in those efforts.

Pearson also noted that trying out the program comes with little or no risk.

"If we decide it's not right for us, we can just stop," Pearson said. "If we don't do it you're losing out on all the free resources that they offer and possibly

City looking at expanding marina

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

The Charlevoix Municipal Marina could get bigger in coming years if an idea floated to the city council gains any steam.

At its regular semi-monthly meeting Monday, Sept. 16 the Charlevoix City Council gave its approval by consensus for city staff to continue looking into the possibility of adding more large boat slips to the north end of the city's marina in Round Lake.

City manager Rob Straebel said city officials have been kicking around the idea for many months as a way to reach some untapped revenue based on a high demand in recent summers for large boat slips — especially those in the 70-80 foot range.

Straebel said there aren't many transient slips in that range available on the Great Lakes.

Currently the marina has just three 80-foot slips, two 65-foot slips, five 50-foot slips and three 45-foot slips. The rest of the marina's current 70 slips range in size from 28 feet to 44 feet. Also, the end of Dock A can accommodate a 115-foot vessel, while the end of Dock B can accommodate a 96-foot vessel.

Originally city staff was looking at the possibility of adding an entirely new dock to the north of the existing Dock A. However, Straebel reported, discussions with representatives from Beaver Island Boat Company and Keweenaw Excursions have indicated that such a dock would interfere significantly with their operations.

So the discussion for expansion turned to investigating adding on to the ends of the existing Dock A and Dock B.

The tentative plan options city officials have been working on with United Design Associates is: for Dock A, add six 50-foot slips and seven 80-foot slips (with two existing 65-foot slips becoming 80-foot slips.) For Dock B, add 12 44-foot slips. The two dock projects could be done individually or at the same time to realize some cost savings, design firm representatives said.

Straebel told the council that the biggest hurdle facing the city at this point is the Michigan Waterways Commission. He said because the existing docks were built with commission grant money, the city could need to get permission from the commission to build the dock extensions and then work out an agreement on how the dockage fees would be split up.

Once that is worked out the city would have to figure out how to pay for the expansion.

Straebel said tentative cost estimates put the cost range for the Dock A expansion at somewhere between $300,000 and $400,000 and the Dock B work somewhere in the $200,000-$250,000 range. He said some of the cost may be influenced by the amount of electrical upgrades that are needed to accommodate the extra load from the additional boats.

Doing some quick math, mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson said if the slips — especially the large ones — were rented out for all or most of the summer, the project could pay for itself in a matter of a few years.

Straebel said that the city's return on

Organizers seek more petunia input

Decision expected soon on basket display option

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

After months of meetings, research, head-scratching, figuring, testing and asking around town, the organization that oversees Charlevoix's trademark annual petunia display will soon have to decide if it will make a major change in the display next year.

But before they do, Keep Charlevoix Beautiful officials are asking one more time for feedback from the community on a proposal to move the annual petunia display from curbside flowerbeds to hanging baskets.

To that end, the organization's board has created on online survey through the Internet survey site Survey Monkey.

Board president Aaron Wilkin said the board is asking community members to log on to this address: www.surveymonkey.com/s/XMY-QB29 sometime in the next week or two to weigh in on the proposed changes.

Wilkin said sometime in the next month or so the board will have to decide which route it will pursue next spring. He said that's because the order for the petunias must be placed now, but it's especially true if the organization chooses the hanging basket option. The basket option will require officials to finalize designs for the basket hanging poles and have them ready to go in time for the usual late-May installation.

The basket plan, if ultimately implemented, calls for 300 baskets to be spaced about every 50 feet along the route, alternating sides and staggered so that there would be a basket on one side of the road or the other every 25 feet. Of course some adjustments to those distances will have to be made to accommodate streets, driveways, fire hydrants, trees and other structures that could interrupt the pattern.

Under the plan, the posts would be placed in sleeves encased in concrete each spring and then the posts would be removed each fall to prevent damage from winter weather and snow removal operations. The sleeves would be capped to keep debris out during the off-season. In August, organization board members placed six poles with baskets near the intersection of Bridge and Hurlbut streets to give residents an idea of how the display would look.

Keep Charlevoix Beautiful leaders began considering the basket plan earlier this year when it became clear that the Charlevoix County Jail would no longer be able to provide inmates to handle the weeding tasks. Keeping the flower beds weed free is the organization's most daunting task each year.

Wilkin said the move to the baskets would eliminate the weed problem and several other problems the display encounters each year such as flooding in areas where the curb is low, and damage from migrating fertilizer and herbicides applied to nearby lawns.

Those who take the survey will see an information screen before they take the survey that details the organization's rationale for considering the change and other information about what goes into the annual display.

Bishop Hebda named co-adjutor of New Jersey

GAYLORD — Pope Francis has named Bishop Bernard Hebda, of Gaylord, coadjutor archbishop for the archdiocese of Newark, N.J.

As coadjutor, Archbishop Hebda will assist the current Archbishop John Myers in the administration of the archdiocese. He will automatically succeed Myers upon his retirement or death. Myers is set to retire in mid-2016 because of how he handled a sexually abusive priest. The archdiocese said it was unaware the priest subsequently worked with youths, according to the Associated Press.

Hebda

Hebda expressed sadness at having to leave the Diocese of Gaylord in a letter written after being informed of his new appointment.

"Today's news that the Holy Father has named me the coadjutor archbishop of Newark brings with it the sadness of having to leave the Diocese of Gaylord," Hebda wrote. "I have come to consider this local church my home and will find it difficult to leave so many faith-filled parishes, schools and friends. Anything that I know about being a bishop I learned from you — and for that I will be always thankful."

The Rev. Msgr. Francis Murphy, who has served as vicar general said he wasn't shocked by the announcement.

"We have been expecting something like this since he arrived here. He has a lot of obvious talent and we knew that one day he would be called upon to serve the greater church," Murphy said in a statement released by the diocese. "We were happy to have him for as long as we did."

With the new appointment, the Diocese of Gaylord becomes the 11th diocese in the United States to have a vacant see (bishop opening). In the coming days, Murphy will meet with the diocesan College of Consultors, in order to elect a diocesan administrator. This person will serve at the Diocese of Gaylord until the appointment of the fifth Bishop of Gaylord is made by the pope.

Beach rangers wanted

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

MORGAN SHERBURNE/NEWS-REVIEW

Marilyn Graham of Harbor Springs and Mary LaVictor of Bliss look at cans of spray paint. The spray paint is used to mark dead birds along the Lake Michigan shoreline so that they aren't counted twice. The two attended a workshop for those who wish to become beach rangers last week at Birchwood Farms Golf & Country Club north of Harbor Springs.

How many loon carcasses do you think you can carry at a time?

Dan Myers, water resource specialist with Petoskey's Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council, has already figured it out.

"You get a Hefty bag and put two dead loons in it — that's about all you can carry," said Myers. "This can be pretty labor intensive."

Sadly, that's an equation many Northern Michigan beachwalkers have figured out.

About 12 Emmet and Charlevoix County residents gathered last week to train to be "Beach Rangers" for Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council and Emmet County Lakeshore Association. The rangers will gather data for the watershed council this fall, during the most active time for avian botulism deaths.

Some attendees to the workshop, which took place at Birchwood Farms Golf & Country Club north of Harbor Springs, had their own ways of dealing with the birds. One used a long, plastic snow sled. Another wondered if he could get permission to drive an all-terrain vehicle on the beach.

Birds dead from avian botulism typically begin washing ashore during these months: it's an active migration time for loons. Too, algae, called Cladophera, has begun detaching from the lake bottom and washing ashore to rot and produce the botulinum toxin. Then, the bacteria produces the botulism toxin.

Since 2007, Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council has been collecting data on birds that have washed ashore of Lake Michigan in Emmet and Charlevoix counties. Myers said joining forces with the Emmet County Lakeshore Association in 2011 expanded the program.

"Northern Lake Michigan has been a hot spot for avian botulism," Myers told the gathered prospective beach rangers.

The first avian botulism outbreak in the Great Lakes was recorded in 1963, said Myers. One attendee to the meeting pointed out that the '63 outbreak coincided with previous Great Lakes low water levels. Before lakes Michigan and Huron hit a new historic low in January, the previous recorded low occurred in March of 1964.

Researchers think there's a correlation between low levels, invasive species and avian botulism. The invasive quagga and zebra mussels filter Great Lakes water — Myers says each mussel can filter up to a liter of water per day — which allows light to penetrate further. Low water heats up faster along nearshore areas. Both conditions allow the Cladopehra algae to grow well. During the late summer and fall, the algae detaches, rots along beaches and causes anoxic conditions — conditions in which water has little or no oxygen. In these conditions, the botulism bacteria flourishes and produces the botulism toxin.

In June, researchers with the Upper Peninsula's Common Coast Research and Conservation told the News-Review that 1,500 loons alone washed ashore of Northern Lake Michigan in 2012. But only 13 percent of the beach was monitored. The number could have been closer to 3,000, said Damon McCormick, Common Coasts's co-director.

In Charlevoix and Emmet counties, Tip of the Mitt documented more than 950 bird fatalities. More than 420 were loon deaths. Other birds — cormorants, horned grebes, red-necked grebes, common and red-breasted mergansers, white-winged and surf scoters and species of gulls — also washed ashore in 2012.

This season doesn't seem as active, says Myers.

Still, Emmet County Lakeshore Association and Tip of the Mitt are hoping to garner interest in their beach ranger program.

Beach rangers are asked to walk a set section of beach on a weekly basis. If they come across a fresh body — one dead within two days or so — they are asked to collect the body and notify Tip of the Mitt as soon as possible. Though botulism is a culprit, the toxin is not always what kills birds along the coast in the fall. Fresh birds will be sent to Michigan State University's Wildlife Toxicology Laboratory to determine what killed them.

Rangers can also collect decaying bodies and dispose of them in their garbage in order to keep the potential toxin out of the food chain.

Mary LaVictor of Bliss is starting her third year in the beach ranger program. She started as a project of a biology class she was taking at North Central Michigan College.

"It gets me out every week in the fall to walk the beach," she said. "It's cool to see these loons up close, though it's hard under these circumstances."

Each Sunday, she walks about a mile of beach near Sturgeon Bay. She, as well as other beach rangers, record what section of shoreline they survey, what county they are in and what kind of bird they have found. If the bird is banded — such as the dead banded loon that was identified as a loon that lived on Lake Bellaire — monitors are asked to record the band description and identification number.

Myers said he's especially hoping for volunteers from Charlevoix County.

"Much of the shoreline is unmonitored, which limits our ability to study the outbreaks," he said.

Those interested in becoming a beach ranger but couldn't attend the recent meeting can contact Myers at (231) 347-1181 or dan@watershedcouncil.org.

Fall is mushroom time, too

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knulson

Some years ago, I wrote a column on collecting and eating Michigan's wild mushrooms. It is time for an update.

With the coming of fall, mushrooms begin to pop up all over. We are usually aware only of the fruiting structures that are produced annually. For most of our growing season the fungi have lived invisibly underground as microscopic fibers engaged in the decomposition of almost anything plant or animal that falls to the earth and remains moist. The mushrooms emerging in your lawn are much like the apples on a tree, if we imagine that the whole tree is growing out of sight underground.

When people think of mushrooms in Michigan, morels are the first and often the only thought. It is one of the few that most people are willing to pick from the wild and use as food. In general we are likely to be suspicious of wild-gathered mushrooms. While the summer and fall varieties may be even more delicious than morels, most of us have been taught from childhood that they are "toadstools," and are probably poisonous. There is a Latin saying, which translated is "If you awaken in the morning after an evening meal of wild mushrooms, you know they were good ones." Short of being able to identify any mushroom with certainty, that is the only test available. There are no simple rules that can distinguish poisonous mushrooms from the edible and delicious kind. An herbal (a listing of plants and their uses) from the 16th century had this to say: "Fungi ben mussherons. They be cold and moyst in the thyrde degree and that is shewed by theyr violent moisture. There be two maners of them, one maner be deedly and sleeth them that eateth of them, and be called Tode stooles, and the other dooth not." "Tode" in that sentence is not about little hopping things, tod(e) is a German word for death.

It is not necessary to be able to personally distinguish different kinds of mushrooms, if you know a dependable person who can distinguish them. Our weekly Charlevoix Farmers Market has such a person, actually a couple of people, who collect and sell wild mushrooms. When not selling at the market, they can be contacted at www.michiganmushroommarket.com.

Even without professional help, there are a number of illustrated guides that will make mushroom identification much easier. Alexander Smith, a long time member of the faculty at the University of Michigan, produced "The Mushroom Hunter's Field Guide" some years ago. More recently a fine book titled "Mushrooms Demystified" by David Arora provides more information than you may need in your search for mushroom identity. This last one is the finest book on North American mushrooms that I have ever seen. Many shorter and less technical manuals and guides can also be useful. Most have color photographs and enough information to make it safe to eat at least a few of the common wild kinds to be found at this season.

Nutritionally most of our fall mushrooms have enough protein content to recommend them as food. They even have vitamins. Overall they are about as nutritious pound for pound as watermelon or most vegetables. Many of them have remarkably delicate and desirable flavors.

Visit the mushroom booth at any of the local farmers markets, spend some time talking to the purveyors, take home a few ounces of Michigan's wild mushrooms and enjoy.

Even if you choose not to eat any of them, the fall mushrooms can be a source of aesthetic delight. They come in a truly marvelous array of colors, textures, shapes and sizes. David Arora's book lists more than 2,000 kinds, and they are all fascinating, whether eaten or just observed.

Roger Knutson is a professor emeritus of biology from Luther College in Decorah, Iowa, where he taught for 30 years. He holds master's degree and a doctorate from the botany department at Michigan State University.

LOOKING BACK…

Help, restaurant going overboard!

The plight of the Weathervane Inn, which—despite its lamps from Copenhagen and table from a redwood tree—may plop into the channel any day now

At the time Earl Young built the Weathervane Inn beginning in 1953, there had not been a protective wood revetment in front of the old grist mill it replaced (far right) for many years. When the federal government installed cement revetments in the 1930s, it refused to place them along the mill property, claiming it had never been responsible for the protection of commercial property establishments. By 1970, however, after years of erosion, the Weathervane was in obvious danger of sliding into the channel, as stated in this Grand Rapids Press article (above). Earl and the building's owners could not convince the Army Corps of Engineers that the government had been responsible for the entire lengths of both sides of the channel since 1876. The situation was becoming desperate. By the spring of 1971, local photographer Bob Miles had heard of the impending disaster, remembered a glass plate negative he'd been given in 1957 (above), printed it out, gave the image to the men, and said "Try this." They sent it to the Detroit office of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. The photo proved that the government had indeed installed protective revetments along the entire channel length, and was obligated to continue that protection. Within weeks work began. Rock and steel sheeting revetments were completed by November of 1971, and the Weathervane was saved.

This image is one of 850 in the Charlevoix Historical Society's most recent DVD titled "Charlevoix, Michigan — A Pictorial Journey through 16 Decades." Editor's note

Dear readers:

It is with mixed emotions that I report to you that this will be my last edition as editor of the Charlevoix Courier.

After three and a half years serving as your community newspaper's editor, effective Monday, Sept. 30, I will be returning to my previous position as a reporter for the Courier's sister publication the Petoskey News-Review.

I won't be disappearing completely from town as my new assignment will have me still covering some Charlevoix matters, it will just be a little longer commute to city hall than the 90-or-so feet it is now.

My emotions are mixed because, although this change should allow me to spend more time with my family, I will miss being part of your community on a regular basis.

Being the editor of a small town community newspaper certainly comes with many challenges, but in many ways I think it might be the best kind of journalism there is.

It also comes with a lot of responsibility.

As I've said to many people with whom I've spoken during my tenure here, working in journalism in small towns has a high degree of accountability to the people you serve. That's because the people about whom you write today are the same people who you may meet on the street tomorrow.

So, you better get it right.

I hope you feel most of the time, I did.

I feel honored to have had the opportunity to tell your stories — in words and photos — and to have been a part of the long tradition of this newspaper and the community it serves.

I would like to extend my thanks to the many people in the community who have been welcoming, supportive, helpful, and yes, even understanding of the occasional error during the past three-and-a-half years.

Sincerely,

Steve Zucker

Academy welcomes new math teacher

JAMIE BAUMANN
Northern Michigan Review

Kroondyk

Beau Kroondyk, of Boyne City, has landed the math teaching position at Northwest Academy in Charlevoix.

Kroondyk earned a bachelor's degree in mathematics with an education endorsement from Spring Arbor University. He did his student teaching at Petoskey High School. Then, he did a long-term substitute assignment at Northwest Academy last year. He was hired officially to start this school year.

He really likes teaching at Northwest Academy because he can get to know the students well.

"Last year when I was substituting, I enjoyed the smaller community of students and smaller class sizes. I found I could build better relationships with the students," Kroondyk said. "I really feel that I can make an impact here. Discipline isn't really a big issue. For me it's how I teach the curriculum and fully understanding the concepts that is the focus. But, as a first year teacher, it's easy for me to say that I don't know something and that I'll look it up for tomorrow."

Kroondyk has worked with children for several years. He has been involved as a camper or a counselor working his way up through the ranks at Camp Daggett for the past 14 years.

Currently he teaches all levels of high school math including pre-algebra, algebra, algebra II, geometry and an elective financial math. His favorite subject to teach is geometry.

"I can build it with the students from the bottom up," Kroondyk said. "Geometry is easy to relate to the real world and great for visual learners."

Chamber car raffle winners announced

The 23rd annual Chamber Car Raffle Drawing event took place at Fox Motors in Charlevoix on Thursday, Sept. 19, during which three winners were chosen.

The grand prize winner was Darlene Dawood from Sand Lake. She will have her choice of either a 2014 Ford Mustang convertible or $20,000 cash.

The second place winner of $500 is Bob O'Brien from Sacramento, Calif.

The third place winner of $250 is Jodi Fettig from Petoskey.

Chamber officials thanked those who participated in the drawing and the event and the businesses which contributed prizes for it.

Beaver Island teacher selected for conference

BEAVER ISLAND — Beaver Island Community School's early elementary teacher, Miranda Rooy, has been selected as one of 19 teachers across the nation to represent the teaching profession and the National Board for Professional Teaching Standards in Washington, D.C., this October.

District superintendent Riley Justis announced the honor for Rooy this week.

The teachers have been selected to provide input and direction for the continued reform and growth of the National Board for Professional Teaching Standards Certification Process. Rooy received her National Board Teacher Certification two years ago, an honor reserved for a small number of teachers across the nation and she is one of only 365 in the state of Michigan, Justis said.

"Beaver Island Community School has the honor and the privilege to maintain the highest level of teacher quality and Ms. Rooy's selection once again points to the quality and fidelity of the educational impact of the teachers here at BICS. Please join with us in honoring Miranda Rooy for her work and continued dedication to the craft and profession of teaching and learning in our community and beyond," Justis wrote in a release.

Hospital, MSU launch community health program

Leaders of Michigan State University's College of Human Medicine and Charlevoix Area Hospital recently announced the launch of a new rural community health program, designed to prepare future physicians with the skills necessary to practice rural medicine.

"We are beyond thrilled to have MSU's Rural Community Health Program at Charlevoix Area Hospital," said Lyn Jenks, president and chief executive officer, Charlevoix Area Hospital. "We are looking forward to training young men and women who are considering practicing medicine in rural areas."

"Today's launch of the Rural Community Health Program is especially meaningful at Charlevoix Area Hospital, as we have worked together for nearly a year piloting the program," said Marsha D. Rappley, MD, dean, MSU College of Human Medicine. "We believe this collaborative effort will strengthen rural health care both locally in Charlevoix and throughout Northern Michigan."

Once selected for the program, MSU's medical students will spend up to 24 months in the Charlevoix area. Here students will learn clinical skills and also gain experience with the varied roles of a rural physician, from treating medical needs to providing leadership in public health and community health care.

Dr. Andrea Wendling, a rural family physician who practices at Charlevoix Area Hospital and is associate professor at the College of Human Medicine, is director of the rural community health program. She said the program offers a unique opportunity for students to experience rural medicine, a focus not often found in medical school. She said she hopes this exposure leads students to consider the rewarding medical career path of rural medicine.

"We have wonderful health care providers and practices in place up here," Wendling said. "We just need to attract future rurally-minded physicians so that all communities can benefit. This program is a great place to start."

The announcement with Charlevoix Area Hospital is part of larger health system collaboration with the College of Human Medicine and is the medical school's newest of several rural physician education initiatives.

Three health systems – spanning Northern Michigan – are partnering with MSU as rural education sites for the College of Human Medicine's students, including Charlevoix Area Hospital, McLaren Northern Michigan and Alpena Regional Medical Center. Each site includes a rural hospital, the surrounding medical communities and the local public health department.

Officials anticipate that the program will eventually have up to 12 medical students at the rural education sites in Northern Michigan.

Oktoberfest on tap Saturday

The Charlevoix Elks Lodge is hosting an Oktoberfest festival in downtown Charlevoix from noon-6 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 28, in the public parking lot between Clinton and Mason streets just west of Bridge Street (the same lots in which the carnival rides are set up during Venetian Festival) in downtown Charlevoix.

Elks officials said theme of the event is creating an event that matches family fun with nonprofit fundraising opportunities.

At least 30 nonprofit groups have signed up to participate with booths with a wide array of offerings.

In addition to food and beverage and game booths, musical performances are expected from the Northwest Academy Jazz Band, the Charlevoix High School band, the Pine River Band and more.

One of the highlights of the day will be the wiener dog parade and races, slated to take place around 3 p.m. That event will serve as a fundraiser for the Charlevoix Area Humane Society.

The Keweenaw Star will be offering a special sunset cruise on the day of the event and will offer discounted tickets for those who bring a non-perishable food item to donate to a local food pantry.

During the event, adult beverages and other food items will also be available at the Elks Lodge, at 104 Mason St.

After the outdoor activities wrap up, the event will continue into the evening at the Elks Lodge where more food and entertainment will be offered.

Elks officials hope to make this an annual event.

OBITUARY

Marilyn M. Boss

Marilyn M. Boss, of Charlevoix, went to meet her Lord and Savior on Sept. 23, 2013, surrounded by her family.

She was born March 4, 1933, in Charlevoix, to Glenroy C. Ikens and Dorothy (Hager) Ikens. On the day that Marilyn was born, her grandfather Floyd Ikens, was elected sheriff of Charlevoix County. He was re-elected sheriff for 22 years. Marilyn loved to tell her children and grandchildren wonderful stories of the times she spent at the jail with her grandparents.

Marilyn was a lifelong resident of Charlevoix. She graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1950. Marilyn was voted "Most Creative" in her class, and used her talents throughout her life.

She married her childhood sweetheart, Dale E. Boss, on June 23, 1951, after they convinced their parents that they were old enough to get married by building their first home together at North Point in Charlevoix. The couple won the Mechanix Illustrated "Golden Hammer Award" for the construction of their house. The home was built in its entirety by Dale and Marilyn and was pictured on the pages of the magazine. When their family outgrew the space in their first home, Dale and Marilyn also helped with the construction of their current home on the same block, "The Chalet." Never one to worry about getting her hands dirty, Marilyn was the mason tender while the 35 foot two-story fireplace was being built. She tooled all the joints in the fireplace, and laid all the brick in a large pond that was in the side yard. Marilyn used her sewing talents and creativity to create one of a kind Halloween costumes for her children every year. She never bought a costume from the store. For years she sewed identical dresses for her girls and herself which they wore to church on Easter Sunday.

In addition to being a full-time mother and homemaker for her seven children, Marilyn was very active in the community. She was an officer in the P.T.A. when her children were growing up, and in 1964 became Charlevoix's first female school bus driver. Marilyn drove the Barnard Road route, and was known for playing 4 and 8-track music tapes for the children riding her bus. She was a Sunday school teacher and youth leader for many years at the Community Reformed Church, and served as a Sunday school superintendent at the Charlevoix Assembly of God. Marilyn was the president of the Charlevoix Historical Society for three terms, and made countless scrapbooks of local news articles. She was the secretary of the Charlevoix County Republican Committee for two terms.

Marilyn was a published song composer and writer; as well as an artist and sign painter. For many years, she wrote articles titled "Scrapbook" for the Charlevoix Courier, covering local history and events. Marilyn used her talents to promote the needs of various organizations in Charlevoix, making floats and signs free of charge to represent the city of Charlevoix. She volunteered her time and talents by helping in the "Operation Petunia" project for 19 years. Marilyn was up at 4 a.m. every morning with Dale to help water the flowers that she passionately loved along the five-mile path that makes Charlevoix so beautiful. She painted the petunias and did the lettering on the petunia watering truck which is a familiar sight in the spring and summer months. Marilyn designed petunia license plates as a fundraiser for "Keep Charlevoix Beautiful" which can be seen on the bumpers of many cars in Charlevoix. Marilyn was chosen grand marshal of the 1985 Venetian Parade along with her husband, Dale, which meant a great deal to her.

Marilyn took great joy in raising her children and being able to care for several of her grandchildren. Countless family pictures were on display throughout her home. The importance of family, faith and hard work were passed down through the generations. Most afternoons, Marilyn could be found on the front porch of her house at North Point discussing local news and listening to stories with her grown children and grandchildren who live in Charlevoix. She wrote weekly letters to her children, grandchildren, relatives and friends who did not live in Charlevoix, keeping them informed of family news and town events. Marilyn was well known for her huge family dinners (for 20-30 relatives) and her delicious homemade rolls and pies. She loved to go for rides with Dale in their classic red 1973 Cadillac convertible. Marilyn never left the house without her lipstick and a color coordinated bow in her blonde hair.

Marilyn used her artistic talents to turn their house and yard into the "Christmas House" each December. She cut out and painted countless elves, storybook, Bible and movie characters for an outside display that hundreds of people visit each year at Christmastime. Marilyn turned the inside of the house into Santa's Workshop. She decorated more than 30 Christmas trees, along with displays of animated toys and stuffed animals. Marilyn felt joy in knowing that so many children would stop by to enjoy the lights, music, toys and festive atmosphere at the house. Hundreds of children stopped by each year to visit Mr. and Mrs. Santa on Christmas Eve.

Marilyn is survived by her loving husband, Dale; two sons, Bo (Debbie) of Charlevoix, and Jim (Linda) of Charlevoix; four daughters, Kathy (Jack) Rowan of Topinabee, Sharon (Chuck) Elzinga of Albion, Diane (Dennis) Priess of Charlevoix, and Pam (Lane) Beatty of Naples, Fla.; brother, Glen (Betty) Ikens, of Brighton; sister, Sally (Tom) Paquin, of St. Ignace; 17 grandchildren; 16 great-grandchildren; brother-in-law, Dean (Beulah) Boss, of Spring Arbor; sister-in-law, Joyce Boss, of Charlevoix; sister-in-law, Marlene Terry, of Lubbock, Texas; and many beloved nieces and nephews.

Marilyn was preceded in death by her parents; sister, Kay Empey; daughter, Kay Howard; and infant son, Thomas Boss.

The Boss family is so grateful for the wonderful medical care and support Marilyn received from Dr. Jan Talmo, and her nurse Lisa. Marilyn was able to remain at home, which was her request, due to the exceptional weekday in-home care provided by Jessica Ferber, of TL Seniors, and the weekend caregivers Terri Green and Liz Wakulat.

At Marilyn's request, there will be no public funeral service or viewing. Because celebrating Christmas with the community was one of Marilyn's greatest joys, as a final tribute to Marilyn, the Boss family will hold a Christmas-themed open house.

Marilyn's family would like to invite those wishing to offer condolences/memories of Marilyn to join the family in celebrating Marilyn's life. The open house will take place at 7 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 5, at the family home (9336 Pearl St.) at North Point in Charlevoix.

In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions may be made to "Keep Charlevoix Beautiful" (to continue the petunia legacy) at P.O. Box 1, Charlevoix, MI 49720; or to the Charlevoix Historical Society, 103 State St., Charlevoix, MI 49720.

Sign Marilyn's guestbook at www.winchesterfuneralhome.com.

Graham named Veteran of the Month

Graham

The Veteran of the Month for September 2013 is Donald Hugh Graham.

Born on March 19, 1932 in Brown City, he later moved with his family to what would become the Graham family farm located on Graham Road south west of East Jordan. Graham graduated from East Jordan High School in the class of 1949, as class president, and attended Michigan State University becoming a dairy tester for the Michigan Department of Agriculture, in Charlevoix and Antrim counties, working for the Michigan Department of Health Inspection of Agriculture Department, headquartered in Boyne City, where he worked until October of 1952.

On Nov. 4, 1952 Graham enlisted in the U.S. Army, entering into active service in Detroit, on March 4, 1953 Graham was promoted to Private Second Class and following basic training he attended the Army Security Agency School, at Fort Meade, Md., March through August of 1953, graduating as a cryptographer capable of deciphering, reading and writing coded messages including being a Morse code interceptor. After completing his schooling, Graham was reassigned to Field Station, 8609th Deciphering Unit, Clark Army Air Force Base, Luzon Island, the Philippines, east of Vietnam, serving as a Morse code interceptor. On Oct. 15, 1954 Graham was promoted to Corporal Technician and on Oct. 6, 1955 at The Separation Center, Fort Sheridan, Illinois he received an Honorable Separation and was relieved from active military service and transferred to The U.S. Army Reserves, Michigan Military District and was awarded the following decorations and medals: The National Defense Service Medal and The Good Conduct Medal.

Returning to Michigan, Graham worked eight years for Consumers Power Company in Grand Rapids, and on May 24, 1958, in Howard City, he married Pauline Alfreda Doxtater.

On Nov. 4, 1960 Graham completed his military obligation and was awarded an Honorable Discharge.

In 1963 Graham moved north to take over the family farm and became a self-employed farmer retiring in March of 1994. He served his community as a board member of the Charlevoix County Road Commission, the East Jordan Farmers Cooperative, South Arm Township Board of Review and as South Arm Township Supervisor and zoning administrator. Graham enjoyed calling bingo, as a member of American Legion Post 277 in East Jordan, bowling, softball, ice fishing and fishing trips in the spring, working crossword and sudoku puzzles, Sunday morning coffee at the Hart's home, but what he loved most was spending quality time with his family.

On March 22, 2013 Donald Hugh Graham answered the final call and is being honored by his wife Pauline, son Terry and their families.

To honor a veteran, call the program chairman at (231) 588-6067 or on Tuesdays call (231) 582-7811 between 3:30-8:30 p.m. The ceremony may be witnessed at 6:15 p.m on the first Thursday of each month in front of the American Legion Post located on the corner of South Lake and Main streets in Boyne City.

Annual hunters banquet to take place Oct. 24

The Father Pierre Charlevoix Council 7172 Knights Of Columbus will host its 11th annual Hunters Banquet on Thursday, Oct. 24 at the Charlevoix VFW Hall, 12735 US 31 North.

Doors will open at 5:30 p.m. and dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m.

Organizers noted that the event is a fundraiser for the Charlevoix Food Pantry and all of net proceeds go to help area families in times of need.

The dinner will feature the "now world famous" Whitley brothers pig roast-with the pig contributed by St. Mary Cement; dressing; potatoes; vegetables; and some special surprise dishes, and all the trimmings.

There will be a featured speaker who will be named shortly.

Dinner tickets are $15 per person.

The event will also feature a separate raffle for a $1,000 shopping spree at Jay's Sporting Goods in Gaylord. Tickets are $5 each or 5 for $20. Raffle tickets may be purchased separate from the dinner and participants need not be present to win.

For more information and to buy tickets, call Gabe Campbell at (231) 547-9739, or Ed Linse at (231) 547-4526.

Paving the way

City of Charlevoix crews began installing brick pavers in the center portion of East Park's Plaza B this week. The site had previously been a flower bed, then covered in mulch and then last year was the going to be the location for a now-defunct outdoor fireplace project. Earlier this year, after deciding to do away with the fireplace project, the city council decided to fill in the space with brick paver and also approved a program whereby guests and residents may buy engraved memorial bricks that will ultimately be placed in the plaza.

thousands and thousands of dollars in grants."

Pearson also noted that the Main Street program will mesh nicely with an economic development planning effort that is already taking place among community leaders.

The effort, dubbed Charlevoix is Vibrant, grew out of a recent meeting among officials with the city, the downtown development authority, the Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau, the chamber and the Northern Lakes Economic Alliance and it is aimed at planning for the future of the city's downtown and its businesses. The group plans to host a public information and feedback gathering session from 6-8 p.m. on Wednesday, Nov. 13, at the Charlevoix Public Library. A few weeks later the boards of the various organizations will reconvene to discuss and prioritize economic development initiatives based on public input taken at the first session.

In other business, the authority's board voted to take over operation of the Charlevoix Farmers Market from the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce.

The city's recently-hired economic development director Bethany Pearson, who previously worked for the chamber and oversaw the farmers market in that position, said the move will benefit both the downtown development authority and the chamber.

Chamber executive director Erin Bemis explained that the chamber had no intention of discontinuing the market, but with Pearson's recent departure combined with some current and upcoming changes in chamber priorities, the chamber's board would like to use its resources on some different efforts.

The benefit for the downtown development authority is that the farmers market has been growing steadily since it was started in 2006 and so has the profits it's been generating. The market is expected to generate about $12,000 in profits this year.

Extra revenue could be very important to the authority in coming years, city treasurer Rick Brandt explained. Recent legislation that would eliminate personal property tax (if approved by a state-wide vote later this year), could cost the authority as much as $40,000 per year in tax revenue. It could cost the city's general fund even more.

Pearson said she would oversee the administration of the market, but would like to hire a market master to be on site to assist in its weekly operation on Thursdays from 9 a.m.-1 p.m. on Bridge Street along East Park.

The board also gave Pearson the go-ahead to apply for two grants that would help the city renew its Art in Public Spaces initiative.

Two years ago, the city received a grant and entered into an agreement with the Suave Foundation which allowed for several for-sale sculptures to be placed in the city's parks. That agreement is set to expire at the end of the month and the sculptures will soon be removed. One of the grants is for $4,000 from the Michigan Council for Arts and Cultural Affairs which requires a dollar-for-dollar match. The second grant request is to the Charlevoix County Community Foundation for the $4,000 in match money for the first grant. Pearson said if the grant requests are successful, the authority could work with local arts groups to put out a call for local artists to submit works for consideration for inclusion in the public art displays.

EXPANSION

investment on such a project will hinge on many factors, especially the arrangements that would be worked out with the Michigan Waterways Commission.

Several among the council noted that the marina's slips — especially with larger boats — not only bring revenue to the marina, but also are a significant economic engine for the downtown.

Some among the council expressed interest in making some of the proposed additional 44-foot slips on Dock B into more larger slips. However, the designers said engineering specifications for passage between docks may make that option not feasible.

Strachel said he expects that the city will have a clearer picture of the potential for the proposed expansion come late winter or early spring.

In other business, the council also approved an update to its donation acceptance policy that was first instituted earlier this year. The updates clarifies the procedures and policies the city should follow when accepting donations — especially those that are intended for public property such as parks. One notable addition is that any donation that is estimated to have an annual maintenance cost of more that $5,000 will require an endowment fund to cover 20 years of costs.

The complete policy can be downloaded on the city's website at www.cityofcharlevoix.org.

"The future we want: what older persons are saying"

OCTOBER 1, 2013

International Day of Older Persons

The Future We Want

UN Secretary General Ban Ki-Moon has announced this year's International Day of Older Persons as the perfect opportunity to help shape the UN's development goals. As he puts it, "Rapid population ageing and a steady increase in human longevity worldwide demand that we rethink how individuals live, work, plan and learn throughout their lifetimes." It is essential, he says, that we reorganize the way our societies work and allow older persons to exert an influence in the political, social, and economic realms which affect their daily lives.

How do older persons carve out a place for themselves in a culture that vilifies vulnerability and celebrates youth? Speaking up in political venues is one way. Older persons can exercise their right to vote by electing representatives who take a stand on the issues that count, such as retirement age revisions, taxation laws, affordable housing, and post-retirement work opportunities. Many municipalities have committees that are vigilant about intergenerational issues; they can be a great forum for speaking up about the needs of older persons.

The dollar is also a loud voice when it comes to choosing where and how to spend it. Older persons can cast a vote for long-term security by shopping for local products, which supports home-grown industry. They can also donate to charities and non-governmental organizations that advocate for older persons.

In the social sphere, older persons can get involved in intergenerational projects in their communities. Whether they act as leaders, volunteers, employees, or friends, getting involved in the social life of their town keeps older persons visible in the public's consciousness.

People can vote on their priorities concerning older persons' issues at the UN's website myworld2015.org

'Complete game' elusive

Rayders lose to Elks 20-7

DREW KOCHANNY
Northern Michigan Review

Playing a complete game is still in works for the Charlevoix Football team, as they dropped their third straight game on Friday, falling to Elk Rapids, 20-7, in their annual homecoming game.

While the Rayders, 1-3 overall, 0-2 in the Lake Michigan Conference, have come out in games and held their own, head coach Ron Bindi, in his first year in the program, is still looking for a full game from his team.

"We don't play football for 48 minutes," Bindi said. "It's all stuff that we do in practice, just when we get onto the field we don't get to the spots we need to be."

Like they have this season, the Rayders played well in the first half, holding the game at a scoreless tie to end the first half.

In the second half, the Rayders scored on a Like Klinger pass to Nate Moon for a seven yard score to make it a 7-7 game in the third.

Elk Rapids, 3-1, 1-1, would then go on to score 13 unanswered points, taking the game away from the Rayders late in the second half.

"We played with some intensity in the first half," Bindi said. "We have good athletes, we have good skill people, but the trait of physicality and toughness, only a few have it at the level we need to be."

Sam Hovie led the Rayders with 47 yards rushing, while Bryan Noirot added 30 yards in the game.

Klinger went 4-of-11 passing with 123 yards and the score. Austin Putman led the Rayders in receiving with 99 yards on two catches.

Next up for the Rayders will be a tough conference road game to Kalkaska, 3-1, 1-1, on Friday, Sept. 27.

Bindi said he is expecting the 3-1 Blazers to be a very physical team.

"I've seen two things from them," Bindi said. "They either throw the ball all over the place or they line up foot-to-foot and pound the ball straight at you."

Getting ready for the matchup in practice this week, Bindi said the coaching staff has moved a few people around into some different positions and he's dialed up the intensity of practices.

"We've had more intense practices this week ... You're rolling the dice a little bit being more physical. It's a risk to get people banged up, but hopefully it will translate it translates to more intensity on Friday night."

Elsewhere in the Lake Michigan Conference last week, East Jordan dropped its first game of the season to Kalkaska 14-7.

Even after the loss to Kalkaska on Friday, the East Jordan football team is off to their best start since 2003. The Red Devils are 3-1 overall and 1-1 in the Lake Michigan Conference.

Also, the cross-county Rayder rival Boyne City Ramblers made quick work of Lake Michigan Conference foe Harbor Springs, defeating the Rams 47-6 at Boyne City's Earl Brotherston Field. With the win, the Boyne City improve to 3-1 overall and 2-0 in league play while Harbor Springs falls to 2-2, 0-2.

Rayders control ball in 16-7 win over Elks

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

ELK RAPIDS – The Charlevoix Rayder junior varsity football team came back from a 7-0 halftime deficit to defeat conference rival Elk Rapids on Thursday, Sept. 19.

The game remained scoreless until 1:51 remaining in the first half when Elk Rapids scored on a 73 yard pass play. The point after was good, sending the Rayders to the locker room down 7-0.

But after that big play, the Rayder defense would allow no more scoring and the Rayder offense kicked it up.

The Rayders got on the board on a two-yard touchdown run by Justin Adkins with 3:18 remaining in the third quarter. The two point conversion was good on a run by Forest Noirot, putting the Rayders up 8-7.

Shortly into the fourth quarter the Rayders scored again, this time one-yard run by Noirot. Noirot ran in the two-point conversion to widen the gap to the final 16-7 margin.

The Rayders racked up 229 yards of total offense on the night led by Adkins who picked up 87 yards on 24 carries. Jared McLean added 45 yards on seven carries. Malcom Williams had 23 yards on two carries and Turner Havens had 17 yards on seven carries.

In passing, Noirot was 4 for 7 for 63 yards. On those plays, Ben Boss had three receptions for 46 yards and Oliver DeYoung had one catch for 17 yards.

On defense, Williams led the way with 7.5 tackles with two sacks and 3.5 tackles for loss. Adkins had four tackles and both Boss and Noirot each had three tackles.

"The way we played the second half is what I have been waiting for all season," Charlevoix coach Todd Klinger said. "We controlled the ball and the line of scrimmage. Elk Rapids only had five plays the whole third quarter."

Klinger praised the Justin Adkins' and Jared McLean's work running the ball, the work of the offensive line giving them holes through which to run and Noirot's work managing the game at quarterback.

"On defense, we kept them in check the whole game other than for the long pass at the end of the second quarter. Ben Boss, Turner Havens, and Hunter Cox were key players for us all night," he said.

Klinger added: "Overall as a team we have gotten better each game and have made fewer mistakes each game."

The Rayder JV squad was set to host Kalkaska at Kipke Field on Thursday, Sept. 26. Kickoff is set for 6 p.m.

POP WARNER

Pee Wees win, Midgets fall

The Charlevoix Rayder Pop Warner teams were both at home last Saturday at Kipke Field.

The Charlevoix Pee Wee division team defeated the Petoskey Badgers 19-6, in a game that was much closer than the score indicated.

The teams' coaches noted that both teams played great defense, but quarterback Jacob Snyder's three touchdown runs of 10, 60 and 15 yards were the difference.

Coaches credit the offensive line for battling a tough Petoskey line.

Defensively, the Rayders were stingy, led by linebacker, Snyder, as well as Jack Bemis and Zach Nickel. The win moves the team's record to 3-0 on the season. The Pee Wee team will travel to Petoskey for 10 a.m. game on Saturday, Sept. 28 against the undefeated Petoskey Bulldogs.

The Charlevoix Midget Division team took a loss to a very tough Boyne City 1 team, 20-0 Saturday.

Offensively, the Rayders were able to chew up some yards with Running Backs Cole Wright, Tyler Ostrum and Carson Gauthier.

Good drives were cut short by the Boyne City defense. Defensively, coaches said that the line penetrated well, but were not finishing their tackles.

Coach Del Hart said the game will serve as a learning experience the team can build on.

The Rayder Midgets play next at 1 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 28 in Bellaire.

Charlevoix's Walker Drost works to get the ball past a Boyne City player during the Radyers' game against the Ramblers on Monday.

Rayders bounce back with two wins

It's hard to doubt the importance of getting on the scoreboard first.

The Charlevoix boys' soccer team knocked through the first goal in a 3-0 win over Boyne on Monday in Charlevoix and quickly saw their play return to normalcy.

"It was a slow first 15 minutes for us, we came out very flat," Rayder coach Jon Boss said. "Fortunately we were able to get the first goal, so that's an extremely positive and important thing to do, to be able to get that first goal. Especially when we're not playing to the best of our ability."

Charlevoix, 7-3 overall, saw their first goal find the back of the net around the 20 minute mark on a boot by Walker Drost.

Davis LaBelle would put the Rayders up 2-0 with a goal of his own assisted by Nick Snabes.

The match, led by the Rayders at 2-0, would go to half with Boyne having survived numerous shots and opportunities from Charlevoix in the first half.

"As the game progressed, we possessed more and played the way we like to play a little bit better," Boss added. "We were still holding onto the ball a little too much, but that happens. Every game can't be your best game."

Boyne defense would hold tough in the second half, as the Rayders would get a goal in with just over 15 minutes left in the game, when Drost brought in his second goal of the night, assisted by Christian Matye.

Boss was impressed with the Ramblers defense throughout the night.

"They were playing four back, four flat on the defensive end," he said. "It does make it a little tougher to score. I could have done a better job at realizing that and trying to get the guys to get through it a little more. They had a good defensive game, they held us to very limited shots. They played a strong game."

The Rayders won't be able to drop their guard throughout the week, as they welcome Harbor Light Christian on Thursday.

"Harbor Light will be another good game for us," Boss said. "They're a solid team, so we're excited to play them again. It was a pretty evenly matched game, so we're looking forward to having them here."

On Saturday, Sept. 21, Nick Snabes and Christian Matye each had a pair of goals as the Charlevoix High School boys' soccer team topped Suttons Bay, 6-2, in a non-league game.

The Rayders took a 4-1 halftime lead before tacking on two more goals in the second half.

"This was probably the best game we've played all season as far as I'm concerned," Charlevoix coach Jon Boss said.

"Suttons Bay had a great goalkeeper and anything in the air at him, he made amazing saves. He was the best goalie we've faced so far, but every one of our goals was a result of good ball movement where we just tapped it in."

Snabes scored the first goal with help from Matye, before Brendan Britt scored off a feed from Davis LaBelle. Snabes then scored his second goal of the game off an assist from Wes Crandall.

Matye then scored two straight goals with both assists coming from LaBelle before LaBelle closed the scoring off a feed from Snabes.

"We've been working on our mental strength and having composure on the field and when we're moving and possessing the ball and keeping our heads in the game, we play games like this," Boss said. "This was a complete game."

JJ Wachler earned the win in goal for the Rayders.

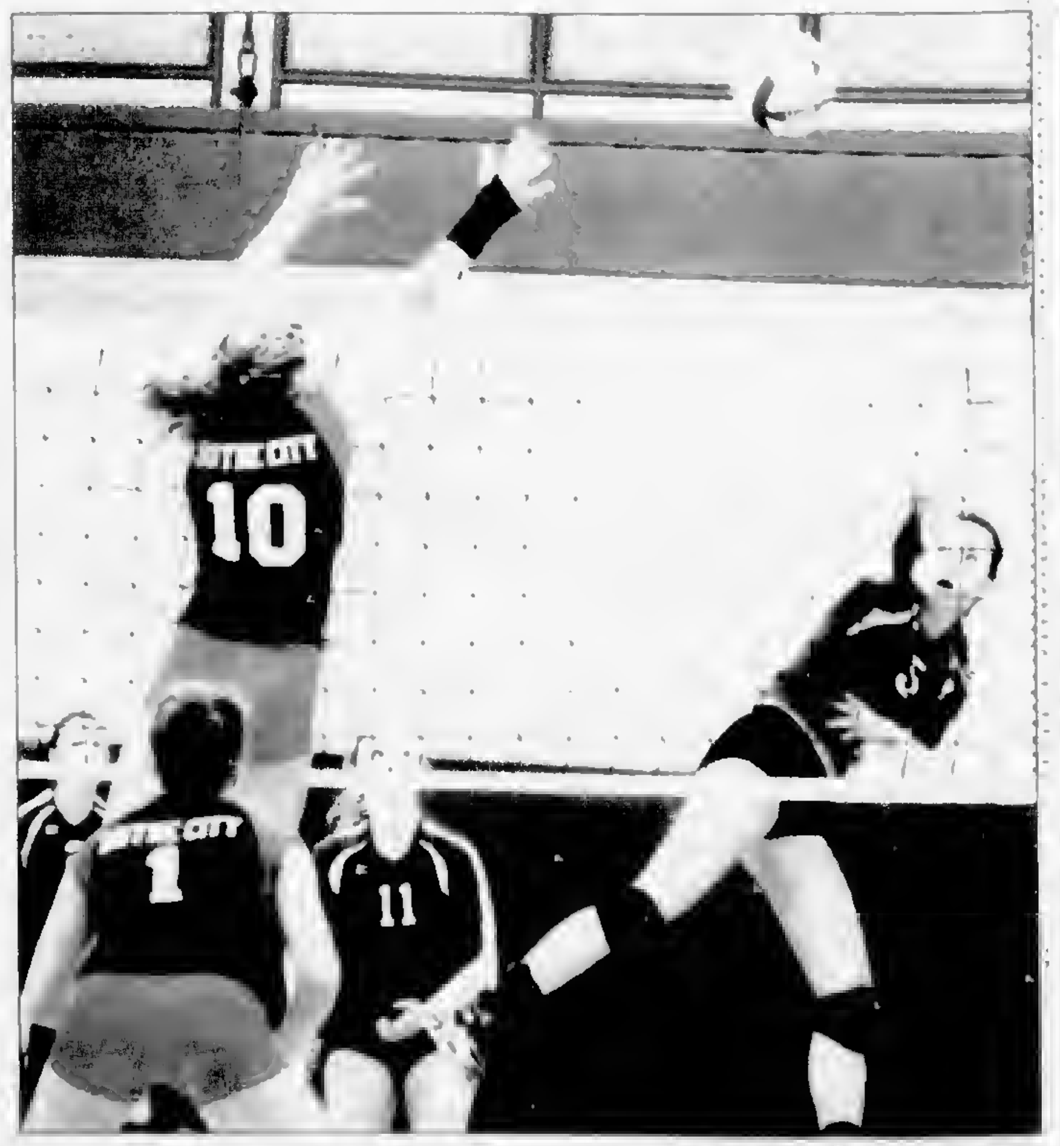
Rayders take third in tournament, fall to Ramblers



KURT GRANGOOD/ NEWS-REVIEW

Boyne City and Charlevoix have faced few opponents this season that have given them much of a scare on the court.

That is until Tuesday, when the two rivals met on the courts at Charlevoix High School.

The Ramblers would prove to be the stronger team on the night in three sets against the Rayders, moving to 27-9-2 overall and 4-0 in the Lake Michigan Conference.

Boyne took the first match 25-18, second match 25-14 and came from behind to take the third and final set 25-19 over the Rayders, 20-10-1, 3-1.

"It's always an intense match against Charlevoix no matter what the score," Boyne coach Casie Parker said. "After winning the first two games Charlevoix took the lead in the third and we struggled. I was proud of the way we fought back to win that game too."

Charlevoix led the third set 11-7 in the early going, but thanks to the play of Boyne junior Kylie Hicks, the Ramblers were able to finish the Rayders off.

"The girls are upset with how they played, knowing that they have a lot more skill and drive to offer the game, especially coming off the third place finish at their home tourney," Charlevoix coach Audra Randall said. "We will learn from this and be more prepared at our next match."

Hicks led the Ramblers with 17 digs, 12 kills and five blocks, while Mallory Karasewski brought in 17 digs and six kills. Paige Hornbeck had 11 kills and Heather Nichols had 24 setter assists. Nichols and Kristen Rushlow were each 100 percent from the serve line, as well.

"Heather Nichols had a great game tonight. She hustled all over the court," Parker said. "Paige Hornbeck and Kylie Hicks hit well."

Charlevoix was led by Madeline Boss with 20 kills and seven digs, Jennaca Holecheck with eight digs, Gloria Greene with 16 assists and Olivia Storm with 10 assists.

"The positive part about my team is that I have a wonderful group of girls who are willing to take the steps to be highly competitive," Randall added. "Casie Parker has coached her team well and I commend her and her team on this clean win."

Boyne will play next at home against East Jordan at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday, Oct. 1, while the Rayders next match will be in the Morley Stanwood tournament on Saturday.

On Saturday, Sept. 21, Madeline Boss had a standout performance, finishing with 76 kills, was 56-of-57 serving with seven aces and added 28 digs as the Charlevoix High School varsity volleyball team placed third at the Charlevoix Volleyball Tournament.

The Rayders opened pool play by topping Harbor Light Christian, 25-9, 25-17, 25-15; then topped Charlevoix, 25-16, 19-25, 25-23; before defeating Harbor Springs, 25-20, 25-21, 25-19, to finish at 8-1 in pool play.

In bracket play, the Rayders topped Brimley, 25-20, 25-17, 18-16; then fell to Cheboygan in the semifinals 18-25, 25-15, 25-15, 15-10.

"The team was very focused on a finals appearance," Charlevoix coach Audra Randall said. "Although that's not what was in store that day, they should be very proud of their third place accomplishment out of a field of nine."

In the championship match, Roscommon defeated Cheboygan.

Boss, who was also strong on serve receive throughout the tournament for the Rayders, was one of six players named to the all-tournament team, while Olivia Storm added 71 assists, was 66-of-68 serving with five aces, while Gloria Greene had 64 assists, was 37-of-40 serving with nine digs.

Also for Charlevoix, Kylie Scholten had 28 kills and 13 blocks, Jennaca Holecheck had 19 digs, nine kills and four aces while Emily Zobawa had 10 blocks and 13 kills. Alexis Tribfelner had 28 digs and seven aces, while Kelsey Pischner had 10 kills and Madi Carey added nine digs.

Area teams fared quite well at the 39th annual Petoskey Rotary Cross Country Invitational Saturday at a new course adjacent to the Petoskey High School gym.

A total of four teams earned either first or second place trophies in the race which featured four races including 9-10th grade boys, 9-10th grade girls, 11-12th grade boys and 11-12th grade girls.

In the 11-12th grade girls race, Harbor Springs placed first with 38 points, while Charlevoix was second, 53, followed by Alpena, 65; Petoskey, 116; Newberry, 137; Cheboygan, 140; and Boyne City, 151.

The Charlevoix boys captured the 11-12th grade boys race with 44 points, while Alpena was second, 57; followed by Petoskey, 61; Traverse City Central, 64, and Inland Lakes, 126.

In the 9-10th grade girls race, Traverse City St. Francis placed first with 39 points, while Petoskey was runner-up with 61. Newberry placed third with 79 points, while Harbor Springs was fourth, 96; followed by Alpena, 123; Elk Rapids, 150; Boyne City, 152; and Charlevoix, 187.

Alpena won the 9-10th grade boys race with 49 points, while T.C. Central was second, 53; followed by Petoskey, 71; Harbor Springs, 98; Boyne City, 103; and Newberry, 133.

The top two teams all received trophies, while medals went out to the top 15 runners in each race.

Charlevoix junior standout Amber Way won the girls' 11-12th grade race as she finished in 19 minutes, 9.9 seconds, while East Jordan's Kayla Keane was second, 20:22.9, and Cheboygan's Mandy Paull was third, 21:28.4.

Also the Charlevoix girls, who were running without Caroline Boss — who was taking the ACT — and Cora Taylor, Ellie Way was 10th, 23:50.4; while Ali Schwein was 13th, 24:22.3. Also for the Rayder girls, Allie Hodge placed 23rd, followed by Anna Voci, 25th, Pauline Sheets, 27th; and Shelby Robertson, 43rd.

"It was nice, we had three girls medal and I thought Amber (Way) and Holly (Bullough), although she was in a different race, looked really good," Charlevoix coach Mary Plude said. "Our top three girls ran well. I know the times don't really show it, but I was pleased with those girls."

Also medaling was Inland Lakes' Sophie Passino, who placed 11th in 24:17.9, while Lindsay Smelizer was 29th; and Mackenzie Baxter was 38th.

In the boys 11-12th grade race, East Jordan's Josh Wojan took first place finishing in 17:25.3, while Harbor Springs' Marcus Garrow was second, 17:31.1; and Petoskey's Mark Smith was third, 18:06.9.

Charlevoix placed a trio of runners within the top 15, led by Jackson Buday who was fourth, 18:19.5; Tristen Rudolph, fifth, 18:29.5; and Nick Plude, ninth, 18:47.4.

"I know Ken (Plude) was really pleased with Jackson Buday," Mary Plude said. "It was a nice breakout race for him and he looked strong and confident out there. Tristen (Rudolph) also had a good race and I know he (Ken Plude) was pleased as well with Nick (Plude). Nick passed a bunch of guys in the last quarter mile.

"The work and miles the boys put in over the summer is paying off."

Also for the Rayder boys, Lucas VonLau was 21st, followed by Noah Jeakle, 22nd; Shae Bearrs, 28th; and Micca Peebles, 40th.

Also earning medals was Harbor Springs' Michael Gorman, who finished eighth in 18:43.5; while Boyne City's Garrett Fogo was 15th, 19:05.1.

In the 9-10th grade girls race, T.C. St. Francis' Holly Bullough placed first overall as she finished in 19:24.6, while Petoskey's Lily Cesario was second 21:34.1 and Petoskey's Morgan Block placed third in 21:36.8.

Also earning medals in the girls' 9-10th grade race was Inland Lakes' Lexi Passino, seventh, 23:18.2; and Harbor Springs Claire Fleming, ninth, 23:30.8.

Charlevoix's Isabelle Buday was a team-best 22nd, followed by Katie Mousseau, 25th; Megan Ramona, 57th, Sophia Sheets, 59th; and Jenna Guthrie, 69th.

Alpena's Mitchell Day won the boys' 9-10th grade race as he finished in 17:57.6, while Alpena's Isaac Cross was second, 18:14.2; and Boyne City's Ethan Book was third, 18:39.5.

Also earning medals in the boys 9-10th grade race was Charlevoix's Luke Buday, fifth, 18:50.0, Boyne City's Derek Willis, 10th, 19:56.7; and Harbor Springs' Kurtis Alessi, 13th, 20:12.2, and Harbor's Zach Hunt, 15th, 20:17.6.

Also for Charlevoix, Jonathan Pischner was 25th, followed by Montana Thompson, 53rd, and Josh Clees, 55th.

The annual event was moved from Camp Pet-O-Se-Ga to a course which surrounded the Petoskey High School.

Tournament runners-up

The Charlevoix girls U12 soccer team were runners-up Saturday, Sept. 21 at the TBAYS Autumn Classic Soccer Tournament. The girls won their bracket tieing Gaylord 0-0, defeating Harbor Springs 1-0 and defeating Traverse City 8-0. The girls advanced to the championship game against Elk Rapids. At the end of regulation the game was tied 2-2. After two overtimes the girls went to a shoot out and lost a heart-breaker. Coach Pete Scholen noted that girls "played with a lot of heart and intensity." BE A
WISE SHOPPER
It's always wise to remember that if an offer sounds too good to be true, it probably is. If you are offered merchandise at an unbelievably low price, check it out thoroughly. A call to the Better Business Bureau (serving Eastern Michigan and the Upper Peninsula) will tell you whether other consumers have had problems with the firm that has offered the merchandises (248)223-9400. But call the Bureau BEFORE you make a purchase. You'll be glad you did.

Charlevoix woman charged with assault, attempted murder

A Charlevoix woman charged with attempting to murder another woman Sunday is headed to court later this month.

Kaylee Rose Booth, 31, is charged with assault with the intent to murder for allegedly stabbing a 28-year-old Charlevoix woman, Justine Marie Murray, five times — once to the left side of her chest, the upper left torso, twice in the upper left arm and once to the left hip — at 6:29 p.m. Sept. 29, at 704 State St. in Charlevoix, according to the affidavit of probable cause. The charge is punishable by life in prison.

Booth's case is set for a preliminary examination at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 22, in the 90th District Court in Charlevoix County.

The attack, according to the prosecution, is believed to be related to a romantic argument.

Booth

Booth's former boyfriend, Joseph Reedy, was a witness at the scene, and probable cause notes that Booth was upset because "she believed that he was cheating on her with (the victim)."

The Charlevoix City Police Department responded to the scene. The victim was transported by ambulance to a Charlevoix Area Hospital and was later transported to a Traverse City hospital to recover from her injuries.

Ochs running again for clerk

STEVE ZUCKER
Northern Michigan Review

With 2013 being an "off year," the Tuesday, Nov. 5 General Election might be ho-hum in many places, but not in Charlevoix.

If a rematch of two of the three races in May's city council recall election and a county commissioner running for city clerk wasn't interesting enough, the election got a little more interesting recently when former city clerk Carol Ochs threw her hat into the ring to run as a write-in candidate for her old job.

After nine years on the job, in June Ochs resigned from the city clerk's office with about six months remaining in her current term. At the time she made the announcement, Ochs explained her resignation saying, "My competency has publicly been brought into question. Clearly people feel they can do my job better than I can. It's not worth the fight."

Her comments stemmed from claims made by sponsors of the effort that ultimately led to three city council members being replaced in a May 7 recall election. In the petitions that prompted the recall and in other settings, the sponsors and candidates claimed the city council had violated the state's Open Meetings Act when it met for a special meeting during which it approved what would become a controversial outdoor community fireplace project.

Ochs bristled at the accusations, not only denying that any such violation took place, but saying she is ultimately responsible for Open Meetings Act compliance, not the council.

When all three challengers won handily in the recall election, Ochs announced she would not seek re-election in November saying she viewed the vote in the recall election as a vote of no confidence by the community in her. She announced her resignation a little more than a month later. Ochs further explained Tuesday that part of the reason she resigned was because she was feeling a lot of stress and anxiety and needed to take a break. She said she felt the only way she could take such a break as an elected official was to resign.

Upon hearing that Ochs would not seek re-election, city resident Larry Sullivan filed a petition to run for the position.

So, why in mid September, did Ochs file to run as a write-in candidate for the office from which she just resigned three months prior?

She had to file as a write-in candidate because the deadline to file petitions to appear on the ballot passed on May 14.

Ochs said Tuesday that she is seeking to get her old job back for two reasons. Because several people asked her to do so, and because she wants the city's residents to have a choice when it comes to the clerk's office.

But it's not the "choice" most candidates mean when they run for office.

Although her write-in candidacy will give voters a choice between her and Sullivan, Ochs has no beef with her opponent.

"He's probably more qualified for the job than I was when I first took over," Ochs said.

The "choice" Ochs is referring to is how the next city clerk will be chosen and by whom.

Sullivan, who retired a year ago after serving for 31 years as the county's planning director, successfully ran for a seat on the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners at the end of last year.

Since Sullivan filed to run for Charlevoix City Clerk, city and county officials have been trying to determine if he may legally hold both offices simultaneously.

Charlevoix County Clerk Cheri Browe said her understanding of the county's civil counsel's opinion was that no prohibition to Sullivan holding both offices at the same time could be found. However, Charlevoix City Manger Rob Straebel said his reading of the opinion was not that clear.

The state's Incompatible Offices Act reads, in part:

"'Incompatible offices' means public offices held by a public official which, when the official is performing the duties of any of the public offices held by the official, results in any of the following with respect to those offices held.

(i) Subordination of 1 public office to another.

(ii) The supervision of 1 public office by another.

(iii) A breach of duty of public office."

County and city officials have requested an opinion from the Michigan Attorney General's office on the matter, but have not yet received and answer. A call seeking comment on the matter from the Attorney General's office was not returned before press time.

Which bring us back to Ochs' reason for running for the clerk's office again.

Ochs said she is concerned that if Sullivan is elected to the clerk's office and then is ultimately forced to chose between the county commissioner and city clerk posts, the city could wind up with a clerk who is appointed by the city council instead of elected by the people — as the city's charter requires.

The city could be headed toward an appointed clerk anyway.

In the months since Ochs announced she would not seek re-election and then resigned, the council has been discussing the possibility of changing the clerk's office from an elected position to an appointed position. That change would require modifying the city's charter, which must be approved by voters.

Marilyn Boss left lasting impacts

Charlevoix to memorialize lifelong resident

SHERI MCWHIRTER-O'DONNELL
Courier editor

Charlevoix's own daughter, Marilyn M. Boss, left the community with wonderful, lasting memories when she died last month.

Boss lived in Charlevoix for all of her 80 years, born on the day her grandfather Floyd Ikens was elected sheriff in Charlevoix County. She grew up and graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1950, then married her childhood sweetheart, Dale E. Boss, in June the next year. They built their first home together at North Point in Charlevoix.

Marilyn Boss also charmed the community year after year by sewing unique Halloween costumes for her children, as well as matching dresses for her daughters and herself for church on Easter Sunday. Just about everyone in town knew her, as well as how much she and Dale loved to cruise around in their classic red 1973 Cadillac convertible. And even the windy ride wouldn't deter her from placing her signature bow in her blonde hair.

"If anybody was dedicated to Charlevoix, it was Marilyn," said Dave Miles, of the Charlevoix Historical Society.

Boss

Marilyn Boss served as the organization's president for three terms and also wrote articles titled "Scrapbook" for the Charlevoix Courier, taking on topics of local historical interest and community events. She took pride in her community and worked to preserve its place in time.

"What Marilyn did that was so valuable to us was in 1985 she started clipping the Charlevoix Courier and kept anything historically relevant in binders. She did that for more than 20 years," Miles said. "That really is a legacy she left us."

But perhaps Marilyn Boss is best known for her connection to Charlevoix's famed petunias. Some even called her Mrs. Petunia, as a nickname. She volunteered with the city's Operation Petunia program for 19 years, rising at 4 a.m. to help water the city's well-known five-mile-long floral display. She even used her artistic talent to create the petunia li

Getting ready for Charlevoix Apple Fest

JAMIE BAUMANN
Northern Michigan Review

It's time to drink cider, enjoy fall colors, eat fresh apples and enjoy vendors' goods at the Charlevoix Apple Fest on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 11-13.

The festival has come a long way from its humble beginnings when Friske Orchards would set up a pie booth near the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce. According to Ecin Bemis, Charlevoix Area Chamber president, this year about 150 vendors are expected. They will bring pumpkins, squash, jam, honey, maple syrup, pies, cider and more than 30 types of apples. There will be booths of crafters and fine artists in the holiday art and craft show. For the kids, there will be face painting, pony rides, petting zoo and pumpkin carving contest. Many area organizations will also sell food, such as chili, hot dogs and kielbasa. And some restaurants, working with the apple theme, offer unique apple treats throughout the three-day festival.

Heidi Friske Drost, general manager of Friske's Farm Markets said, "Apple Fest is our biggest weekend of the year. We depend a lot on friends and family to help out in our booth, because we also have farm markets to cover, as well as the harvest. We start planning for it just after Labor Day."

Drost supervises the baking of 700 dozen doughnuts to bring to the Apple Fest. "Then, in a good year, we make another 700 dozen on site," she said. The doughnuts and their fresh-squeezed cider are top sellers. In fact, Friske Orchards has won Traverse Magazine's Red Hot Best title for the past two years for their apple cider.

"On a good year, we will bring and sell 300 pies, 500 caramel apples, and 200 apple dumplings, all made from scratch with hand-rolled crusts," Drost said. "It takes about 20 people to man the booth on Saturday alone."

"We hope and pray for great weather," Drost said. "Every year is a gamble. A couple of years ago, it was so cold and windy, that people's booths blew down." That year, they lost money with too much inventory, because the inclement weather kept the crowds away.

"One thing we know for sure this year," Drost said, "is that there are plenty of apples." This year there is a bumper crop of apples.

Sara McGuire, owner and manager of Royal Farms, said they used to do lots of farm markets, but now they are quite selective, and the Charlevoix Apple Fest is her favorite. "Charlevoix Apple Fest is always well-attended. We see people, not only from all over the state, but from all over the country, who fly in for the event. It is great exposure for us and a great community activity that embraces what we do as fruit growers. I think it's important to celebrate that in this area."

Prior to the Apple Fest, McGuire and her staff bake all different sorts of apple pies. In addition, they make caramel apples, breads and cookies.

Trish Morgan, owner of Peach Bloom Hill Studio in Charlevoix, has attended Charlevoix Apple Fest for about 20 years. "I am amazed at how much it has grown, especially in the last five years or so," she said.

This year will be her first time exhibiting. She has already been busy preparing paintings, ordering inventory and framing prints. "I'm not sure what to expect, but I'm anticipating great sales based on past attendance and everyone wanting to take a little bit of Charlevoix home with them," Morgan said. "As a fine art watercolor artist, Apple Fest gives me a great opportunity to show some of my artwork and products that I don't normally exhibit. Many of these are Charlevoix-theme including prints, calendars, towels and books."

Stone artist Susan Borowiak, of Petoskey, has been preparing all summer for the Apple Fest show. She fashions lamps, frames, bird houses, mirrors and other items from Lake Michigan and Lake Superior stones.

"The Apple Fest is a fabulous show. I bring extra inventory, because they draw people from all over. They do a great job of selecting a nice blend of arts and crafts."

Borowiak plans to bring lots of inventory and pray for good weather. "If the weather is nice, I know the show will be well attended and well-run."

Glenn Wachler, a third generation jewelry designer from Wachler LifeLinks of Charlevoix will be exhibiting for his fourth year at Apple Fest.

Though Wachler makes all different kinds of jewelry, he will be featuring a PhotoLink jewelry system at Apple Fest that allows people to combine any image into bracelets. Customers may personalize and build their bracelets with PhotoLink charms at his booth. He will bring several thousand bracelets to give away and sell during Apple Fest.

"We love the Charlevoix Apple Fest. It is a three-day show in our home town, and we have a tremendous following of people who come back each year and add to their bracelets and buy gifts for their friends and families," Wachler said.

"The best things about the festival are the delicious doughnuts and apple cider smells that permeate the air. It is impossible not to enjoy them throughout the festival. We are usually set up very close to Friske Orchards booth and enjoy the wonderful tastes of autumn all three days," Wachler said. "When the weather cooperates, there is no better show."

The Charlevoix Apple Fest will run 10 a.m.-6 p.m. on Friday and Saturday and 10 a.m.-4 p.m. on Sunday. For more information, contact the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce at (231) 547-2101 or visit their website at www.charlevoix.org.

Council to consider Main Street application Monday

STEVE ZUCKER
Northern Michigan Review

A resolution in support of a city application to participate in the Michigan Main Street program will be among several matters that the Charlevoix City Council will consider at its next regular semi-monthly meeting set for 7 p.m. on Monday, Oct. 7.

At its regular meeting on Sept. 23, the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority Board voted to apply to become part of the associate level of the Michigan Main Street Program. However, the council must approve a resolution of support for the application for it to move forward.

The Michigan Main Street Program which is administered by the Michigan State Housing Development Authority will include several training sessions for community leaders — both official and volunteer during which they will learn about the Main Street Program, and how to implement its main principles.

Technical assistance and other services are provided by the program to train staff members and volunteers in the aspects of design, economic restructuring, promotion and organization. Participation in the program has benefited communities by: creating new jobs, attracting new businesses, enhancing a positive community image, increasing investment in the downtown, preserving historic resources, protecting and strengthening the existing tax base and improving visual appeal and economic viability. So far, the program has seen success in many cities throughout the state. Perhaps the best known Northern Michigan example is Boyne City, which just celebrated its 10 year anniversary of the program's beginning in that community. Other Michigan cities in which the program has seen success include Grand Haven, Manistee, Calumet and Lansing.

The associate level of the program comes at no cost to the city outside of travel costs for those who attend the training. The one-year long program requires no commitment to continue to higher levels of the program. In most communities that have moved on in the program, the city's downtown development authority assumes the role of the Main Street Program board.

Other items on the agenda for the council include:

— The council will consider finalizing the details of a new memorial brick purchase program. Under the program, area residents will be able to purchase an engraved brick and have it placed in the center of East Park's Plaza B. Last week city crews placed brick pavers in the plaza's center. City manager said the proposal he will bring to council will be to offer memorial bricks for $100 each, which will include the cost of engraving. The bricks will then replace the existing bricks in the plaza in batches as they are purchased. Straebel is proposing that proceeds from the brick sales go to support recreational programs in the city.

— The council will consider accepting the donation of a boat to be used by the fire department for rescue and dive team operations and training. The boat would be the first donation to be considered since the city's revised donation acceptance policy was adopted last month. Straebel said city fire chief Paul Ivan is recommending accepting the donation noting that several fire department members are qualified to handle its repair and maintenance needs.

The council will consider extending Straebel's three-year contract by another year. The extension would take the contract into 2016 and would include a 2 percent raise.

– The council will discuss its plans for the city clerk's position. At recent meetings some discussion has taken place over whether the position should be full-time or if it should remain at a 30-hour per week position. Straebel said he will be recommending that it remain a 30-hour position.

Can you read the signs?

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

"Signs, sign, everywhere there's signs ... do this, don't do that, can't you read the sign;" a song that has withstood the test of time and become fresh again by a recent trip to Detroit's Renaissance Center. I meandered down a hallway to enter the restroom when to my surprise I see a nicely dressed gentleman washing his hands at the sink. Before I ask what he's doing in the women's restroom I scoot out to re-read the sign telling me in fact it is the men's room. I had quickly become accustomed to seeing male and female areas marked in the same general area but in this hallway they were switched.

I have always been too literal because of my directional difficulties. I call this map challenged or dysmapia. I made that up because of my own need to give it more appeal. When I first learned to drive I actually avoided taking some exits because the sign read, "Chicago" and I knew I wasn't headed to the Windy City. In reality, I was headed in the general geography of Chicago but my mind only focused on a city that wasn't my final destination. This is where the literal nonsense kicks in. Not seeing any trees on an expressway makes it even more difficult for one to find north.

Whenever I ventured away from home, my dad would explain with all the patience he could muster that I need to imagine a map in my head and think north, south, east, west and which cities are located in that area. This may be easy for most of you reading this, but remember I am the lady who can't remember where she parked her car. Thus, to this day, I still park my car under the first capital letter of a storefront name I can remember. Sometimes I end up in the last spot a mile away but at least I'll find my car. There should be handicap stickers for individuals like myself with dysmapia. I'll work on that, but first I need to meet with educational staff who can agree that this is a disability.

Whoa Nellie, hold the presses! I've just been notified that this is now considered a disability and the educational system is calling it — wait for it — dysmapia. Go figure. I had come up with the name years ago and now it's actually recognized as a disability similar to dyslexia.

Now that I am thinking about signs, I notice the thoughtful ones displayed on family porches, in parks and playgrounds and I began to think of the significance of signs. They tell us where to go, how to behave, what to wear, how much something costs, what performance we'll see, who's playing what sport and more information about the item we are about to purchase. This is all well and good, but then there is a different type of sign which adds more confusion to the English language.

There are signs of sickness, maturity, infidelity, old age, disabilities, wear and tear and in my case, dysmapia. These types of signs I can follow and understand very well. I know what to look for; I can remember the information identifying all the earmarks and have no problem understanding the entire concept in any of them. What it boils down to is, if signs are important enough for someone to make them, we need to read them, understand them and follow them. I appreciate what went into them, I just don't understand ones that involve physical direction. Once I find someone who understands this, I want to be first in line at the Secretary of State's Office to get my dysmapia handicap sticker. Who knows? Maybe there are lots of people out there with the same difficulty. We could all meet up and share our concerns and coping techniques. Unfortunately, we'll all be late because we'll get lost getting there. On a side note, individuals with dysmapia tend to argue with their GPS.

This is to thank all of the Idle Free Sponsorship Banner sponsors and supporters of Idle Free Charlevoix. We applaud your efforts to make Charlevoix a healthier place to live and breathe. We would especially like to thank Revolution Bike, St. Marys Cement, the members of Water and Air Team Charlevoix, Dairy Grille, Mason and Lynne Rosenthal, Beaver Island Boat Company, Charlevoix Area Community Pool, Village Graphics, Nu-Core, Biddick Maritime Services, Heather Biddick — One Ounce Design, Friends of Norm Probert, Irish Boat Shop, Michael's Locksmith Services, Re/MAX, Bay Winds Federal Credit Union and Charlevoix State Bank.

We would also like to recognize the support and efforts of the city of Charlevoix, including Marti and Don and the Charlevoix Street Department. Thank you also to the Charlevoix City Council for declaring Charlevoix and "idle free city" and all the motorists who diligently remember to shut off their engines while waiting for the bridge, running into the post office, grocery store or other services. You make our community proud and a better place to live and breathe.

Sincerely,
WATCH Board of Directors and Michelle Rick-Biddick, WATCH executive director

CHARLEVOIX

The fourth bridge across the channel, and second swing bridge, was installed in 1901. A few years prior, it had been determined that the previous bridge, also a swing style and installed in 1878, was suffering badly from rust and rot. That one could be patched up for $3,000, but the federal government informed the city that lake vessels were becoming bigger, and destined to become bigger still. If Charlevoix wanted to be able to accommodate them, the channel would have to be deepened by eight feet and widened from 50-75 feet at the draw. Why not take advantage for our future with a brand new bridge plus channel work, for $20,000? The proposal was offered to the voters. The Charlevoix Sentinel newspaper wrote, "We are of the opinion that the latter plan will be in the end the wiser one." The paper was right on the mark. The voters agreed, and the bond proposal was accepted. Later the paper announced that we would be receiving "a broad, modern bridge." Construction started in February, 1901 and the longer bold, assertive span was ready by July. Slated to come out in 1941 for yet another bridge, it was spared by the advent of World War II and lasted until 1947 when construction of the present Memorial Bridge began. There are many people in Charlevoix who still fondly remember this old classic span.

The Front Porch restaurant fundraising raffle proved a success as it raised $7,000.

Front Porch fundraiser a success

The fall fundraiser for The Front Porch restaurant in Ellsworth was a success. Not quite the way it was planned, but still a success. Organizers hoped to raise $5,000 for the pay-what-you-can cafe. Instead, they raised more than $7,000, including 80 percent from northwest Michigan donors.

Nancy Ferguson, an enthusiastic trail rider and president of the nonprofit cafe, contacted local rancher Burt Farbman to conduct a charity ride at his Timber Ridge Ranch. Farbman, a frequent diner at The Front Porch, a horseback rider and local philanthropist, agreed to participate. Farbman also suggested the ride be supplemented by a raffle. An anonymous donor kicked in $500, then 1,000 tickets were printed, to be sold as for $5 each or five for $20.

As the date drew near, signs were posted, fliers distributed, T-shirts ordered. But planners discovered the date Sept. 21 conflicted with a number of other activities. Only a few riders signed up. Ferguson and Farbman decided to postpone the ride until spring.

Meanwhile, raffle tickets sold briskly. John Hastings, manager of Ellsworth's Hastings Funeral Home and a past president of The Front Porch, was the star ticket seller. He got very creative with his approach. Early in the process, he solicited a local man to buy a ticket. The man objected. His religion didn't allow him to gamble. Hastings said, "Don't look at it as gambling. Look at it as a donation to a worthy cause." Problem No. 1 solved. Hastings began to write the buyer's name on the ticket stub. The man objected again. "You can't put my name there."

Hastings thought again. He had recently conducted a funeral for an area resident. The deceased died of a sudden heart attack; his wife was left struggling to care for their several children. A while after the funeral, Hastings remained concerned for the family. Now he had an idea: put the widow's name on the ticket. Hastings went on to sell a whopping 670 tickets, many of whom also wrote in the same name, though the intended recipient was never informed.

Ferguson, too, had been busy selling tickets. A few weeks before, she'd had lunch with her "Birthday Biddies" group. Ferguson is a retired language teacher from Ellsworth High School. One of the women with whom she had lunch was Kelli Eggebrecht, of Kewadin. Kelli is retired from teaching special education at Ellsworth schools. Kelli's husband Dave was also a teacher for shop and history at Ellsworth schools. Together, Kelli and Dave taught more than 50 years in Ellsworth. Ferguson sold Kelli a ticket.

Saturday, the scheduled day of the ride, was greeted with heavy grey clouds, chilling wind and drizzle. Organizers were glad they had postponed the trail ride. That afternoon some Front Porch members and others gathered at Timber Ridge Ranch. Suspense mounted as they waited to see whose name would be drawn. Farbman bought several tickets in the name of his grandchildren. Would it be the widow? A grandchild? One of the Birthday Biddies? Someone else?

When cups of hot cider had been consumed, Elizabeth DeKorne, manager of the equestrian program at Timber Ridge, drew the winning ticket: Kelli Eggebrecht. Ferguson phoned to tell her friend she had just won $500 and Eggebrecht was thrilled. Her oldest son Ryan is getting married in the spring. "We'll save it for the church wedding."

The Front Porch cafe is a boon to local residents. It is organized and staffed by several area churches. Many of its workers are volunteers. The restaurant provides breakfast and lunch to those who can't afford it, as well as to those who can. It has become a community center, as well as a magnet for diners who enjoy delicious American fries and cinnamon rolls, along with helping those in need. The operation celebrated its fifth anniversary recently.

Louan Lechler to play Oct. 12

Lechler

The next Back Porch music event featuring folksinger Louan Lechler will be at 7 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 12, at the Charlevoix Senior Center at the corner of Carpenter and Norwood streets.

Lechler grew up in an imaginative and close knit family in Williamston. She is often considered a walking encyclopedia of folklore and a favorite at festivals and events throughout the state.

Lechler will perform for about an hour and a half, then at 8:30 p.m. a circle jam will begin with any musicians and poets in attendance.

Suggested donations at the door are $5-10, which all go to the performer. Soups, coffee and cookies available for no additional charge.

More information is available through Robin and Pam Lince at (231) 622-2944.

OBITUARIES

Phyllis Browe Smith, 72

Phyllis Browe Smith, 72, of Charlevoix, died Saturday, Sept. 28, 2013, at her home.

She was born Dec. 28, 1940, in Detroit, to Wilfred and Florence Mae (Ward) Browe, and in 1958, graduated from St Rita's School in Detroit.

She lived most of her life in the west-side Detroit area.

Phyllis was a data processor and retired from ADP. She moved to Charlevoix in 2006 to help take care of her mother, then made her home there.

Phyllis enjoyed social networking and crocheting, and was a NASCAR and football fan. She was a member of St. Mary's Church in Charlevoix and the Charlevoix Senior Citizens.

Phyllis is survived by her brothers, Ronald W. Browe of Munising and Barry M. (Charlotte) Browe of Horton Bay. She was preceded in death by her parents, and three sisters, Frances Monhollen, Karen Blaz and Marjorie Penfound.

Visitation was from 6-8 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 2, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. Mass of the Resurrection was 12:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 3, at St. Mary's Church in Charlevoix, followed by burial in St. Mary's Cemetery. The Rev. Matthew Wigton was the officiant.

Sign Phyllis' guestbook at www.winchesterfuneralhome.com.

Margaret Ellen (Houze) Wilson, 90

Margaret Ellen (Houze) Wilson, 90, of Charlevoix, died Saturday, Sept. 28, 2013, at her home, with her loved ones.

She was born July 7, 1923, in Point Marion, Pa., to Noel and Pearl (Kincaid) Houze. She graduated from Point Marion High School, and attended business school at the West Virginia Career College in Morgantown, W.Va.

On Dec. 14, 1944, she married Woodrow B. Wilson in Long Beach, Calif. They moved to Charlevoix in 1963. After retiring from the military in 1968, they started the first Sears store in Charlevoix. Maggie also worked as an engineering secretary for Freedman Artcraft, and as a clerk at the Charlevoix City Hall.

She was a member of the Charlevoix Garden Club, and enjoyed playing bridge in several area bridge clubs.

Margaret is survived by her husband, Lt. Col. (Ret.) Woodrow B. Wilson, sons, Steven (Mary) Wilson, Jeffrey A. Wilson; daughters, Laureen (Gene) Brooks, and Moira Martinchek, all of Charlevoix; grandchildren, Jason L. (Kristin) Fetting, Maggie Drury, David C. Drury, Amy E. Martinchek and Angela J. Bingman; six great-grandchildren; brother, Noel (Vera) Houze, of New Geneva, Pa.; and numerous nieces and nephews. She was preceded in death by her grandson, Cory Rice, and four sisters, Noelene Packrone, Ruth Houze, Marie Rodgers and Thelma Graham.

An interment service is planned 1 p.m. Friday, Oct. 11, at Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix.

Memorial contributions may be made to Northwest Michigan Hospice, 220 W. Garfield, Charlevoix, MI 49720; or to the Charlevoix County Humane Society, 614 Beardsley St., Boyne City, MI 49712.

Sign Margaret's guestbook at www.winchesterfuneralhome.com.

Make a splash at the Charlevoix pool

Celebration returns for second year

These girls attended last year's Splash event at Charlevoix Area Community pool and even had their faces painted.

What started with a 15 year celebration of service has blossomed into an annual event.

"Last year was the first year for this event, and we had 300 people come to it," said Jean Musilek, spokeswoman for the Charlevoix Area Community Pool. "Things went so well, and were so successful that we've decided to continue doing this event."

Splash 2013 will be 1-4 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 6, at the pool, along U.S. 31 north of Charlevoix. The event includes two clowns from East Lansing who will perform.

"They do balloon animals and very professional face painting, both of them are absolutely wonderful," Musilek said.

There will be a free open swim session from 1-3 p.m., after which there will be interactive water safety demonstrations.

"We will be putting a canoe in the water with people in it, and then showing people how to escape if the canoe flips," Musilek said. "Water safety is just so important, and how to escape a tipped canoe is not taught very often. You want to avoid being a headline."

An anonymous donor helped fund the event this year, as well as sponsorship from Ace Hardware and Taylor Rental with a donated bounce house and popcorn supplies plus a tent, tables and chairs, respectively.

"This program is a great event. It is a widespread coverage for area demographics and it is going to be phenomenal for families," said Mark Greyerbiehl, who owns Charlevoix Ace Hardware. "This pool is phenomenal. It is a great asset in our community."

Jack Bishop, of Taylor Rental, said he, too, found the pool worthy of community support.

"This is a great service for the community, having a community pool with all its events and activities opens up many opportunities for people."

There will be food available for purchase from Pig Eatin' Ribs, an award-winning barbecue restaurant.

"It's going to be a lot of fun — games, food — we hope to get a lot of families out here swimming and enjoying the water safety demonstrations," Musilek said. "We love working with schools and the community, and it seems more important than ever kids need to learn how to be safe."

ELECTIONS

When he first suggested the idea in early June, Staebler noted that a survey by the Michigan Municipal League showed that of 127 reporting 106 had an appointed clerk, 16 had elected clerks and five did not specify.

"An elected clerk may or may not have the skill set for the job. The duties require strong administrative, written and verbal skills as well as knowledge about the Freedom of Information Act, drafting meeting minutes, archiving, issuing licenses, and a bevy of other professional skills. If the new clerk does not have these skills, they will need to attend training to learn the intricacies of running the clerk's office."

Ochs said she can see benefits of both the elected and the appointed positions.

She added: "One benefit of being elected is you do have a certain amount of autonomy, but it is hard to get someone with the right skill set."

The Nov. 5 election will also feature rematches of some of the races that were contested in the council recall election that took place in May.

In that election, Shirley Gibson unseated Jill Picha in the 3rd Ward, Jeff Porter unseated Dennis Kusina in the 1st Ward and Gabe Campbell unseated Bryan Vollmer in the 2nd Ward. Neither Campbell nor Vollmer filed to appear on the ballot for the 2nd Ward race, but Leon Perron did file and so far is running uncontested. Gibson and Picha and Kusina and Porter all filed to run again in their respective wards.

Although no one else had done so as of press time Thursday, there is still time for city residents to file a declaration to be considered as a write in candidate in the election. The deadline for those filings is 4 p.m. on Friday, Oct. 25.

COURT DATE

According to an affidavit, when asked at the crime scene by police if Booth wanted an attorney, Booth is quoted as saying "I think so. I did something pretty serious."

Booth is housed at the Charlevoix County Jail after her bond was raised Oct. 1 from $50,000 to $100,000. A tether order has also been placed on Booth restricting her to Charlevoix County if she does post bond.

BOSS

cense plates as a fundraiser for the Keep Charlevoix Beautiful effort.

Another of Marilyn Boss' annual rituals which the community looked for each December involved her elaborate Christmas display. Indoors became Santa's Workshop and she decorated more than 30 Christmas trees, along with other festive displays of toys and animated stuffed animals. It's that tradition her family intends to embrace with the community this weekend.

"We are having a Christmas themed open house for Mom this Saturday (Oct. 5) evening starting at 7 p.m. Mom's entire fabulous Christmas scene will be lit at approximately 7:30 p.m.," said Bo Boss, Marilyn's son. "A typical Christmas Eve draws approximately 2,000-3,000 people from all over the North."

It's a fitting way to memorialize the lady who cared so much for Charlevoix, and who also meant so much to Charlevoix herself.

"The family is inviting everyone to come out to the Boss Christmas House to celebrate her life," Bo Boss said. "The family is also challenging anyone who has enjoyed Mom's Christmas scene to light up a string of lights in their own yard on (Saturday) Oct. 5."

The Boss home is at 9336 Pearl St. at North Point in Charlevoix.

Memorial contributions may be made to Keep Charlevoix Beautiful to continue the petunia legacy, or to the Charlevoix Historical Society to continue local history preservation. Send donations to the Keep Charlevoix Beautiful at P.O. Box 1, Charlevoix, MI 49720; or to the Charlevoix Historical Society, 103 State St., Charlevoix, MI 49720.

Rayders top Rams on Senior Night

STEVE FOLEY
Northern Michigan Review

It was Senior Night for the Charlevoix High School varsity soccer team Monday.

Junior midfielder Brendan Britt set up senior Nick Snabes for a goal, then assisted on another before scoring to have a hand in all three Rayder goals as Charlevoix topped Harbor Springs, 3-1, in a Lake Michigan Conference match.

With the win, the Rayders improve to 11-3 overall, 6-2 league.

"It was a very big win for us," Charlevoix coach Jon Boss said. "The guys played well. It was Senior Night for three of our guys and their last home game for their Charlevoix career, it was a nice way to close it out."

Senior Justin Pearl opened the scoring for the Rayders in the first half as he took a crossing feed from Britt after Britt worked the sideline before sending the ball to Pearl at the 18.

After Harbor tied the game in the second half, Britt gave the Rayders the lead as he scored unassisted off a deflection off a corner kick.

Snabes, one of three Rayder seniors including Tomas Tomas and Pearl, finished off the scoring as he scored on another crossing feed from Britt.

JJ Wachler, Christian Matye and Ryan Joy shared the goalkeeping duties, while Boss lauded the defensive effort of freshman sweeper Kevin Pearl.

"He (Pearl) played a smart game and held them to the outside, made some good plays and stopped their attack," Boss said.

Boss also credited Britt, who plays at the right midfield position for the Rayders, for his best offensive game of the year.

"To get a goal and two assists, he played extremely hard," Boss said.

"He gave a strong effort right from the start. It was an exciting game to play, especially against a solid team like Harbor and a nice way for the seniors to go out at home."

For Harbor, John Bailey scored the goal assisted by Jimmy DeCamp.

"Everything was going well and we had many opportunities throughout the game," Harbor Springs coach Ed Fantozzi said. "The kids played hard and emotional."

Andy Morse was in goal for the Rams.

Rayders fall to Kalkaska

DREW KOCHANNY
Northern Michigan Review

KALKASKA — Few teams can win ball games if they can't limit big plays by the opposition.

That was just the case for the Charlevoix football team, as the Rayders gave up four scores of 40 yards or more to Kalkaska on Friday, falling 41-33 in their Lake Michigan Conference meeting.

The Blazers (4-1, 2-1) scored from 44 yards out on the first play of the game, to go along with touchdowns of 49 yards, 91 yards and 78 yards.

"We just gave up big play after big play after big play," Charlevoix coach Ron Bindi said. "You're not going to win very many games when the first play of the game the kid goes 44 yards for a touchdown and then you've got a 49 yard run for a touchdown, 78 yarder and a 91 yard touchdown pass. You're just not going to do it."

The Rayders, 1-4 overall, 0-3 in the Lake Michigan Conference, held their own throughout the first half, answering the Blazers 19-7 lead to take the lead at the half 20-19, thanks to a few big plays of their own.

Charlevoix quarterback Luke Klinger found Nate Moon for an 81 yard touchdown pass and catch and again on a 16 yard touchdown.

Shane Sutherland would put the Rayders up 27-19 in the third on a 21 yard run, but the Blazers would bring in a 91 yard score to tie the game at 27-all early in the fourth. Austin Putman would score on a 33 yard pass from Klinger to again take the lead 33-27, but two straight scores for the Blazers would ultimately decide the game.

Sam Hovie led the Rayders with 99 yards on 16 carries, while Shane Sutherland brought in 83 yards on 16 and two scores. Moon led the Rayders with 104 yards and two scores through the air, with Putman bringing in 78 yards.

Luke Klinger went 5-of-11 passing with 191 yards and three scores to go along with 51 yards rushing. Sutherland also led the Rayders with 16 tackles defensively.

While Bindi thought the Rayders showed improvement, with games against Traverse City St. Francis (3-2) and Boyne City (4-1) to come, he knows there's still areas to be shored up.

"We've got our work cut out for us," he said. "We took care of the penalties and things like that, but the big plays and making the tackles and being in the spots where we needed to be, we did not take care of that at all."

VOLLEYBALL

Charlevoix takes third at Morley Stanwood Invite

STEVE FOLEY
Northern Michigan Review

MORLEY — The Charlevoix High School varsity volleyball team placed third at the Morley Stanwood Invitational Saturday, finishing with a 3-1 record on the day.

The Rayders opened with a 25-13, 25-16, 25-15, win over Lakeview and then topped Montague, 25-20, 25-14, 25-22, to place first in their pool. In the quarterfinals, the Rayders defeated Cedar Springs, 16-25, 25-22, 15-13, to advance to the semifinals against Whitehall.

Whitehall would defeat the Rayders, 25-12, 25-20, in the semifinals.

"This is exciting for the team to play some very competitive teams outside of the competitive Northern Michigan teams we may see," Charlevoix coach Audra Randall said. "The anticipation and expectation is bigger and that is exactly what we want to experience.

"The outcome of a third place finish in a tournament that we had not played a single team, only knew of our past experience at the final four in 2011 but only two players, Madeline Boss and Jennaca Holecheck had played against, we are proud of our accomplishments as a team."

For the Rayders, Holecheck finished with 25 kills, 20 digs and six aces, while Boss added a team-best 61 kills, 13 digs, nine blocks and eight aces.

Also for Charlevoix, Gloria Greene was a perfect 34-of-34 serving with two aces and 24 assists, while Olivia Storm had 44 assists and two aces. Kylie Scholten had 12 kills, Alexis Tribfelner had 17 digs and was 29-of-31 serving while Yogi Hang was lauded for her solid defense and serve receive throughout the day. Randall also credited Madi Carey, Kelsey Pischner and Hannah Zipp for solid play at the net.

Rayders dominate Kalkaska

SHERI MCWHIRTER-O'DONNELL
Courier Editor

The Charlevoix Rayder junior varsity football team dominated the Kalkaska Blazers throughout the home game played Thursday, Sept. 26.

The Rayders got off to a good start in the first quarter with Ben Boss scoring two touchdowns, first a successful 14-yard run and then a 52-yard punt return. That brought the team to a 12-0 score at the end of the first quarter, since neither extra point was good.

The domination continued in the second quarter when quarterback Forrest Norrot completed a 51-yard pass to Ben Boss, who scored his third consecutive touchdown for the Rayders before halftime, again with the extra point no good. In response, the Kalkaska players returned with a 51 yard pass to score their first and only touchdown of the night, sending the teams to the locker rooms with Charlevoix up 18-6.

"The team played their best game of the season. We were able to control the game on both sides of the ball. Ben Boss played a great game; he carried us on his back the first half scoring three touchdowns in three different ways. He is an explosive player," said Charlevoix coach Todd Klinger. "In the second half, it was Hunter Cox's turn to take over running the ball, this was his best game running the ball."

After the return from halftime, Norrot scored Charlevoix's fourth touchdown with a 13 yard run, bringing the score up to 25-6 after Cox kicked an extra point — the first and only extra point of the game for the Rayders.

Then in the fourth quarter, Cox again scored with a 40-yard touchdown bringing the final score to 31-6.

On defense, Malcom Williams racked up 13 tackles, with another five by Justin Adkins and four by Norrot.

"Defensively, we had a great team effort. Other than the long touchdown pass, Kalkaska only gained 86 yards on offense. Malcom Williams seemed to be in on every play, he played very aggressive and is tough for the other team to block. Ben Boss had an interception," Klinger said.

Next up for the junior varsity football players was the Oct. 3 game set against Traverse City's St. Francis. Klinger said earlier this week it will be the team's biggest test of the season.

"It will be exciting for our players to face them," he said.

Read next week's Courier for the game story.

POP WARNER

Teams look to rebound from last week's losses

The Pop Warner Midget and Peewee teams played last Saturday in Bellaire and Petoskey, respectively.

The Charlevoix Rayder Midget team lost to a tough group of Mancelona Ironmen 20-0 in Bellaire. Offensively, it was tough sledding for the Rayders, but Cole Wright and Carson Gauthier were able to grind positive yards out against the stout Mancelona defense. Defensively, the Rayders were stronger than the score indicated, as the Ironmen scored on big plays. Luke Stuck and Wright led the Rayder charge with solid line play and coaches said aside of a few breakdowns, the line was gap sound. The Rayder Midgets come home to Kipke field at 10 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 5, playing against Kalkaska.

The Charlevoix Rayder Peewee division team suffered its first loss of the season, bowing in a classic defensive battle 6-0 to the Petoskey Bulldogs. This game was won in the final seconds and both teams were complimented by officials and fans alike, for playing sound, fundamental football. Offensively, yards were hard to come by, but quarterback Jacob Snyder rose to the occasion, getting tough yards when the team needed them. Max Ostrum and Caleb Stuck lowered their shoulders for the hard fought yards, as well. Defensively, coaches said that the boys played their most complete game of the season. Stalwarts Stuck, Snyder, Ostrum, Jack Benns and Zach Nickel were solid, but coaches pointed to key subs, such as Richie Cunningham, Jacob Kerner-Deyong and Max Dixon as players who rose to the occasion. The Rayder Peewee team will bounce back at 11:30 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 5, against Kalkaska at Kipke Field.

The kids cordially invite the community to come and support them in their continued quest for fun, learning and the opportunity to win and grow together as a team.

OCTOBER IS

Physical Therapy Month

FIT OVER 50

As the body ages, chronic pain and immobility can set in as joints deteriorate, and it can also take longer to recover from illness or injury. Physical therapy is a recognized healthcare practice that can hold some health problems at bay and enable many people to regain mobility and fitness without the use of medication or surgery. Physical therapists (also known as PTs) can help baby boomers with health problems such as arthritis; diabetes; back, neck, shoulder, and knee pain; obesity; fitness; osteoporosis; stroke; repetitive strain injuries; and many more physical conditions.

One inspirational story that illustrates the benefits of physical therapy is that of Famous Amos Cookies founder, Wally Amos. Beset by a pinched nerve in his shoulder several years ago, the dynamic entrepreneur and motivational author was experiencing limited arm mobility and loss of feeling in his hand. With a tailored physical therapy treatment and the individualized attention of Kevin Lockette, PT, Amos was able to recover full movement and return to his exacting business routine. Lockette worked with Amos again in 2009 to help the businessman fully recover from knee surgery. Grateful for the help he received, Amos has since partnered with Lockette to narrate a DVD for physical therapy tips for those suffering from Parkinson's disease.

The APTA's Fittest Cities for Baby Boomers

The American Physical Therapy Association will soon be announcing their list of the nation's fittest cities for baby boomers. According to Jennifer Rondon of the APTA, this event — the culmination of National Physical Therapy Month—is a way to "spread the word that physical therapists can help people age 50 and above remain active, fit, and mobile as they age." To find out whether your city features on the list, visit moveforwardpt.com.

New projects to be proposed

STEVE ZUCKER
Northern Michigan Review

The City of Charlevoix Planning Commission will get its first official look at two notable proposed projects at its next regular meeting set for 7 p.m. on Monday, Oct. 14.

One would create additional housing, the other would offer a glimpse back in time.

The first project is a seven-unit townhouse development proposed for a parcel of property on Pine River Lane, which runs west off of Petoskey Avenue just north of the Weathervane Restaurant.

The development is proposed for a 0.69-acre lot at 115 Pine River Lane by Midtown Development of Traverse City. The development, dubbed by the developers as Charlevoix Pointe, would include seven single-family, 3,198-square-foot units each with three bedrooms, three bathrooms and a two-car garage. The units are proposed to be wood frame construction, 2.5 stories with gable roofs, 30 feet tall and have a stone veneer and shingle lapboard style siding.

The lot on which the development is proposed is zone R-4, high-density residential.

Following its initial introduction at Monday's meeting, the following public hearings on the project are tentatively scheduled:

The planning commission will conduct a public hearing at 6 p.m. on Monday, Oct. 28.

The city council is tentatively slated to conduct a public hearing on the project at 7 p.m. on Monday, Nov. 4.

Both meetings will be in the city council chambers at city hall.

Additional documentation on the project is available under the planning and zoning section on the city's

Sign damage remains a mystery

STEVE ZUCKER
Northern Michigan Review

Charlevoix County Sheriff's office investigators are unsure just exactly what caused the large sign in front of the City of Charlevoix's Mount McSauba Recreation Area to be destroyed earlier this week.

On Monday morning, city officials received a report that the sign had been destroyed. City officials believe the damage happened either late Sunday or early Monday and that it was the work of vandals. However, Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider said the deputy investigating the case believes it the sign could have come down without human help.

Schneider cited the fact that no tire tracks or footprints were found in the area of the sign, that the pieces of the sign were found stacked up along a split rail fence 20 or 30 feet

Charlevoix's 7-11 closes up shop

MEGAN WILSON

A longtime fixture in downtown Charlevoix has closed its doors to the public.

Garb-Ko, Inc. opened the Charlevoix 7-11 in the mid-1980s, where it served the public each and every day for nearly 30 years at the corner of Bridge Street and Belvedere Avenue.

"Garb-Ko, Inc. sold the stores that it owned, and the new owners did not want to continue operating the Charlevoix store," said Larry Hank, Garb-Ko spokesman. "All of our other Northern Michigan stores will continue to operate as usual."

The stores were sold back to 7-11's corporate level. Company officials did not respond to inquiries about the decision to close the Charlevoix store.

"The 7-11 store manager went to another store and the employees were also given that option but declined," Hank said.

The lease on the property is owned by Gluck Properties, LLC, based in Bloomfield Hills, Michigan. The company's registered agent is Alan Gluck, according to online state business records.

Other local business operators shared a sense of disappointment at the loss of a downtown business.

"First of all it's sad. It's very sad. They had a lot of local customers. It's just sad that another one pulled out," said Bob Borths, manager at the Charlevoix Oleson's Markets grocery store.

"It's hard to see any business go down. They were part of the community," said Kay Sealye, owner of Kilwin's in Charlevoix.

Tree light bid comes in under budget

Community Christmas tree to also get new lights

STEVE ZUCKER
Northern Michigan Review

The holiday season will be a little brighter in downtown Charlevoix this year, and for some years to come, thanks to a favorable bid the city recently received to purchase and install lights for several trees in East Park.

City of Charlevoix Economic Development Director Bethany Pearson reported the city received a bid from Holiday Tree Lighting for $11,200 for the purchase and installation of lights in numerous trees in East Park. The bid came in well under the $15,000 budget for the project.

The lights will be placed in five honey locust trees on the extreme western edge of East Park near Bridge Street between Mason and Clinton streets, the trees in the landscaping by the trout pond in the park. The work is expected to take place yet this month.

In September, the council voted 4-2 to approve spending $5,000 of general fund money to be combined with $5,000 from the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority and $5,000 from a private donation to pay for the lighting project.

The initiative grew out of a recent brainstorming session among the downtown development authority board and was kick-started when board member Todd Wyett offered $5,000 of his own money for the project if the authority and the city council would also kick in $5,000 each.

The goal of the project is to fill in an apparent gap in the streetside tree lights that line Bridge Street from just north of Memorial Bridge to the top of Belvedere Avenue. Last fall, a combined effort of downtown merchant and community fundraising matched with money from the downtown development authority paid for a complete replacement of the lights in the trees that lined Bridge Street. However, because the five bigger locust trees on the edge of East Park are technically not street-side trees, they were not included in the program. Therefore, although all the streetside trees were included, the display still appears to have a gap right in the heart of downtown.

The five trees near Bridge Street will be pruned before the lights are installed.

Pearson said city officials and the contractor also worked out a deal that will result in the replacement of the lights in the city's community Christmas tree at the corner of Clinton and Bridge streets.

Pearson said the city electric department planned to replace the lights for the Christmas tree this year and budgeted $2,500 to do so. Holiday Lighting proposed to provide and install the new lights in the tree for $4,000. The lights will remain in the tree year-round for the next three years, which is approximately when city officials are considering replacing the aging large evergreen tree. The money budgeted by the electric department will now be used for the bid from Holiday Lighting, bringing the total cost of the work in East Park to $12,700. Pearson said the leftover $2,300 will be placed in a fund to be used for future repair and maintenance costs for the light display.

City moving forward with Michigan Main Street

STEVE ZUCKER
Northern Michigan Review

The Michigan Main Street Program has had much success in helping communities around the state revitalize downtowns, and Charlevoix's city leaders will soon find out if the same formulas can work in their community.

With a unanimous vote at its regular semi-monthly meeting Monday, the Charlevoix City Council directed city staff to apply to become an associate level member of the program next year. The application deadline is Nov. 1.

At its meeting on Sept. 23, the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority unanimously approved a motion to move forward with the application to the Michigan Main Street Program. However, the application needed the endorsement of the city council before program officials would consider it.

In August, a representative of the Main Street program hosted a public information forum about the program at Charlevoix Public Library. During that meeting, the representative said Charlevoix would almost certainly be accepted to the program if it chose to apply.

The program will include several training sessions for community leaders — both officials and volunteers — during which they will learn about the Main Street Program and how to implement its main principles.

Technical assistance and other services are provided by the program to train staff members and volunteers in the aspects of design, economic restructuring, promotion and organization. Participation in the program benefited other communities by: creating new jobs, attracting new businesses, enhancing a positive community image, increasing investment in the downtown, preserving historic resources, protecting and strengthening the existing tax base and improving visual appeal and economic viability. So far, the program proved successful in many cities throughout the state. Perhaps the best known Northern Michigan example is Boyne City, which just celebrated its 10-year anniversary of the program's launch in that community. Other Michigan cities in which the program showed success include Grand Haven, Manistee, Calumet and Lansing.

City economic development director Bethany Pearson said Charlevoix is under no obligation to continue with the program if its leaders decide it is not a good fit for the community. However, if city officials want to continue in the program, the city would apply to be accepted as a "Select" member. This would give the local Main Street program access to extensive resources of the program, but would also require the city to hire a full-time Main Street program manager. Main Street officials have noted that in many cases cities that have a downtown development authority simply convert that board to a Main Street board and its director to the Main Street program director.

Before approving the resolution of support, a few council members expressed concern about the project. Council members Jeff Porter and Shirley Gibson said they both had sensed some hesitation on the part of some downtown development authority board members surrounding the amount Apples like these grown at Friske Orchards in rural Charlevoix will be available at the 35th annual Charlevoix Apple Fest.

Bring your bushels

Charlevoix's Apple Fest returns today

SHERI MCWHIRTER-O'DONNELL
Courier Editor

Applesauce, apple butter, apple pie, apple crisp, apple cider and even caramel apples — all that is possible since it's apple week in Charlevoix.

The 35th annual Charlevoix Apple Fest kicks off today, Friday, Oct. 11, in downtown's East Park. The long-running autumn festival is meant to celebrate the apple and the local growers who bring America its favorite fruit.

"This has been a really nice growing season for fruit farmers, and a nice growing season means high quality fruit," said Sara McGuire, who owns Royal Farms in Atwood.

That means this is the season to stock up on bushels of apples for baking, canning and other fall recipes. More than 30 varieties of apples will be available for shoppers at the festival.

Also, there will be a large art and crafts show with 125 vendors in East Park. A block up the road, children's activities will be planned for Bridge Park, including face painting, pony rides by Liberty Valley Ranch and a petting zoo hosted by Charlevoix County 4-H.

The Apple Fest Family Fun Run to benefit Charlevoix Kiwanis Youth Foundation will begin at 9 a.m. Saturday, with the annual 5k to begin at 9:20 a.m. Register online at www.active.com or learn more at www.charlevoixkiwanis.org.

Festival hours are 10 a.m.-6 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Oct. 11-12, and 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 13. Call (231) 547-2101 for more details.

Ferry overhaul goes over budget; construction headaches blamed

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

A complicated engineering plan, rewiring and replacing a 41-year-old engine all contributed to extra costs to renovate the Ironton Ferry, found a meeting of the Charlevoix County Transportation Authority Tuesday afternoon.

The Transportation Authority estimated $200,000 for the renovation project, and spent $276,264, said Cherie Potter Browe, Charlevoix County clerk. For the fiscal year ending Sept. 30, the Transportation Authority, which oversees the Ironton Ferry, has spent $412,203 for the renovation and operation of the ferry, but the Ironton Ferry's revenue was only $148,284. Now, its fund balance has about a $16,000 deficit.

All of the funds that pay for the ferry's operation and its rebuild come out the money the ferry makes in fees, said Charlevoix County commissioner Rich Gillespie, who also serves on the Transportation Authority and spearheaded the renovations.

During its regular meeting on Wednesday, the county board of commissioners voted unanimously to move $10,000 from the county's general contingency fund to the Transportation Authority's fund, as well as bill the Charlevoix County Road Commission another $10,000. That would give the ferry fund $4,000 to operate through the end of the year.

"We were shooting an arrow into the sky," said Gillespie, about estimating the overhaul's expense.

The ferry's rehabilitation included rewiring, a new hydraulic engine, placing the wheelhouse over to the side of the ferry rather than in the middle of the ferry's deck and mounting the engine to the deck of the ferry rather than beneath the deck. The work was started while the ferry was getting its five-year inspection by the Coast Guard.

"We were informed a little over a year ago that the ferry had many deficiencies, without considering that the propulsion needed replacement," Gillespie later added in an email.

"These things had been patched up over many years, gaining approval (from the Coast Guard), but were at their end. The ship's wiring, for example, was over 50 years old."

The Transportation Authority bid the engineering project out to a marine engineering company, Seacraft Design, of Sturgeon Bay, Wisc., which then handed the project to what Gillespie called a "surrogate" in the company, which caused "many delays and ultimately more money," he said.

"This was not like taking a car to a dealer — a very unique situation," said Gillespie.

The ferry usually begins services in April, but the delays pushed the start to mid-June.

"We missed Memorial Day, which would have been significant — not huge," said Gillespie. "But I don't think we'd be here."

Browe said she thought making it through the season with a fund balance intact would be "very, very close" had the ferry opened on time.

Other commissioners worried that $4,000 was not much in the Ironton Ferry budget.

"Is this the only transfer of money that is needed to get us through the season?" asked commissioner Chris Christensen. "... The remaining $4,000 could get eaten up between now and the end of November, before Thanksgiving."

The ferry usually stops services that time of year.

"The way I was looking at it, I think we can make it through the end of November," said Browe. "My bigger concern is opening up in April ... We have one large bill in question. If we have to pay that, we may have to have a larger cash infusion. If we do not have to pay that, I think it will be fine."

Tyranny of the comparative

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

We are rightly wary of the promises politicians make before elections, and generally, do not expect them to be carried out. I am more concerned with the promises and statements made after they begin serving as legislators. Outright lies are comparatively rare, but distortion of the truth is nearly universal.

One of the major ways language can be used corruptly is by depending on comparative adjectives. We are all familiar with lower taxes as a goal. Less government regulation is made to seem desirable. Smaller government certainly must be worthwhile! Less welfare appeals to many who do not depend on it. Greater amounts of freedom and liberty are easy promises. I have noticed that in almost all of these cases, the actual amount of taxes, liberty, regulation, freedom, health care or welfare, remains unspecified.

I await the first politician to specify precisely which taxes should be lower and by how much. We do, after all, need some taxes, some regulation and some freedom. Maybe we should abandon the comparative adjectives in political speech.

Maybe it is a lifetime of numbers and measurements in science that has corrupted my thinking, but I always want to ask the political person exactly how and in what way health care would be made better, or exactly how small government can be made without chaos. We actually need taxes and government agencies to function as a society. The question should be about specifics.

Be wary of politicians' use of comparative terms. Less government is not a promise. It is not even a goal. It just sounds good and might help someone get re-elected. They know that for each of us there is some part of government we do not like.

The ultimate conservatism is to go back to the founders and ask what they had in mind. I like to go back to Benjamin Franklin. In what is only an approximate quote, he said of one of the other founders, "He has nothing at heart but the good of mankind." Boy, do we need a politician with that sort of conservatism.

I realize that I am breaking my own rules, but maybe what we need is fewer lifetime politicians. In this case, I would be happy to specify which ones we could do without.

Roger Knutson is a professor emeritus of biology from Luther College in Decorah, Iowa, where he taught for 30 years. He holds master's degree and a doctorate from the botany department at Michigan State University.

LETTER to the editor

Oktoberfest committee thanks participants, community

Editor:

Oktoberfest is off and running literally and figuratively. The day was warm, the music was great, the games were fun and the food was delicious — everything that was needed for a successful Oktoberfest. This year's Oktoberfest included the "Paws of Thunder Dachshund Dash," a crowd favorite that brought on the cheers and laughs of all weiner dog race fans.

Many thank yous to the City of Charlevoix for its help in supplying time and equipment needed for the successful Oktoberfest. Thank you to the downtown businesses owners for your cooperation regarding street and parking lot closures. Thank you to all who came to Oktoberfest and supported with your dollars, suggestions and encouragement. We would like to personally thank all the bands, Gary Stutsman and the Charlevoix High School band, Pine River Band, Ev Wojcik and Northwest Academy Jazz Band. Also, we want to thank Andy's, Cross Fisheries, Auto Value, all the advertisers, Village Graphics and Keweenaw Excursions for the fall color tour and collecting non-perishables for our local food pantries.

Oktoberfest Committee members began planning Oktoberfest 2014 and has tentatively set the date for future Oktoberfests as the last Saturday or September. That falls on Sept. 27 in 2014.

The Oktoberfest Committee would like to thank everyone who participated, advertised, entertained and gave of their time to make Oktoberfest 2013 fun and successful.

Margie Tamminga and the Oktoberfest Committee

LOOKING BACK...

Albert Loeb of Chicago vice president of Sears Roebuck, built Loeb Farms a couple of miles south of Charlevoix from 1916 to 1918 as a working farm on which the latest in agricultural technology was tested before Sears offered it to the national farming industry. The farm's products, offered to the general public, were considered to be some of the finest to be found anywhere. But the national farm economy began to sour in 1927, a precursor of what was to happen two years later, and Loeb Farms ceased to exist in 1928. The farm buildings began then slow, inexorable slide to ruin. A partial reprieve occurred when metal sculptor John van Haver bought them for a studio/gallery in the mid 1960s and called the complex Castle van Haver. Then local judge Art Reibel purchased the land for an outdoor concert venue called Castle Farms that began in 1973 and lasted nineteen years. Entertainment greats such as Willie Nelson, Tina Turner, the Beach Boys and Chicago all came to Charlevoix, 120 of the greatest acts of the era. After this ended, the buildings almost went beyond the point of no return. But Linda and Richard Mueller of Mississippi and Charlevoix saw the potential at the beginning of the new century. The determined, visionary couple brought Castle Farms back to a restored splendor that it had never seen before, now one of the most magnetic showplaces of Northern Michigan.

The Charlevoix Photography Club recently announced the winner of the People's Choice Award for the fifth annual photography show at Charlevoix Circle of Arts in downtown Charlevoix.

The nonprofit arts organization introduced the award two years ago to allow visitors at the gallery express their opinions about which entry is best. This year's voting was done only by those who viewed the show in person, including 228 votes.

This year's winner of the People's Choice Award is Gary Gee for his entry titled "Morning's Spell." On another note, show juror Paul Retherford chose Gee's photograph titled "Detroit Flyby" for the Best in Show Award.

The winning entry received 17 votes and of the 146 photograph submissions, 81 received at least one people's choice vote.

"This diversity in the voting indicates the great depth of artistic talent that was in the show," said Brice Voran, coordinating committee member. "Comments on the ballots indicated that visitors found it difficult to choose one image to vote for. We think that the voting for the People's Choice Award enhances visitors' enjoyment of the art we presented."

Craft show planned to benefit Charlevoix Christmas project

A benefit craft show is planned to raise funds for the annual Charlevoix Community Christmas project.

The juried craft show is scheduled for Saturday, Nov. 16, at Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix, at the corner of U.S. 31 and Meech Street. Table fees will be donated to the fund that pays for the Charlevoix Community Christmas program.

Those interested in registering for the juried craft show should call Karen Wolletz at (231) 536-9929 for more information.

Pumpkin Festival returns for its fourth year of fun

MEGAN WILSON
Courier Contributor

What began as a small group of people plotting out a day's worth of activities has blossomed into a full-blown event.

Fall is here, and it's time for the fourth annual East Jordan Pumpkin Festival.

"Four years ago there were three people who just decided to throw something together in a month, and it has been going on since then," said Shannon Fender with the East Jordan Area Chamber of Commerce.

The pumpkin festival offers activities for all, and will be taking place from 1-4 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 19.

Included in the day's events are a pie baking contest, pumpkin bowling, music by Full Circle in the band shell, and the Leaf Peekers Craft Show — not to mention games for the kids.

"Last year we had an absolute beautiful weather forecast for the event, and we probably had 600-800 people come in for the festival," said Mary Faculak, organizer of the festival. "This festival is great for kids. Most of the events are aimed at kids and are either free or low cost."

One of the festival's main events includes the Leaf Peekers Craft Show. The show runs from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. in the 100 block of Main Street, and at the East Jordan Civic Center, 101 Civic Center Lane.

"We usually have between 25-30 crafters. This is a nice show to come and get some quality hand-crafted items," said Fender, who organizes the craft show.

Local businesses are enthusiastic about the festival, saying that it promotes the city and offers wholesome activities for kids to do.

"Since the advertisements from Pure Michigan, things have been a lot busier. It's very good to see a lot of people in town," said Barb Price from the Busy Bridge. "We're looking forward to the pumpkin festival."

The East Jordan Community Church will be sponsoring the kids games, which will feature two new games this year.

"Two new games will be part of the festivities: Nine Square In The Air and Octo-Ball. There are YouTube videos of both of the games available online," said Faculak.

Taking place at the same time as the Pumpkin Festival will be the scarecrow competition, positioning scarecrows all over downtown and in the residential area of East Jordan.

"This is our first time participating in the festival, we're pretty excited about the whole thing, we've got some creative girls here," said Nicole Imel of Essence Hair Salon. "I think that a lot of the people like the fall festivals, and they provide good activities for everyone to participate in, it's a good way for the community to get together."

Another one of the festival's events is the pie-baking contest, which takes place in Memorial Park, 101 Spring St. Pies may be baked at home and brought at 2 p.m. to the park for judging.

"I'd like to thank all the many sponsors, groups, and volunteers that make this event possible," said Faculak. "We'd also like to thank the city of East Jordan for its support and cooperation as well."

Betty Jo Hudson, 82

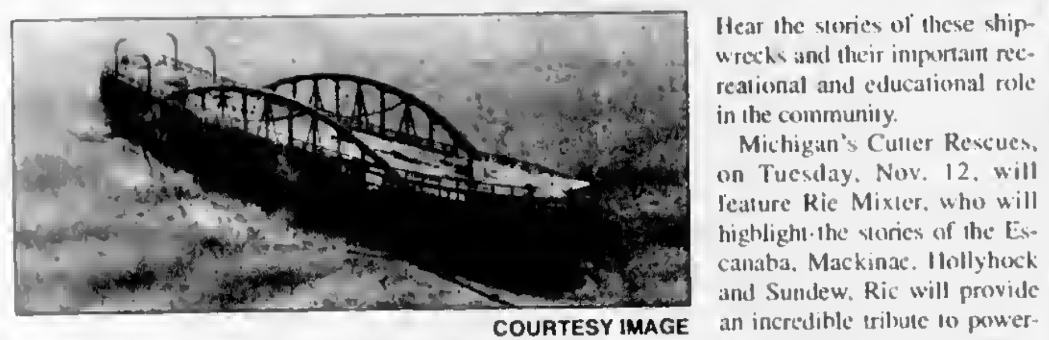
Betty Jo Hudson passed away peacefully on October 4, 2013 at the age of 82. Born in Muncie, Indiana she was preceded in death by her parents, Carl and Lottie Hudson, her brother, Bob and sister-in-law, Wilma. She is survived by her life partner, Barbara Young, nephew, Jim (Louise) Hudson, nieces Ruth Ann (Jim) Upchurch, Patricia (Dave) Causemaker, Cynthia Gatterdam, sister-in-law, Sherry Whaley, numerous grand nieces and nephews, many dear friends and her beloved cats, Selene and Hecate.

Betty Jo received her Bachelors and Masters degrees from Ball State University and went on to have a distinguished career in higher education administration. She taught at the secondary and college level and was a residence hall director and university administrator at Ball State University and Indiana State University. In 1972, Betty Jo came to The Ohio State University to pursue a graduate degree in Higher Education Administration. She was soon promoted from graduate administrative assistant to Assistant Dean for Student Affairs in University College and served as the only woman on the Dean's cabinet of senior administrators. In 1988, Betty Jo became the Ohio State University Ombudsman, the first non-faculty appointment to that position. She was committed to rename the office and position to reflect gender neutrality and was instrumental in accomplishing this both on a local and national level. Betty Jo was a very active contributor to numerous professional service organizations, including Alpha Lambda Delta National Honor Society (serving as national president from 1988-1991), Altrusa International, Columbus Literacy Council, Mortar Board National Honor Society and the National Association for Women Deans, Administrators and Counselors. Throughout her professional career at Ohio State, Betty Jo's exemplary contributions were recognized with many honors, including three separate Distinguished Service Awards, the Women's Leadership Award and the establishment of the Betty Jo Hudson Humanitarian Award. These accomplishments exemplify a life-long dedication to promoting diversity, inclusiveness and equality within the university and throughout the community. After her retirement from Ohio State, Betty Jo found great pleasure traveling with friends and family, building a beautiful home on Torch Lake (Michigan), teaching an exercise class for seniors in Elk Rapids, MI and volunteering for Big Brothers/Big Sisters and the Antrim County Democratic women.

In lieu of flowers please consider making a donation in Betty Jo's memory to AC Paw, PO BOX 94, Acme, MI 49610 or the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan, 423 Porter St., Petoskey, MI 49770. Memorial services will be held in Michigan and Columbus, Ohio at a time to be determined.

Arrangements have been handled by the Central Lake Chapel of Mortensen Funeral Homes. Please sign her online guestbook www.mortensenfuneralhomes.com.

Shipwrecks on agenda at library



COURTESY IMAGE

This is a computer-generated image of the sunken Westmoreland in Lake Michigan.

The Charlevoix Public Library is pleased to announce the schedule for their fall lecture series focusing on Great Lakes Shipwrecks. The Shipwreck Series will be presented at 6:30 p.m. on Tuesday evenings beginning Oct. 15, with Search for the Westmoreland. Oct. 29 brings History Above and Below the Waves, and then concludes on Nov. 12 with Michigan's Cutter Rescues. All programs will be hosted in the Community Room at the library, 220 W. Clinton St., Charlevoix.

Search for the Westmoreland: Lake Michigan's Treasure Ship, on Tuesday, Oct. 15, will feature author and shipwreck hunter Ross Richardson. Ross will be exploring the legend, history and discovery of Lake Michigan's treasure shipwreck. On Dec. 7, 1854, the Propeller Westmoreland foundered in deep water near Sleeping Bear Dunes, killing seventeen of her crew and passengers. Soon after the passenger steamer's sinking, rumors began circulating of $10,000 in gold coins in her safe and 280 barrels of whiskey in her hold. For the next 150 years, the Westmoreland was one of the most sought-after shipwrecks in all the Great Lakes, eluding salvagers, treasure-hunters and divers alike.

History above and below the Waves: Thunder Bay National Marine Sanctuary, on Tuesday, Oct. 29, features Jeff Gray, Sanctuary Superintendent, for an evening exploring the maritime heritage of Thunder Bay. Located in northwestern Lake Huron, Thunder Bay is adjacent to one of the most treacherous stretches of water within the Great Lakes system. Unpredictable weather, murky fog banks, sudden gales and rocky shoals earned the area the name "Shipwreck Alley." Today, the 448-square-mile Thunder Bay National Marine Sanctuary protects one of America's best-preserved and nationally-significant collections of shipwrecks. Hear the stories of these shipwrecks and their important recreational and educational role in the community.

Michigan's Cutter Rescues, on Tuesday, Nov. 12, will feature Ric Mixter, who will highlight the stories of the Escanaba, Mackinac, Hollyhock and Sundew. Ric will provide an incredible tribute to powerful cutters that protect our inland seas. Ric was invited to break out the Soo Locks aboard the Mighty Mac and also toured on the Sundew during its final winter run near Duluth. This lecture also chronicles the amazing rescues of the shipwrecks Cedarville, Nordmeer, Henry Cort and Carl D. Bradley, including never-before-seen newsreel footage.

For more information about the Shipwreck Series or other events at Charlevoix Public Library, contact the information desk at (231) 237-7340, or go to www.charlevoixlibrary.org online.

St. Mary's Altar Society hosts fundraiser

St. Mary's Rosary Altar Society of Charlevoix will host its inaugural card party luncheon social from 1-4 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 27, at St. Mary's Parish Church, 1003 Bridge St. in Charlevoix.

Admission will cost $5 at the door, which includes lunch and an array of card and board games. Raffle tickets will be sold at the event for a can raffle, as well as a 50-50 drawing.

The luncheon menu includes chili, rolls and a meat and cheese assortment. Coffee, apple cider and desserts also will be available.

Event committee members are Georgann Lindberg, Joan Lemerand, Pat Philips, Kathy Rische and Eleanor Sadowski.

Reservations for the luncheon, along with preferred games, can be made by calling the event committee members or sending email to Lemerand@netscape.com. Lemerand is at (231) 547-2783, Rische at (231) 599-2056, and Philips at (231) 347-3607. The deadline for reservations is Thursday, Oct. 24, though walk-in players will be welcomed.

Realtors honored

Two Charlevoix realtors received awards at the September general membership meeting of the Antrim Charlevoix Kalkaska Association of Realtors.

Agency president Mark Snyder presented the Realtor Emeritus Award to William L. Dietrich, of Real Estate One in Charlevoix. The designation is the most prestigious and highest honor that can be bestowed on a member by the National Association of Realtors. Anyone who has maintained membership in the national organization for a cumulative period of 40 years in one or more associations is eligible for the status.

Dietrich joined the National Association of Realtors, the Michigan Association and the Antrim Charlevoix Kalkaska Association in July 1973. He has made a valuable and lasting contribution to the real estate profession in the community during the last four decades.

Secondly, Snyder presented Mark D. Knapp, of Coldwell Banker Schmidt Realtors, with the Outstanding Service Award in appreciation for his decades of tireless efforts and significant contributions to the local association and the Northern Michigan MLS. Snyder described Knapp as one who "exemplifies the true spirit of serving" and noted how each individual member of the local association and the Northern Michigan MLS during the past 30 years has benefitted from Knapp's dedication and service to the real estate profession.

The meeting took place at the Charlevoix Country Club.

Charlevoix student wins Apple Fest design contest

COURTESY PHOTO

Elizabeth "Ellie" Way is the winner of the 35th annual Charlevoix Apple Fest shirt design competition.

Elizabeth "Ellie" Way, 15, a junior at Charlevoix High School, is this year's winner of the annual Charlevoix Apple Fest shirt design competition.

The contest is annually sponsored by the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce and the design is printed onto clothing available during the three-day festival. Ellie is the daughter of Ron and Jill Way of Charlevoix.

"Apple Fest has been around since I was little so it has become a family tradition to go down and enjoy all of the fun things going on. My favorite part is hunting down the best caramel apple and enjoying every minute of it," Ellie said.

Students in John Guirey's high school two-dimensional design class put their creative skills to the test to produce a variety of designs for the 2013 design contest. Several students submitted entries for the contest, but Ellie's stood out from the rest.

"I think it is important for students to see how art is incorporated into our everyday life and plus, it is always good to see the community support our student-artists," Guirey said.

The 35th annual Charlevoix Apple Fest will start today, Friday, Oct. 11, and continue through Sunday, Oct. 13. Shirts with the winning design can be purchased at the chamber's booth in East Park.

Festival hours are 10 a.m.-6 p.m. Friday and Saturday, and 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Sunday. Visit www.charlevoix.org online or call (231) 547-2101 for more information.

Ellsworth students aim high with science

Ellsworth Community School students created science experiments that are literally out of this world.

"Our goal is to get kids excited about science and learning about space. Our experiments will be flown to the edge of our atmosphere. JPAerospace is the company that sends 6-10 missions flown by weather balloons or rockets per year up to the edge of space," said Jenny Diebold, first grade teacher. "The students' experiments must fit inside a ping pong ball, called PongSats. Their experiments can be anything. Something simple like candy or marshmallows to complex like electronics."

Diebold said the restrictions are few and include no live animals, no chemicals and nothing heavier than 3 ounces.

"The PongSats will fly to 100,000 feet and be exposed to temperatures down to 130 degrees below zero Celsius. At their highest altitude, near vacuum condition exist," Diebold said.

Students were challenged to think about what effects these conditions would have on their experiments. Some first graders thought their small toys would get bigger, while one fourth grader thought he would send Red Hots to see if they would still be hot when they returned.

"The PongSats will launch on Oct. 12 and will be returned to us along with data about the flight and a video and certificates for all participants," Diebold said.

More information about this program is available at www.jpaerospace.com/pongsat online.

'Woolbur' feature of reading program

The Charlevoix Public Library offers special programs for toddlers and children during the 2013 Michigan Reads! event.

Michigan Reads! is an annual early literacy program focused on a featured book. For 2013, the book is "Woolbur" by Michigan author Leslie Helakoski.

The library is offering events leading up to an author visit at 10:30 a.m. on Wednesday, Oct. 16, with Leslie Helakoski: story hour for birth to 5-year-olds, 10:30 a.m. every Thursday, 10:30 a.m. Saturday Play Group on Oct. 12.

The Michigan Reads! program is modeled after the "One Book, One Community" concept and is designed to emphasize the importance of shared reading practices with babies, toddlers, preschoolers and young school-aged children.

In "Woolbur," the pages of the book are full of movement and activity as a lamb named Woolbur finds creative ways to go about his day. When Woolbur is asked to do things, he finds original ways to accomplish everyday tasks and shares his ideas with others.

Focusing on the importance of reading to young children, author Leslie Helakoski said, "I was heavily influenced by the books that were read to me when I was young. I still am. It's an honor to be part of this program."

More information about "Michigan Reads!" including dates and locations of author visits and materials for parents, teachers and caregivers is available at www.michigan.gov/michiganreads.

SIGN

from the sign posts, and the fact that the wood that makes up the sign appeared to be old and rotted.

Schneider said one neighbor in the area reported hearing some kind of noise outside around 3 a.m. Monday.

He said the incident remains under investigation.

Weather reports from the Charlevoix Municipal Airport station listed by the National Weather Service showed at 2:35 a.m. Monday the winds were out of the west at about 14 mph with gusts to 20 mph. About 24 hours prior, the same weather station recorded winds out of the east sustained at about 17 mph with gusts above 25 mph.

Believing the damage was the work of vandals, Charlevoix City Manager Rob Straehel reported the damage to the city council at its regular semi-monthly meeting Monday evening. At the end of the meeting, the council approved offering a $250 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of those responsible for the damage.

It expected that the sign will cost several thousand dollars to replace.

Contacted by the News-Review Wednesday, Straehel said he was not aware of any information coming in following the reward offer Monday night. He said he also wasn't aware of the sheriff's investigator's opinion that the damage might not have been caused by vandals. He did agree that the wood that made up the sign was in poor condition.

Schneider asked that anyone with information on the damage to the sign contact his office at (231) 547-4461.

PROJECTS

website, www.cityofcharlevoix.org.

The second proposal, while smaller in physical size, might be just as interesting to area residents.

City planning director Mike Spencer will be presenting a preliminary plan by the Charlevoix Historical Society that could complete one of the organization's long-standing goals: To bring in a railroad car to have on display at its Depot building adjacent to Depot Beach.

Society board president Denise Fate said Wednesday that bringing a rail car to the site has been a desire of the society since it acquired the property in the early 1990s. Fate said the society kept an eye out for an opportunity for many years and now is in negotiations to possibly acquire a train caboose to be placed near the Depot. She said the plan is still in its preliminary phases and further details would be available if and when the deal is finalized. She said the society wanted to make sure it had the blessing of city officials before proceeding.

The tentative plan calls for the 30 by 10-foot train car to be placed on a set of rails and ties on society property immediately south of the Depot building. Fate said the rail car's placement would have little impact on views in the area. She said the car being considered is in good condition, and after a small amount of refurbishing, the society would like to open it up as an attraction at the site.

Spencer said his belief is the project is something he could administratively review and will not require a complete site plan review. However, he said he wants to run it past the planning commission for input.

Fate said if the project gets the blessing of the city and a deal can be struck, society officials are hoping the caboose might be in place yet this year. She said the society will need to do some fundraising to offset the cost of purchasing, transporting, placing and refurbishing the train car.

of time that would be required for Pearson to work on the program and the effect that program might have on downtown property and business owners.

Pearson explained there was some misunderstanding in earlier discussions. She said while she will be heavily involved in the application process in the coming weeks, when it comes down to getting started in the program, there will need to be "buy-in" from community leaders and volunteers. She said the program is heavily dependent upon volunteers. She said most if not all of the downtown business owners she's spoken with have been supportive of the program, and noted the program puts no obligations on downtown business or property owners, like establishing a historic district would.

Rayders fall to T.C.

Charlevoix quarterback Luke Klinger was 8-of-20 passing for 94 yards and had a 4-yard touchdown pass to Will Telgenhof Friday as the Rayders fell to Traverse City St. Francis, 49-7, in a non-league contest. Charlevoix will play host to Boyne City in a Lake Michigan Conference contest at 7 p.m. Friday, Oct. 11, at Kipke Field.

TRAVERSE CITY — The Charlevoix football team dropped their fifth straight game on Friday, as the Rayders fell to Traverse City St. Francis, 49-7, in a non conference meeting on the road.

Charlevoix, now 1-5 overall and 0-3 in the Lake Michigan Conference, kept the game a respectable 21-7 at half, but would let the Gladiators pile on 28 unanswered points in the second half.

"We felt we could do some things but we just missed some tackles all over the place. We were not ready to play," Charlevoix coach Ron Bindi said.

The Rayders lone score came on a 4 yard pass from Luke Klinger to Will Telgenhof.

Klinger finished up 8-of-20 passing with 94 yards and one score, while Nate Moon was the leading receiver with three catches for 58 yards. Austin Putman and Shane Sutherland led the Rayders defensively.

Next week, Charlevoix will welcome cross town rival Boyne City, 5-1, 3-0, in what looks to be yet another tough conference meeting with the Ramblers.

"We've got a good one against Boyne City. It's going to be a tough one for us," Bindi said. "I know the kids are going to be fired up about, the coaches will be fired up about it. It's a rivalry game."

Kickoff at Kipke field is set for 7 p.m. Friday, Oct. 11.

NORTHPORT — Nick Snabes led the Charlevoix High School boys' varsity soccer team with four goals and two assists during an 8-0 non-league win over Northport Monday.

"The team played real well," Charlevoix coach Jon Boss said as his team improves to 13-2 overall. "We have put together seven consecutive wins late in the season and we want to keep the momentum going."

Wes Crandall scored what proved to be the game-winning goal assisted by Walker Trost.

"With an injury to J.J. Wachler, we have moved some players into new positions while finding a tender," Boss said. "Christian Matye has played well in goal while Justin Pearl and Ryan Joy have made adjustments."

Also for Charlevoix, Brendan Britt and Vladi Barneveld each had one goal, while Justin Pearl had two assists and Kevin Pearl added one assist.

"We have another match up at Elk Rapids on Thursday (today)," Boss added. "They lead the conference and it would be nice to get a win there after a loss at our place earlier this season."

Last Thursday in Grayling, freshman center midfielder Christian Matye scored a pair of goals including the game winner in overtime as the Rayders topped Grayling, 3-2, Thursday in a Lake Michigan Conference match.

With the win, the Rayders improved to 7-2 in the Lake Michigan Conference.

"We've been playing exceptionally well as a team recently," Boss said. "It's encouraging to see. We're getting closer to forcing a tie for second place with Grayling in the league standings."

The game was delayed close to an hour after just the first five minutes were played because of lightning.

HARBOR SPRINGS — Fast and powerful.

The Charlevoix volleyball team proved to be both on Tuesday in a Lake Michigan Conference match against Harbor Springs, winning in three sets over the Rams.

The Rayders, now 24-11-1 overall and 4-2 in league games, came out fast, winning the first match of the night 25-14, then were able to hold on with wins back-to-back wins of 25-19.

"The girls are working on coming out fast and intense, which in our match against Harbor we did," Charlevoix coach Audra Randall said. "Although we had some rotation changes, we still maintained a focus."

Harbor moves to 6-19-1 overall, with a 1-5 record in Lake Michigan Conference play.

"Charlevoix is obviously a very good team," Harbor Springs coach Mike Crawford said. "We dug up some real nice shots tonight. I'm really happy with that. We just couldn't keep up with their power. Just were not quite competitive enough."

For Harbor Springs, Brooke Paige finished with five assists and three aces, Emily Lesky had five assists, Sydney Elkins 11 kills and Stephanie Sylvain had three kills.

For Charlevoix, Madeline Boss led the Rayders with 20 kills, 10 digs and three aces, Gloria Greene had 13 assists and Olivia Storm brought in nine assists and three digs, while going 100 percent from the serve line. Jennaca Holecheck added a strong night with five kills, two aces and two blocks, while Alexis Tribfelner had seven digs and Emily Zabowa and Hannah Zipp both had two kills apiece.

"We continue to work on spreading our offense and playing better unforced error ball," Randall added. "This was a nice bounce back from our Traverse City St. Francis match last Thursday."

The Rams will play next on Tuesday, Oct. 15, against Elk Rapids at home, while the Rayders will welcome Kalkaska at home on Tuesday.

In the JV match, Harbor Springs won in two sets over Charlevoix. The Rams won the first set 25-23 and second set 25-8. Charlevoix would however take the third set from the Rams 15-13.

Last Thursday, the Rayders dropped a league match to Traverse City St. Francis, 25-15, 25-20, 31-29.

"The girls came into the match with a lot of high expectations of themselves, but struggled through the first two sets before rally stepping up their games," Randall said. "I am proud as a coach that they kept playing in that third set right from the start knowing that the game of volleyball has some interesting momentum changes and their hard work could pay off."

For the Rayders, Boss finished with 19 kills and five digs, while Holecheck and Kylee Scholten had six kills apiece. Scholten, Hannah Zipp and Gloria Greene had three blocks apiece, while Greene added 18 assists and Olivia Storm had nine assists.

CROSS COUNTRY

Rayders place second to Northmen at Belvedere Run

It is all uphill from here.

Both the Petoskey and Charlevoix High School cross country teams took strides towards their respective conference championships next week, as they faced off in a three-team Belvedere Run meet Tuesday.

The Northmen earned wins on both the boys and girls sides in the meet which took place at the Belvedere Golf Club.

Petoskey finished first with 31 points from the girls' team and 24 points from the boys' team.

Charlevoix collected second place finishes with 33 points from the girls and 31 from the boys, while the third team, Elk Rapids, finished with 73 from their girls' team and an incomplete from their boys' team, with just four runners.

"I think we ran better than I expected coming in and we're continually getting better," Petoskey coach Jim Harrington said. "Our warmup was good, our preparation was really good, everyone really ran pretty well. Overall, everybody improved today and we're heading in the right direction heading into regionals."

Petoskey's Mark Smith finished first overall for the boys with a time of 16:09, while Charlevoix's Tristan Rudolph brought in a second place, 16:33 finish.

Monty Finch of Elk Rapids took third in a time of 16:37.7, Max Meyerson of Petoskey, fourth at 16:37.9 and Jackson Buday of Charlevoix in fifth with a time of 16:40.

For the girls, Charlevoix standout Amber Way lit up the course with a first place finish of 16:43. Petoskey's Lily Cesario took second at 18:43.8 and Logan Lackett of Elk Rapids third with a time of 19:27. Sydney Hopp and Megan Wilson, both of Petoskey, finished fourth and fifth respectively with times of 20:15 and 21:23.

DREW KOCHANNY

Charlevoix's Amber Way leads the pace during the girls' run Tuesday at Belvedere Golf Club in Charlevoix. Way won the girls race in 16 minutes, 43 seconds.

Extreme swimmer to appear in Northern Michigan

CHRIS ENGLE
Northern Michigsn Review

GAYLORD — Extreme swimmer Jim Dreyer will be at the Otsego County Sportsplex Saturday, Oct. 12, for a motivational talk followed by a swim clinic to raise funds for local Habitat for Humanity projects.

Dreyer, 50, made the news in August when he swam 22 miles across Lake St. Clair while towing a load of bricks in a raft.

That accomplishment is only one of many mind-boggling distance swims Dreyer has under his belt. He's swam across all five Great Lakes, including 60 miles across Lake Superior. He lost his GPS 25 miles off shore during that particular swim and guided himself the rest of the way with a cheap compass watch. It was his fifth attempt at that feat.

His endeavors have earned him the nickname "The Shark" and his own day, Aug. 3, in his hometown of Byron Center.

"I like the nickname," Dreyer joked Monday.

Dreyer, who owns his own company, Event Marketing Enterprises, does numerous public speaking engagements and swim clinics through the year.

A committee has formed to bring Dreyer to the Sportsplex next week to share his story and helpful swimming techniques. The event runs from 8 - 10 a.m. and costs $20 per person, with all proceeds going to Otsego County Habitat for Humanity.

"Jim is coming here because he wants to help out," said committee member Judy Wagley, noting Dreyer swam at the Sportsplex back in May. "The event is for everybody, not just swimmers. He's very passionate about what he does, has a big heart and is doing this just for Otsego County Habitat for Humanity."

Dreyer was not always a swimmer. His sister saved him from drowning when he was 3 years old and the water became his biggest fear afterward.

It wasn't until his 30s he took swim lessons while training for a triathlon. His biathlon and triathlon attempts have been combined with swims across entire Great Lakes.

"I discovered a talent I would've never known had I not faced my biggest fear," he said. "It's now become the playing field for my sport and my office."

His swims were dedicated to Big Brothers Big Sisters until 2012 when he and a friend kayaked from Lake Michigan to the Gulf of Mexico. After paddling 1,430 miles — and fighting off an Asian carp that had jumped into his kayak — he spent a few days with Habitat for Humanity, building a home in a hurricane-stricken area.

"It really made a believer out of me," he said, noting the homes create a healthy living environment for families with children.

Now, with his speaking engagements, he hopes to help more people set and achieve their goals — and become better swimmers. After his talk, he'll get in the pool with other attendees for some coaching.

"He's just very inspiring," Wagley said. "I think he can inspire anyone to achieve any goal they may have, big or small."

To register, go to www.facebook.com/swim2013 or show up the day of the event. For more information, call Habitat ReStore, at (989)732-6070. The event is sponsored by Wagar Motors, JoJo's Natural Market, Beelicious Honey, Flynn Orchards and St. Andrew Episcopal Church.

Ex-Rayder, Saginaw Valley's Drost captures GLIAC title

DREW KOCHANNY
Northern Michigan Review

SAGINAW — Wyatt Drost has achieved his goals and then some.

The only thing to do now is reach higher.

Drost, a 2011 Charlevoix High School graduate and current member of the Saginaw Valley State University golf team, collected an individual Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference Golf Championship on Monday after a conference best 219 in the three-day tournament at Eagle Eye Golf Club in Bath.

While Drost had set goals to win a tournament as both an individual and team, winning the GLIAC was a different story.

"It's definitely become a goal to repeat next year, but just to win a tournament was more of a goal than this particular one," Drost said. "It was a great feeling and was huge. It was something that I felt like was going to happen anytime. I didn't know what tournament it would be, but I started playing really good golf the last couple of weeks."

Drost

Drost shot a tournament best 70, two-under-par, in the opening round to go along with a 78 on day two. He then capped his impressive showing off with a round best 71 on the final day.

SVSU finished fourth overall in the championship, with Malone University taking the top honors. Along with the conference title for Drost, he's also honored as a first team All-GLIAC selection to end the fall season.

"The competition was Ferris State, Grand Valley, Wayne State so you have some of the best teams in the country in Division II there," Drost said. "To get a win there, it felt huge, felt like something that was a long time coming."

Drost, who felt the All-Conference selection was quite the honor, is not the only one looking at the win and long list of accomplishments as a long time coming.

Steven Good, head golf professional at the Crooked Tree Golf Club in Petoskey, has known and been working with Wyatt since his junior year at Charlevoix.

Lessons have since turned into a friendship, one in which Good is proud of what he see's in Drost, both on and off the course.

"Wyatt Drost is a good kid, to do what he did, he won the qualifier at the Michigan Amateur at (Boyne) Mountain and then he wins the GLIAC his junior year. He deserves it," Good said. "He's a great player with a ton of potential."

Drost has felt the relationship with Good has taken him to where he is now, which included a swing fix along the way.

"If I ever need anything he'll help me out, he's just a really good friend now," Drost said. "I think he's as proud as I am. He's pretty excited and it's a good feeling. I feel honored."

With the fall season closed and winter around the corner, Drost now turns his focus to setting goals for the Spring season.

"Next for me, my goals are going to be win another tournament in the Spring and then also to make it as a team to Super Regionals and Nationals," he said. "If we can't do it as a team, then I'm hoping to do it individually."

Few can doubt his goals after a conference championship as a junior and who knows, maybe there's one out there he never even had his sights on and not that far out of reach for the up and coming golfer.

meet.

"It was nice," she said. "We've been off since Carson City, so almost 10 days. When you're on routine, it's really hard. At least we got a race in because conference is on Tuesday. This kind of puts them back into rhythm. So we should be alright."

Lake Michigan Conference finals for the Rayders will take place on Tuesday, Oct. 15 at the Antrim Dells Golf Course in Ellsworth.

That same day, Petoskey will run at the Big North Conference finals in Gaylord.

Petoskey assistant coach Jennifer Bashore-Smith is hoping to have a healthy team and take the momentum gained in Charlevoix into the meet.

"We've got five guys, that if they all run well, we can place and get to state," Bashore-Smith said. "We're hoping that that's going to happen. We have the girls to do it, we would just need everyone there."

Also for the Petoskey boys' team, Tom VanSlembrouck took sixth, followed by Jacob Kromm in eighth and Andy Frampus in 10th place. Also finishing atop the girls' team were Melissa Myers in eighth place, Jessica Edwards in 12th place, Makayla Flynn in 14th and Alyssa Daly, 15th.

For Charlevoix, Luke Buday had a seventh place showing, while Nick Plude, Noah Jeakle, Lucas Vonl.au, CJ Rice and Shae Bearss finished from 10th-14th, respectively.

On the girls side, Ellie Way just missed on a fifth place finish and placed sixth for the girls, while Ali Schwein finished seventh. Isabelle Buday took 10th overall, followed by Katie Mousseau, 11th and Allie Hodge, 12th.

SOCCER

Once play resumed, the Rayders took a 1-0 lead in the opening half as Davis LaBelle scored off a feed from Snabes. The Rayders led 1-0 at halftime before Grayling tied the game in the second half.

Charlevoix took a 2-1 lead later in the second half as Matye scored off a crossing feed from the sideline from Britt.

"Britt made a nice play along the sideline to make that cross," Boss said. "He's been playing well, made some strong plays and he's been doing a lot for us lately."

With close to 10 minutes to play in regulation, Grayling tied the game to send it to overtime.

In the first OT, Matye scored what proved to be the eventual game-winner on a feed from Crandall.

"Christian played a very strong game," Boss said. "Grayling is very tough and physical and it was good to see him play that big of a game."

Joy earned the win in goal for the Rayders, while Boss lauded the defensive efforts of Kyle Illenden, Matt Good and Kevin Pearl.

"It was good to win a big game like this on the road," Boss said. "It was a good learning experience for us and with districts coming up, hopefully it will carry over.

"Right now, everybody is clicking."

Stingrays seeks new swimmers

The local private swim club team, the Charlevoix Stingrays, is taking new team members.

The Stingray swim team practices from 4-6 p.m each Tuesday and Thursday at the East Jordan Community Pool, 101 Maple St., East Jordan. Fees are $20 per month for one training session per week and $30 per month for two training sessions per week. Family rates are discounted according to the number of swimmers on the monthly rates.

Team swimmers also practice at Charlevoix Area Community Pool several days a week.

POP WARNER

Pop Warner teams both top Kalkaska

Both Charlevoix Pop Warner football teams got back on the winning track last Saturday at Kipke Field.

In the first game of the day, The Charlevoix Rayder Midget squad defeated Kalkaska 8-6 in a fight defensive contest. The difference was an extra point, which in Pop Warner resulted in two points from Tyler Ostrum. Offensively, the touchdown came from Cole Wright off a reverse play. Wright and Ostrum ran the ball strong all game, with solid passing from quarterback Hank Simmons. Defensively, Eric Staph, who has emerged as a defensive presence, led the Rayders. Coaches were very pleased with the entire defense for their improved play. The Midgets will be back in action at 4:30 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 12 against the Traverse City Trojans.

In game two at Kipke field, the Charlevoix Rayder Peewees beat Kalkaska 26-0 behind what coaches call the most complete effort thus far. Offensively, the Rayders scored on the first play from scrimmage, a 36-yard run by Max Ostrum. Quarterback Jacob Snyder led the Rayder attack after that with three rushing touchdowns. Coaches said solid blocking by Luke Snyder, Jack Bemis, Zach Nickel, Spencer Weber and Phillip Sterrett allowed Ostrum and Snyder to get loose early and often. The Rayders were once again led defensively by their defensive front, anchored by Tony Illenden. Bemis, Nickel and Elliott Tillotson also played well. The Rayder Peewees travel to Pellston for an 11:30 a.m. game on Saturday, Oct. 12, against the Petoskey Broncos.

BE A WISE SHOPPER
It's always wise to remember that if an offer sounds too good to be true, it probably is. If you are offered merchandise at an unbelievably low price, check it out thoroughly. A call to the Better Business Bureau (serving Eastern Michigan and the Upper Peninsula) will tell you whether other consumers have had problems with the firm that has offered the merchandises. (248)223-9400. But call the Bureau BEFORE you make a purchase. You'll be glad you did.

NOTICE OF
Mortgage Foreclosure Sale

THIS FIRM IS A DEBT COLLECTOR ATTEMPTING TO COLLECT A DEBT. ANY INFORMATION WE OBTAIN WILL BE USED FOR THAT PURPOSE. PLEASE CONTACT OUR OFFICE AT THE NUMBER BELOW IF YOU ARE IN ACTIVE MILITARY DUTY.

ATTN PURCHASERS: This sale may be rescinded by the foreclosing mortgagee. In that event, your damages, if any, shall be limited solely to the return of the bid amount tendered at sale, plus interest.

MORTGAGE SALE

Default has been made in the conditions of a mortgage made by Pamela S. Grove, a single woman, original mortgagor(s), to Republic Bank, Mortgagee, dated March 17, 2006, and recorded on March 24, 2006 in Liber 737 on Page 331, and modified by agreement dated July 8, 2010, and recorded on August 16, 2010 in Liber 931 on Page 44, and assigned by said Mortgagee to FCO Residential 2011-1 Trust as assignee as documented by an assignment, in Charlevoix county records, Michigan, on which mortgage there is claimed to be due at the date hereof the sum of Three Hundred Thirty-Eight Thousand Five Hundred Seventy Six and 42/100 Dollars ($338,576.42)

Under the power of sale contained in said mortgage and the statute in such case made and provided, notice is hereby given that said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises, or some part of them, at public vendue, at the place of holding the circuit court within Charlevoix County, at 11:00 AM, on November 1, 2013.

Said premises are situated in City of Boyne City, Charlevoix County, Michigan, and are described as: Parcel 2

Unit 12, Lake View Estates Condominium, according to the Master Deed as recorded in Liber 343, Pages 477 through 514, Charlevoix County Records, and designated as Charlevoix County Subdivision Plan No. 57. Together with rights in general common elements and limited common elements as set forth in the above Master Deed, and as described in Act 59 of the Public Acts of 1978 as amended.

The redemption period shall be 6 months from the date of such sale, unless determined abandoned in accordance with MCLA 600.3241a, in which case the redemption period shall be 30 days from the date of such sale.

If the property is sold at foreclosure sale under Chapter 32 of the Revised Judicature Act of 1961, pursuant to MCL 600.3278 the borrower will be held responsible to the person who buys the property at the mortgage foreclosure sale or to the mortgage holder for damaging the property during the redemption period.

THIS FIRM IS A DEBT COLLECTOR ATTEMPTING TO COLLECT A DEBT. ANY INFORMATION WE OBTAIN WILL BE USED FOR THAT PURPOSE. PLEASE CONTACT OUR OFFICE AT THE NUMBER BELOW IF YOU ARE IN ACTIVE MILITARY DUTY.

ATTN PURCHASERS: This sale may be rescinded by the foreclosing mortgagee. In that event, your damages, if any, shall be limited solely to the return of the bid amount tendered at sale, plus interest.

MORTGAGE SALE

Default has been made in the conditions of a mortgage made by Gerald P. Doan and Rebecca L. Doan, husband and wife, original mortgagor(s), to Morgan Stanley Dean Witter Credit Corporation, Mortgagee, dated June 20, 2003, and recorded on July 2, 2003 in Liber 551 on Page 796, in Charlevoix county records, Michigan, and assigned by said Mortgagee to PHH Mortgage Corporation as assignee, on which mortgage there is claimed to be due at the date hereof the sum of One Hundred Four Thousand Three Hundred Twenty-Six and 87/100 Dollars ($104,326.87).

Under the power of sale contained in said mortgage and the statute in such case made and provided, notice is hereby given that said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises, or some part of them, at public vendue, at the place of holding the circuit court within Charlevoix County, at 11:00 AM, on November 8, 2013.

Said premises are situated in City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County, Michigan, and are described as: Beginning on the West line of Meech Street 340.55 North of the Northerly line of Petoskey Avenue, thence North along the West line of Meech Street 75 feet, more or less, to a point 591 feet South of the East and West quarter of Section 23, Town 34, North, Range 8, West; thence West to the East line of Crouter's Addition to the City of Charlevoix, according to the recorded plat thereof, thence South along said East line of Crouter's Addition 75.0 feet, more or less, to a point South 88 degrees 12 minutes West of the point of beginning, thence North 88 degrees 12 minutes East to the point of beginning being a part of the Northwest quarter of the Southeast quarter of Section 23, Town 34 North, Range 8 West.

The redemption period shall be 6 months from the date of such sale, unless determined abandoned in accordance with MCLA 600.3241a, in which case the redemption period shall be 30 days from the date of such sale

If the property is sold at foreclosure sale under Chapter 32 of the Revised Judicature Act of 1961, pursuant to MCL 600.3278 the borrower will be held responsible to the person who buys the property at the mortgage foreclosure sale or to the mortgage holder for damaging the property during the redemption period.

Drilling at Fisherman's Island is for limestone

SHERI MCWHIRTER-O'DONNELL
Courier Editor

A local quarry company gained state approval to investigate the underlying stone at Fisherman's Island State Park, an effort to find additional limestone deposits. Should limestone be found, a potential land swap may be pitched to state authorities.

St. Marys Cement Inc. in Charlevoix sent workers this week to drill two test holes along a hiking trail at the adjacent state park. The park is along the Lake Michigan shoreline, just south of Charlevoix. State officials granted the state land use permit on Sept. 26 and St. Marys Cement paid $400 in application and

Planners take first look at Charlevoix Pointe

STEVE ZUCKER
Northern Michigan Review

The Charlevoix Planning Commission took its first look at a proposed seven-unit townhouse development this week, reserving most of its comments for an upcoming public hearing.

"It's fair to say that it was a pretty warm reception by the planning commission," Charlevoix city planning director Mike Spencer said of Monday's introduction of the seven-townhouse Charlevoix Pointe development proposed for Pine River Lane, which runs west off Petoskey Avenue just north of the Weathervane Restaurant.

The development is proposed for a 0.69-acre lot at 115 Pine River Lane by Midtown Development of Traverse City. The development would include seven single-family, 3,190-square-foot units each with three bedrooms, three bathrooms and a two-car garage. The units are proposed to be wood frame construction, 2.5 stories with gable roofs, 30 feet tall (measured from the finished grade to the mid-point between the ridge and the eaves) and have a stone veneer and shingle lap-board style siding.

Spencer said at Monday's meeting a couple of adjoining property owners, especially the owners of the single-family home to the immediate east of the property, expressed concerns about privacy, especially considering the proposed elevations and height of the buildings.

Although the commission didn't dig into all the details of the project Monday, Spencer said there are a few items that have already been identified as needing to be addressed.

He said there are some issues with the steepness of the main driveway that will serve the units' driveways.

"There's a 15 percent slope that they are proposing. We're not sure if it's going to be too steep. We asked them to stake the center line of the road at different elevations and the fire chief is going to look at it," Spencer said.

Spencer said the commission's chairman asked the developers to provide a narrative on their expectations for the development's impact on traffic in the area.

Spencer said he doesn't anticipate the development creating any more problems with traffic than already exist in the area. He said the major contributors to traffic issues on Pine River Lane in the summer have to do with the proximity of the bridge on U.S. 31 and customers visiting the Weathervane Restaurant and the nearby hotel. He noted that each unit will have parking for four vehicles (two in the

Former prosecutor cost county $180,958 in legal fees

County lawyers ask judge to drop suit without trial

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

> "We were asking the court to dismiss the action as a matter of law."
> — Gretchen Olsen, attorney for Charlevoix County

Jarema

The cost for a lawsuit filed against Charlevoix County and John Jarema has ticked up to $70,996, according to information acquired through a Freedom of Information Request filed by the Petoskey News-Review.

A separate suit filed against Jarema has cost the county $109,962.

Both lawsuits were filed by former assistant chief assistant prosecutor Shaynee Fanara. The first, filed with the United States District Court Western District of Michigan, was filed in October 2012 in Grand Rapids.

It includes allegations of sexual and gender-based harassment, defamation, retaliation, deprivation of free speech, deprivation of liberty and intentional interference with contractual relations.

The other suit is a grievance against Jarema, the former prosecutor for Charlevoix County, that Fanara filed with the Michigan Attorney Grievance Commission the spring of 2012.

In total, the lawsuits have cost the county $180,958.

The legal fees are paid out of the county board of commissioners' budget — which itself is funded by the general fund, said Charlevoix County Clerk Cherie Potter Browe.

"(The general fund) is funded from our revenue — property taxes, charges for services, different grants that come in," said Browe.

The county is paying for the grievance because its insurance company requires them to, Browe added.

Fanara is represented by the firm the Law Offices of Kathleen Bogas, based in Bingham Farms while the Petoskey firm of Plunkett Cooney is representing Charlevoix County and the firm Collins, Einhorn & Farrell is representing Jarema.

Lawyers, representatives from Charlevoix County and Fanara met in July to attempt a voluntary mediation. A mediation was not successful and Fanara's lawyer, Kathleen Bogas, said the firm still expects the lawsuit to go to a trial.

"At this point we do not have a trial date," she said. "I assume the defendant will file a motion for some prejudgement to dismiss the case. I am confident we will be successful in our position on that."

Gretchen Olsen of Plunkett Cooney, attorney for Charlevoix County, said she filed a summary judgment Wednesday. A summary judgment asks a judge to dismiss a case without a trial.

"We were asking the court to dismiss the action as a matter of law," said Olsen.

This weekend the last, best chance for color tours

SHERI MCWHIRTER-O'DONNELL
Courier Editor

This may just be the peak weekend for color tour drives around Lake Charlevoix and throughout the Jordan River Valley.

Weather experts at the National Weather Service station near Gaylord predict prime color viewing across Charlevoix County both this weekend and into next week, even if the temperatures are chilly and the skies a bit dampening.

"It will be a little rainy and a little cool, but it is late October," said Dave Lawrence, federal meteorologist. "I think we've got about another week."

Excellent color currently can be found all around Lake Charlevoix, including along Highway M-66 between Charlevoix and East Jordan, East Jordan-Boyne City Road between those cities and also Boyne City-Charlevoix Road between those cities. Other prime routes are Highway M-32 east of East Jordan and the designated Breezeway, a 28-mile route that connects Boyne Falls, East Jordan, Ellsworth and Atwood.

Shelly Ferguson, at the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, said they often advise people on good color tour routes, either at the chamber or on its website.

"We tell people they can circle Lake Charlevoix, and Norwood is pretty, too," she said. "My favorite place to view the fall color is from the top of Mount McSauba (in Charlevoix). You can get your daily exercise in by hiking up the hill to be rewarded with a panoramic view of not only the colorful foliage, but Lake Michigan and Lake Charlevoix, as well."

Some other good autumn drives can be found south of Charlevoix.

"We invite everyone to the 28 miles of the Breezeway in their fall color plans this year," said Mary Faculak, president of the East Jordan Area Chamber of Commerce. "I often say that we own the fall because of the spectacular views, attractions and many unique businesses are in this area."

Other prime color can be found within and encircling the Jordan River Valley, including scenic overlook titled Avalanche near Alba and another called Deadman's Hill near Elmira. Avalanche is along Alba Highway, or County Highway 620, while Deadman's Hill is on Deadman's Hill Road, off of U.S. 131 just south of Elmira. Additionally, Jordan River National Fish Hatchery within the valley, also off of U.S. 131, offers some wonderful fall colors.

Lawrence said the weather forecast currently calls for likely showers this weekend, Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 19-20, and a chance of showers throughout next week. Additionally, temperatures likely won't climb above 50 degrees this weekend and are expected to remain in the 40s or less next week.

Oh, and then there's the prediction for the first snowflakes.

"It probably will be as early as next week in a lot of areas, especially those areas away from the lakeshore," Lawrence said.

Northern Community Mediation explains court system savings

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

Christensen

During Charlevoix County's regular commission meeting last Wednesday, Jane Millar, executive director of Northern Community Mediation explained to the board of commissioners how her nonprofit spends the $33,000 per year granted from the county.

The organization is a statewide nonprofit that has centers across the state. Northern Community Mediation serves Charlevoix and Emmet counties, and provides an alternative to what can sometimes be an expensive experience in the court system.

The nonprofit has 55 local community mediators, each of whom goes through training with the state and each of whom is a volunteer. Those with a case that otherwise might work through the court system meet with mediators to try to work out the problem instead.

"In doing so, we provide a more genteel way of resolving conflict, and we also provide an opportunity for cost-savings for everyone involved — the participants and the court systems itself, hence, ultimately the county," said Millar. "We have to be there for parties so that they can afford to go to challenge something and go foith with a lawsuit. Therefore, it's not just the rich that can benefit from the legal system."

She gave national average costs, which could be slightly lower in Charlevoix County, to illustrate the savings. A trial portion for automohile claims cost $22,000. In liability, the trial portion could cost $28,000. An employment trial could cost $37,000; hreach of contract cost $43,000 and malpractice cost $62,000.

"By using Northern Community Mediation, the cost is much less," said Millar.

In fact, she said, the cost is about 20 percent the cost of a trial. Eighty five percent of the cases the organization mediates are ordered by the courts to mediation. Examples of conflict include tenant-landlord disputes, small claims, child protection and victim-offender reconciliation which includes first-time offender programs.

Millar gave an example of a specific cost-saving: the cost per day of a child in foster care. Northern Community

Council to consider project review policy

STEVE ZUCKER
Northern Michigan Review

The Charlevoix City Council on Monday will further consider a proposed policy that would serve as a guide for which future projects on city property should be reviewed by the city's planning commission.

The council had its first look at the policy at its meeting on Oct. 7, but decided to hold off on considering approving the policy to allow the community to have more time to review and comment on it.

The policy, which the city's planning commission recently developed and sent to the council for its approval, grew out of the controversy that centered around a now-defunct outdoor community fireplace project in East Park late last year.

Aside from complaints that the fireplace would block views of the park and Round Lake from Bridge Street and that it did not fit in with the park, one of the complaints among those who objected to the project was that it was not vetted by the planning commission prior to approval by the city council.

At the time, the city attorney opinioned that law did not require the project to be reviewed by the planning commission.

When the dust settled from the fireplace controversy the council directed the planning commission to come up with a policy that would dictate

Council extends manager's contract

STEVE ZUCKER
Northern Michigan Review

The Charlevoix City Council extended city manager Rob Straebel's contract by a year at its regular semi-monthly meeting Oct. 7.

The council unanimously approved adding another year to Straebel's rolling three-year contract, which now extends the contract to 2016. The extension also came with a 2 percent pay raise, which is the same amount other non-union city employees received in their most recent pay increases. The 2 percent pay increase of $1,718, brings Straebel's annual salary up to $87,636.

The extension, the sixth since Straebel took over as city manager in 2007, comes on the heels of his recent annual evaluation by the city council in which he received high marks nearly across the board.

The evaluation includes the main areas of budgeting and fiscal management, supervision and management, leadership and professionalism, community relations, city council relations, and intergovernmental relations. On a scale of one to five (with five being the best), the council gave Straebel scores ranging from four to five in almost all areas and sub-areas.

The council praised Straebel for being "professional, even during times of controversy," for maintaining a strong relationship with other municipalities and for being responsive to phone calls and emails, even on weekends.

The council suggested Straebel work on having a stronger presence among city employees, establishing a stronger presence in the community during positive times and getting more involved in state-wide organizations.

Young elected Kiwanis president

STAFF REPORT

John Young was installed as the president of the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club. The installation was done by the Michigan District of Kiwanis International Division No. 22 Lt. Gov. Fabian LaVigne, and it was at the Argonne Supper Club. Members and guests joined in on the celebration and had an enjoyable evening. Noting that our Kiwanis Club has been serving our community for 79 years, Young said his goals for the coming year are continued support of the service leadership programs (Aktion Club and Builders Club), Michigan Foundation (children hospitals), International Eliminate Project (neonatal immunization) and community youth programs. Also, the goal is to continue the practice of having members invite civic-minded individuals with interest in youth to become active Kiwanis members. Call (231) 547-2042 for more information.

Charlevoix chamber seeks award nominations

The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce is accepting nominations to recognize those businesses and individuals who go the extra mile to make Charlevoix the amazing place it is.

If you know of a person or business that is worthy of receiving an award, email your nomination, along with an explanation of why the nominated person or business is so deserving, to ferguson@charlevoix.org by 5 p.m. Monday, Nov. 4.

Awards will be presented at the chamber's annual meeting luncheon in January.

Awards and criteria are:

— Outstanding Citizen Award: Established in 1987 to recognize somebody who is dedicated and giving during a number of years, who has given freely of his or her time, talents and resources to make Charlevoix a better place to live.

— Ambassador Award: Established in 1990 to recognize an individual who promotes the spirit of the Charlevoix community and/or the chamber of commerce and its programs.

— Business of the Year: Established in 2009 to recognize a business that is inspirational and visionary, operating at a level that inspires others and exhibits vision that goes beyond "business as usual." The Business of the Year demonstrates success and exceptional performance in business practices, customer service and community involvement.

— Customer Service Award: Established in 2009 to recognize excellence in service. The recipient of this award, an employee of a member business, exemplifies high standards giving priority attention to every customer, client or guest.

— New Business of the Year: Established in 2011 to recognize a newly opened business (within last 18 months) that is a chamber member that demonstrated strong business growth and performance, sound business strategies and practices, unique and innovative approaches and community involvement.

— Young Professional of the Year: Established in 2011 to recognize an individual who is driven and leads by example, demonstrates leadership in professional development, civic, charitable and social endeavors in Charlevoix. The recipient of this award is 40 years old or younger and also a chamber member.

Are you in the moment?

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

Being in the moment means you are in a place and time where you experience pleasure and peace of mind. This is not to be confused with boosting your testosterone levels as an "in the moment" commercial suggests.

Yogis — instructors of yoga — will talk about meditation. Breathing in and out and keeping your mind free of clutter and focusing only on your breath. While it's good for us, some individuals (me included) will be using this breathing time to plan a menu for six and determine the best dessert and seating arrangement. I try to quiet my mind, but rarely does it happen. I didn't make the cut for Attention Deficit Disorder, but to be honest, once in awhile I bet your mind wanders, too.

I have to recommend that if you are able to carve out 10 minutes of your day to do absolutely nothing, please do so. Focusing on your breathing and sitting or lying still is the best way to refresh your mind and body.

Mornings can get hectic, so if you can take some time around noon, bring your own bag lunch, close the door, dim the lights and get ready for some much-needed quiet. Close your eyes and focus on breathing in and out. Other wonderful opportunities for being in the moment are watching a sunrise, sunset, clouds as they drift by and trees blowing in the breeze.

We were reminded of being in the moment when we went for a morning walk with our 2-year-old grandson. He let go of our hands and flopped himself onto the lawn and looked skyward. We knew he hadn't fallen because he was much too quiet. We knew he hadn't fainted as his eyes were wide open and he was looking skyward pointing to the moon. That's when it happened. In the quiet of the grass and in his relaxed, reclined position he was admiring a celestial body that was visible in the morning sky. He knew how to appreciate the moment and was taking it in.

We all need moments in our lives to compose, relax and enjoy our surroundings. Stillness in your body leads to a calmness in your mind. If you have a particular place in which you find comfort, return to that spot either physically or mentally. For some, it may be sitting on the same park bench and taking in the changing seasons, or simply watching birds nesting or squirrels playing tag. For others, it's a location in their home where the sunlight kisses the window pane and then dances across the floor. To truly appreciate the moment, ask yourself how you feel, what sounds you hear and what aromas tickled your nose. Then just quietly breathe and rest your mind.

This process of being in the moment heightens your senses. It helps you focus on a decision you may need to make. It helps quiet your anger if you are upset about someone or something. It encourages you to have a different focus on things in general. It will help you to appreciate what you have and not to be worried about things that will never happen.

For those of you who feel five minutes is all you can take, then take five. Those who want to linger may do so by just sitting and being still, but be careful as it could lead to a nap. Our bodies need to rest now and then. We have choices. We can choose how busy we want to be and we can choose to take time for ourselves. This being in the moment creates respite for the body, mind and soul. Such a wonderful opportunity, you won't want to miss a single moment of it.

Susan Pulaski, (left) community health coordinator for the Health Department of Northwest Michigan, and Maureen Radke from the Charlevoix County Community Foundation stand under the new 24/7 Tobacco-Free sign posted at East Jordan High School. The Charlevoix County Community Foundation recently awarded funding to the health department to purchase signs for all the schools in Charlevoix County that have adopted comprehensive 24/7 tobacco-free policies. These policies prohibit the use of all types of tobacco and non-tobacco nicotine products in school buildings and on school grounds at all times, and at any on or off-campus school sponsored event, including athletic events. Signage is an important way to educate the students, parents and community members about the policy change.

CHARLEVOIX LOOKING BACK...

On the night of June 16, 1887, the passenger steamer Champlain was upbound from Chicago and stopped at Norwood, leaving there at 11:20 p.m. for Charlevoix. As she neared Fisherman's Island, a lantern allegedly fell from a hook in an engineer's cabin. Its spilled, ignited oil splashed across the floor and quickly spread. In the breezy night, within minutes the all wood vessel exploded in flames. The captain headed for shore as fast as he could, which speed prevented the lifeboats from being placed in the water. Passengers and crew, plus horses, went overboard, frantically grasping at whatever they could find and each other. Mesmerized men in a logging camp on shore reported that the fire was so intense the smokestack glowed white. Of the more than 50 people aboard, 22 perished. Four men trying to launch a lifeboat were swept overboard and never found. Three of the remaining 18 were never identified, and were buried in Brookside Cemetery's potter's field on the far shore of Stover Creek. The other 15 were identified and returned to their families and towns. One girl's body was discovered floating in Lake Michigan near Good Hart. This was the worst disaster in Charlevoix's maritime history. Here the smoking hull appears at the south pier before it was towed into Round Lake. The Champlain was enlarged and rebuilt in Milwaukee as the City of Charlevoix by the following year.

Corn mazes ready for conquering

CANDACE WILLIAMS
Northern Michigan Review

Some area corn fields become life-size puzzles in the fall. Three local corn mazes offer fall entertainment for all ages.

The farthest south of the three local mazes can be enjoyed at Royal Farms, 10445 North U.S. 31, in Atwood, about 10 miles south of Charlevoix. The business is on the west side of the highway with red and white buildings and signs. Farmers Patrick and Sarah McGuire own and operate the maze as part of their fruit farm operation.

Fall hours are in effect all of October. They are 9 a.m.-6 p.m. Sunday through Wednesday, and 9 a.m.-7 p.m. Thursday through Saturday. Much produce is available at the market, including cherry products grown and harvested at this first-generation farm.

More information is available at (231) 599-3222 or at www.royalfarmsinc.com online.

Closer to Petoskey is the corn maze at Uncle Frank's Apple Town, 4391 North U.S. 31 in Brutus, which is about two miles north of Alanson. This country cider mill and pumpkin farm is open on weekends with hayrides and its corn maze. The business also makes fresh apple doughnuts on the weekends. Hours are 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Saturday and Sunday through Nov. 1. Cider can be purchased 4-7 p.m. Monday-Friday. More information is available at (231) 347-8203.

Finally, a maze geared toward young children opens in the fall near the village of Bliss at The Pumpkin Barn, 1880 W. Sturgeon Bay Trail in Levering. The farm features a small market with a variety of items for sale. "Basically (it's) a family business. We are the third generation to farm here since 1937," said owner Ralph Ketvertis.

The place offered corn mazes for about a dozen years. The pumpkin barn is open 10 a.m.-6 p.m. daily until Halloween day. Admission to the maze is $4, but children 4 years and younger are admitted free of charge. More information is available at (231) 537-2941.

Elementary school's Grand Friends Day hosts 500 visitors

JAMIE BAUMANN
Northern Michigan Review

Aunts, uncles, grandparents, family friends – all were invited to Charlevoix Elementary School to celebrate students on Friday.

"We served over 800 lunches, 300 were for our students and 500 were for visitors. People came from as far away as Wisconsin to be with the children," principal Doug Drenth said.

Visitors to the school come to the classroom, worked on an activity with the children and then ate lunch.

"Members of the Coast Guard, Charlevoix Police Department, Charlevoix Sheriff's Office, and other volunteers come to support the children," Drenth said.

"We make sure that every child has a special adult. It was amazing. We had cars parked the full length of Division Street and Fox Motors shuttled people in with electric cars."

Fox also sponsored Drive for Kids, donating $10 for each person who test drove a car.

One hundred seventy-three people test drove cars. Fox made an additional $500 donation, because more than 150 people drove cars, so the school earned $2,230 from the promotion.

Anti-bullying materials were provided for parents.

"We promote this month as anti-bullying month," Drenth said.

"But we focus on it all the time with things like the word of the week. This week, the word is 'kindness.' Grand Friends Day was a great day.

"We love to have people in the building celebrating their children."

Registration Is Open For The Christmas Parade

Show your holiday spirit and community cheer by entering the 3rd Annual Holiday Parade. The parade will be held on Friday, November 29th beginning at 5:30pm on Bridge Street in downtown Charlevoix.

The parade is a welcome addition to Charlevoix's Annual Community Tree Lighting festivities which run the same day from 3:00 to 6:00pm. Tree Lighting activities include ornament making and free photos with Santa at the North Pole (located at the Charlevoix Circle of Arts), cookies, cocoa, and yuletide cheer. Contact the Chamber for details at ferguson@charlevoix.org.
